$500,000 HOPED FOR RACING POOL SHRINKS TO $7000

Postoffice Investigates Phoenix (Ariz.) Scheme Sponsored by Disabled Veterans' Association.

ORGANIZATION LOST HEAVILY, IT SAYS

Promoter Thinks Sellers of Half Million Tickets Sent Out Kept Much of Cash —St. Louis Buyers.

The glamorous hope of a $200,000 first prize in a Kentucky Derby pool, held by many St. Louisans who bought tickets at $1 each, was dashed yesterday with the frank admission by the promoter who organized the pool with the sponsorship of the Disabled Veterans' Association of Phoenix, Ariz., that there was only $7000 to divide.

With Postoffice Inspectors in Phoenix to investigate the possibility of violation of the lottery regulations or other sections of the postal laws, inquiry by the Post-Dispatch disclosed that of 500,000 tickets sent to agents, returns were made on only 7000.

The promoter, who declined to permit the uses of his name, sought to explain the situation by telephone from Phoenix.

Supposes Sellers Kept Money.

"We planned a pool of $500,000, possibly $1,000,000, half to be spent by the association for a hospital in Phoenix and half to be distributed in prizes to ticketholders," he said. "We sent out 500,000 tickets and waited for the returns to come in. We have no idea how many tickets were sold and we presume much of the money was retained by ticket sellers.

"On May 10, the date set for the allotment of horses entered in the derby, we had received a total of $7000 by express. Several thousand dollars more came by mail but was not accepted. We also received about 50,000 letters from persons who bought tickets and thought they were entitled to receipts.

"There was nothing for us to do but follow the rules. We put the 7000 tickets in a barrel, took them across the Mexican border and selected the holders of tickets on horses in the race. How few tickets were in the barrel is shown by the fact that three of the 15 horses went to St. Louisans.

"We have the $7000 in the bank and we will pay it out after the race and forget about the hospital. The first prize will be about $2000, the second $800 and the third $500. The deal has cost me $11,000 in promotion expenses. The town is full of postoffice inspectors and everybody is excited."

One St. Louisan Winner.

Of the 7000 ticket buyers who actually shared in the pool, the most fortunate was J. H. Wade of Phoenix, who drew the winner, Twenty Grand. Sweep All, second winner, was drawn by B. Wilson of Seattle.

Mrs. B. L. Goldberg of 3866 Flora place, St. Louis, drew Mate, winner of third place.

Mrs. August A. Busch of Grant's Farm held the ticket on Equipoise, but regardless of other developments, her chance of large winnings collapsed when Equipoise was scratched. The other St. Louisan in the money, to a small degree, was E. W. Sassal of Hotel Jefferson, who held the ticket on Ladder.

Other ticket holders, as announced from Phoenix are: Don Leon, Dorothy Hall, Cactus, Ariz.; Up, Earl H. Folk, Detroit, Mich.; Pittsburger, W. S. Coplan, Mount Morris, Pa.; Boy Howdy, John Pulfer, Detroit, Mich.; Anchors Aweigh, J. B. Dawson, Uniontown, Pa.; Surf Board, George Koster, Detroit; Prince d'Amour, Arthur Church, McKinney, Tex.; The Mongol, Marie Lee, Detroit; Spanish Play, Ed Harringotn, Tampa, Fla.; and Insco, R. F. Wiles, Washington, Pa.

3300 Tickets Sold Here.

C. Drummond Jones, a son-in-law of Mrs. Busch, told a Post-Dispatch reporter he received several of the tickets from the promoter in Phoenix. "I sold them among my friends and associates, and sent the money, less 10 per cent commission, to the association at Phoenix," Jones said. "I have been told that about 3300 tickets were sold in St. Louis."

Under the plan as originally conceived, 90 per cent of the money available for prizes was to go to holders of tickets on the three horses "in the money." Of this sum, 60 per cent was to be paid on the ticket on the winning horse, 25 per

60,000 SEE TWENTY GRAND CAPTURE KENTUCKY DERBY AND SET TRACK RECORD

Odds-on Favorite Wins $48,725 for Mrs. Payne Whitney, Owner, Who Receives Trophy From Vice President Curtis.

By the Associated Press.

CHURCHILL DOWNS, LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16. — Coming down the stretch with a sensational burst of speed, Twenty Grand, Mrs. Payne Whitney's great three-year-old, scored a record smashing victory today in the fifty-seventh running of the Kentucky Derby. Sweep All was second and Mate third. Twenty Grand set a new Derby and track record of 2 minutes, 1 4-5 seconds for the mile and a quarter.

This performance displaced the former Derby record of 2:03 2-5 made by Old Rosebud in 1914. It also surpassed the track mark of 2:03 1-5, credited to the seven-year-old and lightly weighted Wood Trap, six years ago. It was short of the world's record of 2 minutes flat for the distance, made by Whiskbroom II at Belmont Park, N. Y., in 1913.

Curtis Presents Trophy.

A crowd of nearly 60,000 spectators responded to the thrill of Twenty Grand's victory with an ovation rivaling that accorded the popular conquest of Earle Sande and Gallant Fox a year ago. This was the third successive triumph for the East in the Derby. There was a spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm as the rose wreath was draped over Twenty Grand's neck and the gold Derby trophy was presented to Mrs. Whitney by Charles Curtis, Vice President of the United States.

Strongly supported right down to post time, Twenty Grand for each $2 ticket in the mutuels, paid $3.76 to win; $3 to place and $2.60 to show.

Sweep All, owned by Charles T. Fisher of Detroit, surprised the betters by giving the favorite a race and beating the second choice, Albert C. Bostwick's Mate, by three lengths. Sweep All paid $15.80 place and $7.16 show. Mate paid $3.62 to show.

Twenty Grand Takes Command.

It was a horse race for at least a mile of the route, until Twenty Grand took complete command, and there was plenty of consolation for the West in the ability of one of its hopes, Sweep All, to split the highly favored Eastern pair. Boys Howdy and Pittsburgher, two of the well liked long shots among Kentuckians, faded from the competition but Spanish Play came strong to finish fourth and in the money.

The race has a gross value of $58,725 and was worth $48,725 to Twenty Grand. Sweep All won $6000 for his owner, Mate $3000, and Spanish Play fourth money, $1000.

For the climax event of a bright, sunshiny day that contrasted sharply with the drab, rainy derbies of the last three years, the field of 12 three-year-olds went to the post. The track was lightning fast.

As the pulses of the thousands of onlookers quickened and as radio broadcasters and telegraph wires flashed their words afar, racers swayed nervously in the starting stalls, then bounded forward to the cry, "they're off."

Favorite Behind at Start.

It was not a perfect start and as the field dashed for positions down the stretch and past the crowded stands for the first time, Twenty Grand was well back. The favorite was tenth as they swept past the first quarter pole with The Mongol, rank outsider and 100-to-1 shot a nose in front of the well bunched pack.

Around the first turn, the field began to spread out. Prince D'Amour, another long shot, moved to the front but was quickly displaced by Walter J. Salmon's Ladder, which finished third in the Preakness.

Down the back stretch, the battle for positions continued and for the first time the favorites made the moves that caused their backers to breathe more easily. Sweep All, on the outside, rushed to the front at three quarters, followed by Twenty Grand, Mate, Ladder and Boys Howdy in that order.

For a few moments Mate, under Jockey George Ellis' urging, seemed about to take the lead. Instead, Twenty Grand responded with a rush that carried the big colt quickly past nis conqueror of a week ago and past Sweep All into the van.

Leads Into the Stretch.

Coming around the turn into the home stretch, Twenty Grand had the race in hand. There was no doubt of the outcome at any stage of the last quarter for Mate was thoroughly beaten and Sweep All had too much ground to make up.

Twenty Grand ran that smashing last quarter in :24 2-5, beating Sweep All by four lengths and finishing seven lengths ahead of Mate.

The fractional time was: First quarter, :23 1-5 seconds; half, :47 2-5; three quarters 1:12; mile,

PONTOON-EQUIPPED PLANE FALLS IN RIVER; TWO DROWNED

Pilot and Mechanic Killed in Exhibit Near Zilwaukee, Mich.; Had Been Carrying Passengers.

By the Associated Press.

SAGINAW, Mich., May 16.—An airplane equipped with pontoons plunged into Saginaw River near Zilwaukee, Mich., late today and the pilot and his mechanic were drowned.

The victims were Joseph E. Behse, 32 years old, president of the Paramount Aircraft Corporation and Manager of the Saginaw Airport, and Whitney Merritt, 26, employe of the corporation.

The plane, built here in January, carried passengers on brief pleasure flights at Detroit during the National Aircraft Show, landing on and taking off from Detroit River.

Behse had been carrying passengers today. At the time of the accident, however, he was making an exhibition flight with 200 persons looking on. A sharp bank against a strong wind apparently caused the plunge into 15 feet of water.

When the plane was pulled from the water the bodies were found in the cockpit, held fast by safety belts.

TO BROADCAST DOG BARKS

Purpose Is to Enable Public to Know Infected Animals.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 16.—Following the biting of 12 persons by three dogs, found to be infected with rabies, it has been decided to broadcast the wailing bark of a mad dog over Radio Station KMTR here next week. A normal dog's bark also will be broadcast, so the public may learn to distinguish between the two sounds. The barks were recorded yesterday at the city pound.

Dr. Fred B. Gage, city director of rabies control, said a rabid dog's effort to bark usually results in a high-pitched, whining sound, something like a coyote wail. A dog in normal health, he said, barks with a short, sharp, explosive sound.

Wendall Shockly and Hiram Bright received 10 lashes each and Austin Bright, brother of Hiram, was given 15. In addition each must serve six months in the workhouse. The turkeys were stolen from the farm of Mrs. Sophie Summ, near Townsend, Del., last December.

ENTIRE ARMY AIR FORCE OF 600 IN ACTION AT ONCE

All Ships in Flight at Dayton, O., for the First Time in History Under One Command.

HUGE PARADE SET FOR TODAY

Pursuit, Attack and Bombing Planes Will Pass Before Gen. Foulois in Review.

By the Associated Press.

FAIRFIELD AIR DEPOT, Dayton, O., May 16.—All Army flying forces took the air today under one command for the first time in history. Squadron by squadron they wheeled up from neighboring Wright Field and Fairfield Air Depot on orders of Brigadier-General Benjamin D. Foulois, Assistant Chief of the Army Air Corps, until 600 ships were on the wing.

They separated into five groups and headed in as many directions from Dayton to practice formation flying and group maneuvers, to which residents of Chicago and New York, Boston, Washington and other seaboard cities will thrill within the next two weeks.

Meanwhile citizenry of Eastern Indiana and Western Ohio got all the benefit of the nation's big free show. From Richmond, Ind., to Kenton, Ohio, on the north, to Columbus and Portsmouth, O., on the east, Cincinnati on the south and Greensburg, Ind., and Richmond, Ind., to the west was the work-and-playground today of the dozens of squadrons, assembled from every corner of the country, as they learned to fly in unison.

The most spectacular show, however, will be an aerial parade tomorrow of every military ship here for the maneuvers.

At 7:14 a. m. the slowest flyers, 70 bombers from the Langley, March and Kelley Fields, will take off for rendezvous points to the southwest. They will be followed by the Third Attack Group, 50 fast planes designed to carry two men and do heavy fighting. The speedier types, 200 pursuit planes from Michigan and California fields, will take off last, and then lead a parade over Fairfield depot at 9 a. m.

The parade will form over many square miles of territory to the south and west of Dayton.

Each squadron knows to the minute when it is due to fall in line. Pursuit, attack and bombardment planes will sweep past Gen. Foulois and his staff in that order and, presumably, without a break in their alignment.

5 BILLIONS IN SAVINGS BANKS

New Record Reported for New York in April.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—For the first time on record the deposits of savings banks in New York State crossed the $5,000,000,000 mark in April, says the monthly report of the Savings Banks Association of the State of New York.

Representing a gain for the month of $41,413,183, deposits in savings banks at the end of April stood at $5,000,279,647. This is an increase since the first of the year of $222,920,661, and exceeds that of any full year heretofore in which records have been kept. By far the greater part of the April gain, says the report, was in Buffalo where four savings banks had the phenomenal increase of $26,231,376 in deposits and 9340 in accounts, this sudden increase was ascribed to the fact that four large commercial banks there reduced their rates on 'thrift' accounts from 4 to 3 per cent. April is normally a month of heavy withdrawals and the past month set a record for the seven years the association has compiled figures. There was a net gain of 36,578 accounts.

G. B. SHAW CALLS PIDGIN ENGLISH CLASSIC OF FUTURE

Chinaman's 'No Can' Expresses Idea Perfectly, He Declares in Speech.

By the Associated Press.

LETCHWORTH, England, May 16.—"Pidgin English will be the classic English of the future," George Bernard Shaw said today in a speech at the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Letchworth Library.

"An Englishman says: 'I am sorry I cannot oblige you,'" Shaw said, "but a Chinaman says: 'No can,' and expresses himself perfectly," Shaw explained.

Shaw also took ironic exception to the Biblical reference to the "blessedness" of the poor.

"Until this country becomes determined that it shall never again have a poor man, woman or child in it," he said, "it won't be a country worth living in."

Speaking of libraries and books, Shaw said it was the British Museum library that made him a Communist. Books, he said, had been valuable to him in the study of speech.

"If you made me King of England," he said, "I might fall short of the ideal in many ways, but you wouldn't object to me on the ground that my speech was disgraceful. If you made me Archbishop of Canterbury, I could get away with the talking part. If you made me Lord Chief Justice, I could sentence you to death in a way that would do honor to the occasion.

"But the most fluent person in his own language is often helpless if he crosses a frontier. I'm a great man here. But when I get on the other side of the channel I'm less than any porter."

The affidavit was filed preliminary to a salvage claim. Haskell said he would soon attempt to recover the gold from the ship.

GOOD PRETZEL BENDER WANTED

California Baker Advertises for One in St. Louis.

The art of pretzel bending, that skill to which the traditional pretzel owes its shape, appears to be slipping into the category of the lost, along with the buggy making and blacksmithing. Witness the advertisement in the want ad columns of the Post-Dispatch today: "Pretzel Twister; must be experienced. Expenses paid to California. HUdson 1203W."

The advertisement was inserted by Frank B. Senkosky, 6152 Louisiana avenue, for a friend with a bakery in San Francisco, who has been unable to find an efficient pretzel bender in the Far West. Trusting that at least one artisan remained in the city that was once noted for the manufacture of beer, he had Senkosky place the ad for him here.

ACCEPTANCE OF NEUN'S PROPOSAL PREVENTS STRIKE

Committee of Three to Rule on Question Provided Members Are Chosen by May 31.

IF NOT, STATE BOARD WILL ACT

Evidence Expected to Be Submitted at Hearings on Operation Methods of Trolley Lines.

Arbitration of the wage dispute between the Public Service Co. and its union employes was finally agreed upon yesterday, following a second conference at City Hall between their representatives and Acting Mayor Neun, who brought them together in an effort to avert a street car strike.

Both sides pledged themselves to abide by the decision of the arbitrators, either a selected committee of three or the Missouri Public Service Commission.

First choice is the committee of three, the company to pick a man, the union to name one, and these two to select a third. The case will go to the Public Service Commission only in the event that agreement cannot be reached as to the third arbitrator under the first arrangement. The State Commission has publicly expressed a willingness to arbitrate if the dispute is submitted to it.

The point to be arbitrated involves wages only. As is known, the company proposed to reduce wages on June 1 up to 10 per cent monthly, contingent upon its ability to earn its interest requirements. The union employes contend there should be no reduction. The union also requests that the differential in the wages between one-man and two-man car operators be considered and adjusted. At present one-man car operators and bus drivers receive 7 cents an hour more than two-man crews, and the union contends that one-man operators are entitled to more.

Agreement for Year Likely.

Of primary importance is the decision to keep in full effect the existing agreement as to wages and working conditions pending arbitration, and thereafter subject only to changes in wages, if any. It is expected the arbitrators will fix the period of the new agreement, probably for one year. The existing agreement is under an award of the Missouri Public Service Commission, which in 1928 received for arbitration a demand for a wage increase by union employes of the Public Service Co. The agreement is dated May 20, 1929, and was renewed last year.

Each side is to name its selection as arbitrator within five days. These two then are to meet daily to select the third arbitrator. If it is found impossible to agree on a suitable third party by May 31, the dispute then will go to the Public Service Commission.

Representatives of the company and the union, with the aid of Acting Mayor Neun and Charles G. Wood, a conciliator of the United States Department of Labor, agreed definitely and finally to abitration after a five-hour conference behind closed doors. The meeting followed an executive session on Friday lasting more than three hours.

Those in Conference.

Participating in the conference for the company were President Stanley Clarke and General Manager Sam W. Greenland. The union representatives were Robert B. Armstrong, international union vice president; Harry M. Nelson, president; Matthew True, financial secretary, and G. E. Tipton, recording secretary of Local 788. William R. Schneider, attorney for the union, also attended.

The agreement to arbitrate was signed by Clarke and the four union officers. It is expected that a special meeting of the union

NEW STAR LARGER THAN SUN

Discoverer to Describe Stellar Body 175 Times Greater.

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 16.—Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director of the Dominion Astronomical Observatory at Victoria, B. C., will tell members of the Royal Astronomical Society at Toronto next week about the new double star of even greater mass than the Plaskett star, discovered by him nine years ago.

Dr. Plaskett said today he estimated the new pair of Stellar bodies to have a mass 175 times greater than the sun. The Plaskett star, he said, had a mass computed to be 160 times greater than the sun. Double stars are particular objects of astronomical attention because they can be weighed with some measure of exactness, Dr. Plaskett explained.

WAY FOUND TO SAVE U. S. $19,000,000

Hoover and Visiting Officials Decide to Cut Interior Department Budget.

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, Va., May 16.—A plan by which $17,000,000 to $19,000,000 may be saved in the expenditures of the Interior Department for this and next two fiscal years was worked out today by department officials and President Hoover at the Chief Executive's fishing lodge in the mountains nearby.

By eliminating some of the department's activities and deferring some work which may be necessary ultimately, but can be postponed for the present, Mr. Hoover hopes to make these savings.

It was estimated that $4,000,000 would be saved during the present fiscal year, $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 next year and $7,000,000 to $8,000,000 in the fiscal year 1933. The yearly budget of the department is about $85,000,000 including a $15,000,000 appropriation each year for the Hoover dam.

What departmental activities would be curtailed or postponed were not made known, although it was indicated that a detailed summary of plans would be announced within a few days.

Mr. Hoover arrived at his camp a little before lunch time after a leisurely trip from Washington. He left the White House about an hour after his regular scheduled time because of a prolonged medicine ball game.

President Hoover fished for nearly an hour immediately in front of his camp and caught several trout.

In the car with President Hoover on his trip to the camp were Edward H. Butler, publisher of the Buffalo Evening News, and Mrs. Butler and Senator Hastings (Rep.), Delaware.

Mrs. Hoover, accompanied by Mrs. Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr. and Interior Department officials arrived with their wives during the morning.

FARM BOARD PLAN IS TO MAKE WHEAT MEN SAVE SELVES

Apparently Has Decided They Must Be Taught Through Rock-Bottom Prices to Cut Acreage.

LEGGE POLICIES ARE ABANDONED

Theory Adopted That Only Way to Control the Grain Surplus Is to Eliminate It.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Federal Farm Board apparently has reached the conclusion that if the price of wheat is to be stabilized it must be accomplished not through controlling the surplus, but by eliminating it altogether. This decision involves abandonment of the policies inaugurated by former Chairman Alexander Legge, in support of which about $300,000,000 of Federal funds have been expended.

Members of Congress from Western states said today, after studying the letter in which Chairman James C. Stone set forth the board's reason for rejecting the latest surplus control plan, that it was evident the board now pins its hopes on acreage reduction, and that it believes this will only occur after the wheat growers have been punished severely in the form of rock-bottom prices for the 1931 crop.

The new policy of the board evidently is to consist in telling the wheat farmers that they must save themselves by planting about one-third less wheat. At the same time, the board takes the rather hopeless position that the farmers cannot be persuaded to do this voluntarily until they have suffered the painful consequences of raising a bumper crop.

"A Confession of Failure."

State Senator F. J. Wilmer of Washington, advanced a plan under which wheat growers would be induced to sign contracts binding themselves either to hold on their farms, or to turn over to an agency of the Farm Board, the percentage of their crops not needed for American consumption, and also to bind themseslves to reduce their future acreage to the extent deemed advisable by the board. The plan had the approval of President Hoover, although he had opposed similar plans in the past.

In rejecting the proposal, Stone stated that he did not believe a sufficient number of signers could be obtained to make the plan work, and that he did not believe the signers would obey the contracts after signing them. He stated that the solution of the problem consisted in reduced planting, but added that previous efforts to induce growers to limit their production in advance had failed.

Members of Congress from agricultural states said today that the letter apparently was a confession of failure, and predicted that new efforts would be made from outside the administration to find a milder solution of the problem than that of "starving the farmers into acreage reduction."

Senator Borah, (Rep.), Idaho, who is chairman of the committee appointed at the recent Progressive conference to study the agricultural situation, said today that he would call a meeting of the committee in July, and expected that definite legislative proposals for farm relief would be adopted by it. The committee includes Senators Brookhart, (Rep.), Iowa, and Shipstead, (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, in addition to about 20 farm leaders.

Borah Is For Action.

Borah said that Stone's letter appeared to cover the objections to the Wilmer plan very thoroughly, but observed that Stone had advanced no substitute, aside from his pessimistic remarks on the subject of reduced production. Borah was of the opinion that the progressive committee would be able to present something more immediate and tangible.

It will be recalled that farm relief was one of the chief issues of the presidential campaign of 1928. Gov. Smith, the Democratic nominee, supported the McNary-Haugen plan. Hoover, who was already on record against that plan and other plans advanced in Congress, promised that, if elected, he would present a solution. His program turned out to be the creation of the Federal Farm Board and the appropriation of $500,000,000 for its use. Most of this sum has been spent in attempts to stabilize prices which are now accepted as having failed.

With the approach of another presidential campaign, in which the farm problem is certain to figure, it is inevitable that political pressure will be exerted to compel the Farm Board to adopt a more active policy than that of waiting for the farmers to learn from painful experience the danger of raising too much wheat. Thus far the present board has shown a determination to resist all such pressure, and there are indications that the situation may culminate in a contest of wills between the President on one side and the board on the other.

Text of Arbitration Agreement Of Public Service Co. and Union

FOLLOWING is the text of the agreement signed yesterday by the Public Service Co. and its union employes, submitting their wage dispute to arbitration:

Whereas, St. Louis Public Service Co., pursuant to the provisions of Section One of the Findings and Award of the Public Service Commission of the State of Missouri, effective May 20, 1929, gave notice to Division No. 788 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America of its election to terminate said Findings and Award, pursuant to the terms and provisions of said section, at midnight on May 19, 1931; and

Whereas, A controversy with reference to rates of wages only, has arisen between said Company and those of its employes represented by said Division No. 788;

Now, Therefore, The undersigned do hereby mutually stipulate and agree to submit to the Board of Arbitration, composed in the manner hereinafter provided for, the following controversy:

The said company proposes that the rates of wages of its said employes be reduced 10 per cent. The employes contend that there should be no reduction in rates of wages, and that the proper differential in wages between two-men and one-man car operators be considered and adjusted with reference both to the differential and the question of whether the wages of said one-man operators should be increased or decreased.

The said award of the Public Service Commission of May 20, 1929, shall remain in full force and effect, subject only to such changes, if any, in rates of wages as the award herein provided for may determine.

Provided, however, that the arbitration clause in said existing award, insofar as it relates to the cost of operation, is in this arbitration being superseded by the method herein agreed to.

The Board of Arbitrators shall be chosen as follows: Each party hereto shall, within five days from the date hereof, select one arbitrator, those two to meet daily to agree upon a third arbitrator; and in the event they fail to agree upon such third arbitrator on or before midnight, May 31, 1931, then the Missouri Public Service Commission, sitting as a board of arbitration, shall be the exclusive arbitrator.

The company shall pay the expenses of its arbitrator and its witnesses; the said employes shall pay the expenses of their arbitrator and their witnesses. The fees of the third arbitrator, and all other expenses of arbitration, shall be divided and paid equally by the parties hereto.

The award of the Board of Arbitration shall be final and binding upon the parties to the arbitration.

The parties hereto respectfully request that the Board of Arbitration shall proceed forthwith to hear the parties, and use all reasonable diligence to complete the determination of the questions in controversy, in order that the award shall be made as promptly as possible.

In Witness Whereof, Said employes, represented by said Division No. 788 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, and the St. Louis Public Service Co., have hereunto affixed their signatures to duplicate copies hereof this 16th day of May, 1931.

P. S. Co. and Union Agree To Arbitrate Dispute

will be called Tuesday as a matter of formality to obtain the men's confirmation to the action of their officers. The men have followed the recommendations of their officers throughout the controversy.

Acting Mayor Neun took the initiative last Thursday to bring the company and its employes together after the men on Wednesday authorized their officers by almost unanimous vote to call them out on strike in the event the company put its proposed wage reduction into effect. The Acting Mayor, in summoning both sides to a conference, pointed out that a street car strike would be "a public calamity."

Evidence to Be Submitted.

When agreement is reached as to arbitrators, it is expected that a series of hearings will be held to receive evidence. The company is expected to submit matter bearing on its plea that its earnings are insufficient to pay interest on its debt unless operating expenses can be further reduced by the proposed wage cut.

The union, it is expected, will try to prove that the company's financial condition is not as bad as company officers describe, and that the present scale of wages can be paid. In recent discussion union leaders have asserted that the apparent shortage in earnings is due to the company having charged to its depreciation account last year $660,844 more than the $800,000 allowed by the Public Service Commission. In agreeing to abide by the decision of the arbitrators, even if to do so entails a cut in wages, the union men say they are convinced of the soundness of their position. In support of this they point to their ready agreement to arbitrate, either through a committee or the Public Service Commission, at the first meeting on Friday.

The daily wages of street car men working as two-man crews is $5.52. Bus drivers and one-man car operators receive $6.98. Other union wages paid by the company are: Shopmen, $5.12 a day; track laborers, $4.68, and material handlers, $3.96. The last two groups work nine hours daily, the others eight hours.

Straight-Out Arbitration.

The agreement signed yesterday means straight-out arbitration. It could result in a finding that would give the company all or part of the 10 per cent contingent wage reduction it has proposed, or in one which would continue the present wages with possibly some increase for operators of one-man cars.

In the conferences the union leaders insisted upon having arbitrators consider the wages of operators of one-man cars. The union thinks one-man operators should receive a higher wage. They now get 7 cents an hour more than operators on two-men cars.

Differences as to details after agreement had been reached as to the general principle of arbitration caused the conference Friday to extend over nearly three hours and to be continued yesterday for nearly five hours. It is understood the union at first insisted arbitration should be by the State Public Service Commission. The company favored a special board, probably expecting that method to take less time. It will be recalled that in the wage case submitted to the Public Service Commission in 1928 more than a year elapsed before the commission gave its award.

Objected to Continuing Wage.

The company, it is understood, objected to present wages being continued pending decision by the arbitrators. One of its proposals was that after June 1 10 per cent of the present wages be paid into an escrow fund to be disposed of in accordance with the award of the arbitrators. That is, if the company won it would keep the money, or as much of it as was needed for interest. It finally abandoned this position, to which it is understood the union was steadfastly opposed.

Immediately after the agreement for arbitration had been reached Neun placed a telephone call for Chairman Stahl of the Public Service Commission to ask him if the commission would act as arbitrator in case it is not possible to organize the three-man board. He was not able to reach Stahl at once, but previously in statement to the Post-Dispatch Stahl had said the commission would arbitrate if requested.

Third Choice to Be Difficult.

The agreement as to the Public Service Commission was reached because of the probable difficulty of selecting the third man of the special board. Obviously the man selected by each of the two parties to the controversy is likely to be favorable to the side selecting him, and in that case the decision might rest with the third man. It might be impossible for the two to agree on the third man.

The agreement was signed in triplicate, the original being retained by Acting Mayor Neun and each of the parties keeping a copy. Neun said that in case of failure to create the special board by May 31 he will file the agreement with the Public Service Commission as justification for it to assume the role of arbitration. The law provides that the Commission may arbitrate such a controversy when both sides have requested it and agreed to abide by the findings and award.

As a result of yesterday's agreement Clarke announced before leaving City Hall that the general notice of a wage reduction on June 1, recently posted on the company's bulletin boards, has been withdrawn The company has 3550 union and 1300 nonunion employes. The withdrawal of the proposed reduction affects Clarke, Greenland, and all officers and employes.

SPANISH RADICALS CALL ON REPUBLIC TO BANISH JESUITS

Extremists Urge "Real Revolution," Abolition of Army and Confiscation and Division of Land.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, May 16.—Extreme Left elements are demanding the expulsion of the Jesuits from Spain by provisional President Alcala Zamora, himself a Catholic.

The periodical "Crisol," representing the staunchest Republican circles, joined Communist organs tonight in demanding that the Jesuits be banished.

"The diplomatic flight of Cardinal Primate Segura gives the public the utmost satisfaction," the newspaper said. "This healthy measure, however, will constitute an injustice unless the Jesuits meet the same fate, and with the Jesuits must go other Archbishops and Bishops who have been distinguished for their hostility to the Republic. But above everything expulsion of the Jesuits constitutes the most peremptory demand of liberal and democratic Spain."

Several Confusing Aspects.

The religious situation presents confusing aspects. The departure of Archbishop Segura has been followed by reports that he will not return to Spain. The unconfirmed protest of the Vatican is reported to have demanded that the Government apologize for anti-Catholic depredations, reimburse the church for its losses and punish the guilty persons.

On the other hand, dignitaries of Archbishop Segura's church at Toledo have contributed about $100 to the provincial government for unemployment relief and have pledged obedience to constituted authority within ecclesiastical laws. Archbishop Vidal y Barraquer at Tarragona has promised his loyalty to the Republic as have lesser church officials elsewhere.

In addition, Communist elements with increasing bitterness are attacking the Republic as too conservative and urging that Spain have a "real revolution" to abolish the army, expel religious orders, confiscate property and divide the land.

A Capuchin priest, the Rev. Baltasar Matallana, has been arrested and held for investigation on order of Gov. Martinez of Aragon. The Governor said the priest during the recent disorders had sent telegrams to friends which tended to give rise to unwarranted alarm.

Monarchist Plot Reported.

The Government has also learned that before the recent disturbances some groups of Monarchists were concentrating arms and ammunition and apparently preparing to attempt a coup—perhaps for the return of former King Alfonso.

At any rate, the Republican government is a target for cross-fire between the Monarchists and extreme Lefts, each equally dissatisfied but for different reasons. One side wants Alfonso back, the other wants a regime similar to that of Russia. The bulk of middle-class Spaniards want peace. That factor and the church question may yet decide the fate of the Republican movement.

The present prospect is that the June elections will be held without Monarchist candidates. The Republican, Socialist and Labor parties have agreed to continue the triple alliance which overturned the monarchy in the April municipal elections. This means, it is thought, that the new national Assembly will be overwhelmingly composed of elements supporting the provisional republic.

Says Alfonso Left Only Realty.

Finance Minister Prieto said the Government had decided to impound the personal property of former King Alfonso because reports from Paris indicated Alfonso was planning to sell them. Prieto said the Government wished to keep the properties intact until the National Assembly decided the issue.

He added that Alfonso, in Paris, had deeded the properties to a friend who was instructed to sell them and return the money to him. Prieto also charged that Alfonso had converted virtually all his holdings in Spain into foreign securities before his flight and deposited the securities in banks at London and Zurich.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY PROGRAM 11 WEEKS AHEAD OF 1930'S

Projects Approved to May 1 Total $211,961,000; 31 States Have Obligated Funds.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Federal aid highway construction program, accelerated to aid the jobless, is now more than 11 weeks ahead of the 1930 schedule. The total cost of projects approved by the Bureau of Public Roads to May 1 was $211,961,000, representing $98,060,000 in Federal aid money, $68,140,000 in emergency funds appropriated by Congress and $45,761,000 of State money.

Thirty-one states have obligated all or practically all of their shares of the $80,000,000 Congress set aside to help relieve the unemployment situation. The balance of that fund remaining unobligated is approximately $7,000,000.

Projects approved in April exceeded $40,000,000, an amount equal to projects approved during the first four months of 1930. One of the most significant factors, the bureau pointed out today, is that the emergency funds have so increased the scope of the program that projects now under way or ready to be begun exceed the value of projects undertaken in 1929 which totaled approximately $75,000,000.

WILSON'S WIDOW MAY SEE POLISH MONUMENT UNVEILED

She Is Considering Journey to Poland to Witness July 4 Ceremony.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is considering journeying to Poland to witness the unveiling of a monumet to the War President on July 4.

Gen. John J. Pershing, now in Europe, also is expected to be present at Poznan—Old Posen—when high officials lead a national expression of Polish friendship for the United States.

Mrs. Wilson and other Americans attending will be the guests of the President. With them will be Ignace Jan Paderewski, Polish statesman and musician, donor of the $100,000 monument. Gutzon Borglum, executed the monument—a statue standing 20 feet. In his hand, President Wilson holds a scroll, symbol of the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Treaty of Versailles, which reestablished Poland. The statue will be in a little park which shortly after the war the Poles renamed Wilson Park.

NAUTILUS TO MAKE DIVE AT HIGH SPEED

If Severe Test Is Successful Wilkins Craft Will Leave for Provincetown.

(Copyright, 1931.)

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 16.—The submarine Nautilus, in which Sir Hubert Wilkins, Capt. Sloan Danenhower and 18 others will attempt to reach the North Pole, was under orders today to make the most severe diving test yet attempted.

It is the intention of Capt. Danenhower to take the boat out to sea Monday or Tuesday for a running dive in which the boat will submerge bow first while moving at high speed. Capt. Danenhower stated the maneuver would climax the series of sub-sea tests the Nautilus has been undergoing here.

He said: "The 90-foot dive made Friday proved the Nautilus' structural integrity. Her hull was shown to be watertight at that depth. Hence we have no apprehensions over taking her down without a tender to a depth of 150 to 200 feet. If that test proves successful we shall then be ready to go to Provincetown, Mass., for underwater standardization tests."

The Nautilus crew was in high spirits as the moment grew near for the start of the trans-Atlantic voyage, on their way to the North Pole.

Sir Hubert Wilkins arrived here this afternoon and after paying his respects to Capt. Wilson Brown, commander of the submarine base, said he was gratified with the manner in which the Nautilus is responding to service testing, and said:

"One can't help but regard them as a good augury for our approaching adventure in the Far North."

Steward Harry Rothschild was engaged in superintending the loading of three tons of food for the trans-Atlantic voyage. This huge load, it was stated, will help rather than hamper the Nautilus' dive.

FIRE IN NATIONAL CAPITOL

Small Blaze in Basement Quickly Extinguished, Attracts Crowd.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Firemen tonight quickly extinguished a small blaze in the north wing of the Capitol. A wooden wall of a janitor's storeroom in the basement was found burning about 9 o'clock by an officer of the Capitol police force. Dense clouds of smoke filled two long corridors in the basement. A crowd gathered on the Capitol plaza, but nothing of the fire could be seen from the outside of the building.

The fire recalled the spectacular blaze of early last year, which shrouded the Capitol dome in smoke and flames.

MONUMENT FOR REPUTED ORIGINAL "UNCLE SAM"

Unveiling in Troy, N. Y., in Honor of Samuel Wilson, Kindly Meat Dealer of 1812.

By the Associated Press.

TROY, N. Y., May 16.—A monument was unveiled today over the grave of Samuel Wilson, who, Trojans say, was the inspiration for the term "Uncle Sam," sobriquet for the United States Government.

A local committee, named by Mayor Burns to seek Federal recognition of the claim that "Uncle Sam" lived here, believed it was a step nearer its goal.

The monument was given by Mrs. Wilson Sheldon, widow of a Kansas City, Mo., lawyer, and a granddaughter of Samuel Wilson. Mrs. Sheldon is 81 years old and lives in Los Angeles.

The granite monument bears an inscription in which the claim of Wilson's descendants and the city of Troy is set forth briefly.

Wilson came to Troy from New Hampshire in his youth. He died here July 31, 1854, at the age of 88, and was buried in Oakwood Cemetery, overlooking the city.

During the War of 1812, Wilson, then operated a slaughter house, became associated with Elbert Anderson, a Government contractor. Wilson was given a sub-contract to supply meat for the armies stationed at Greenbush, a few miles from Troy, and at Newburgh, N. Y.

Wilson was tall, spare and of kindly visage, like the "Uncle Sam" of the cartoon. He was known as "Uncle Sam' in his own neighborhood. Troy solders who saw the initials "U. S." on his boxes and casks at the army posts made it known that "Uncle Sam" was feeding the army. Soon everything belonging to the Government came to be known as "Uncle Sam's."

In newspaper stories written the following year there was reference to "Uncle Sam's men."

RENA OWNERS WILLING TO SELL FOR $2,000,000

This Would Have to Be Approved by Voters—Bixby Says Enterprise Cost 2,300,000.

Spokesmen for the National Ex- ibition Co., owners of The Arena, he huge conventiion, exposition nd show building at 5700 Oakland venue, looked with favor yesterday on Mayor Miller's proposal that he city buy the place. It was sug- ested that $2,000,000 might be an cceptable price. A new bond issue s the only apparent means by which the city could finance the urchase.

The Mayor did not discuss price r financing in his letter propos- he idea, which he sent to the hamber of Commerce and the Progress Council from New York efore sailing for Paris on Friday. He declared that St. Louis could ive stronger competition to other ities in seeking large conventions nd exhibitions if The Arena were unicipally rather than privately wned.

Officers Glad to Sell.

The Arena's spokesmen and convention and civic workers joined in this opinion yesterday, saying the city would not be under the neces- ity of earning money on the investment and would not have to charge such high rentals. For this eason, and because the enterprise s designed for the purpose of ivic advancement, officers of The Arena said they would be glad to ell. The people would have opportunity to pass on the proposal if bond issue were submitted.

Ben G. Brinkman is president of he National Exhibition Co., having an investment in it placed by ssociates at $1,500,000. He controls it through ownership of about 5,000 of the 100,000 shares of ommon or voting stock.

In Brinkman's absence from the ity, Harold M. Bixby, one of the ive members of an Executive ommittee managing The Arena, aid the company would sell to the ity "at a price that would not how a profit to any one; $2,000,- 00 would cover it." Bixby said the otal cost of the enterprise was bout $2,300,000 consisting of $1,- 00,000 for the huge Arena structure and adjoining exhibition build- s, $200,000 for equipment and $400,000 net for the 54-acre site.

How Company Was Financed.

The company was financed in the following manner, as described by Bixby:

The now defunct brokerage firm of Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. took over a $750,000 first mortgage bond issue for approximately par, paying cash. It did ot sell these bonds to customers but they were held by the Anco Investment Co., a related corporation.

The Park Circuit & Realty Co., which is owned by Brinkman, took a $350,000 issue of debentures.

Investors, including the leading promoters of the business and contractors on the buildings, subscribed to $687,100 in preferred stock, consisting of 6871 shares at $100 par. Many interests hold this stock, including $150,000 to $200,000 held by contractors on the buildings who took the stock in lieu of cash as part payment.

100,000 Shares of Common.

In addition, there are 100,000 shares of common stock, at $10 par. One share of common was given as a bonus with each share of preferred, and virtually all f the remainder was retained y Brinkman in exchange for what he put into the deal.

Brinkman's investment was figured as follows: $750,000 for the leasehold and business of the adjacent Forest Park Highlands, which was thrown in with The Arena; $250,000 to $300,000 for the value of 14 acres of The Arena site, and $150,000 cash subscribed. In exchange for this he got the debenture issue, 100,000 of the preferred stock and the bulk of the common stock.

To provide additional cash, 15 men, whose names Bixby did not wish to disclose, indorsed notes for $600,000 at six St. Louis

"Income" Bonds Proposed.

Next Wednesday the National Exhibition Co. will have a stockholders' meeting to consider authorizing a new issue of $3,000,000 in "income" bonds, a type of security which would be junior to the debentures and senior to the preferred stock, and which would not pay interest unless earned and declared by the directors. Of this, Bixby said, $1,100,000 would be held in the treasury for possible future use in taking up the first mortgage bonds and the debentures. In addition, Bixby explained, about $1,- 47,100 of the new bonds would be

ARENA OWNERS WILLING TO SELL FOR $2,000,000

This Would Have to Be Approved by Voters—Bixby Says Enterprise Cost 2,-300,000.

Spokesmen for the National Exhibition Co., owners of The Arena, the huge conventiion, exposition and show building at 5700 Oakland avenue, looked with favor yesterday on Mayor Miller's proposal that the city buy the place. It was suggested that $2,000,000 might be an acceptable price. A new bond issue is the only apparent means by which the city could finance the purchase.

The Mayor did not discuss price or financing in his letter proposing the idea, which he sent to the Chamber of Commerce and the Progress Council from New York before sailing for Paris on Friday. He declared that St. Louis could give stronger competition to other cities in seeking large conventions and exhibitions if The Arena were municipally rather than privately owned.

Officers Glad to Sell.

The Arena's spokesmen and convention and civic workers joined in this opinion yesterday, saying the city would not be under the necessity of earning money on the investment and would not have to charge such high rentals. For this reason, and because the enterprise is designed for the purpose of civic advancement, officers of The Arena said they would be glad to sell. The people would have opportunity to pass on the proposal if a bond issue were submitted.

Ben G. Brinkman is president of the National Exhibition Co., having an investment in it placed by associates at $1,500,000. He controls it through ownership of about 55,000 of the 100,000 shares of common or voting stock.

In Brinkman's absence from the city, Harold M. Bixby, one of the five members of an Executive Committee managing The Arena, said the company would sell to the city "at a price that would not show a profit to any one; $2,000,000 would cover it." Bixby said the total cost of the enterprise was about $2,300,000 consisting of $1,700,000 for the huge Arena structure and adjoining exhibition buildings, $200,000 for equipment and $400,000 net for the 54-acre site.

How Company Was Financed.

The company was financed in the following manner, as described by Bixby:

The now defunct brokerage firm of Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. took over a $750,000 first mortgage bond issue for approximately par, paying cash. It did not sell these bonds to customers but they were held by the Anco Investment Co., a related corporation.

The Park Circuit & Realty Co., which is owned by Brinkman, took a $550,000 issue of debentures.

Investors, including the leading promoters of the business and contractors on the buildings, subscribed to $687,100 in preferred stock, consisting of 6871 shares at $100 par. Many interests hold this stock, including $150,000 to $200,000 held by contractors on the buildings who took the stock in lieu of cash as part payment.

100,000 Shares of Common.

In addition, there are 100,000 shares of common stock, at $10 par. One share of common was given as a bonus with each share of preferred, and virtually all of the remainder was retained by Brinkman in exchange for what he put into the deal.

Brinkman's investment was figured as follows: $750,000 for the leasehold and business of the adjacent Forest Park Highlands, which was thrown in with The Arena; $250,000 to $300,000 for the value of 14 acres of The Arena site, and $150,000 cash subscribed. In exchange for this he got the debenture issue, $100,000 of the preferred stock and the bulk of the common stock.

To provide additional cash, 15 men, whose names Bixby did not wish to disclose, indorsed notes for $600,000 at six St. Louis

"Income" Bonds Proposed.

Next Wednesday the National Exhibition Co. will have a stockholders' meeting to consider authorizing a new issue of $3,000,000 in "income" bonds, a type of security which would be junior to the debentures and senior to the preferred stock, and which would not pay interest unless earned and declared by the directors. Of this, Bixby said, $1,100,000 would be held in the treasury for possible future use in taking up the first mortgage bonds and the debentures. In addition, Bixby explained, about $1,-847,100 of the new bonds would be issued, as follows: $687,100 to take up the preferred stock, $600,000 to pay off the personal notes for cash advanced, $50,000 to repay cash advanced by the Executive Committee, and $210,000 in unpaid obligations to contractors and others.

Neither the preferred nor common stock has paid dividends, but the interest on the mortgage bonds and debentures has been met and Bixby said there was no prospect of a default on interest. The Arena was opened for the National Dairy Show in October, 1929. Bixby said it made money the first year, which was plowed into the investment, but since then it has been losing money. It has charged as much as $2500 a day in rental.

Kiel Approves the Sale.

Former Mayor Kiel, a director of the National Exhibition Co. and partner in the Boaz-Kiel Construction Co., which held the general construction contract, said his company's fee for building was placed at $50,000, although the charge should have been about $200,000 and that instead of making the fee, Boaz-Kiel had to pay $125,000 in construction bills. In reimbursement it took $150,000 in preferred stock and $25,000 in notes. His contract amounted to about $180,000. Subcontractors received about $75,000 in preferred stock and notes, he related.

Kiel approved the idea of a sale to the city, saying the city needed The Arena and that it could be had at a bargain. F. W. A. Vesper, a member of the Executive Committee and one of the promoters of the enterprise, said he favored the purchase as a desirable thing for the city. The site has increased in value by The Arena's presence, he stated.

Kinsey Is Non-Commital.

Charles Hatfield, secretary of the Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau, indorsed Mayor Miller's purchase proposal. He declared the projected Municipal Auditorium downtown would still be needed, but he repeated his bureau's argument that the plan should be changed to reduce the seating capacity of the big hall, which the city intended to hold 12,000 persons.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, who has insisted that the 12,000-seat hall would not duplicate the usefulness of The Arena, was not prepared to commit himself about the purchase of The Arena, but expressed appreciation of its value to the community. He said it would be a good idea to reconsider the whole idea of handling conventions in the light of present conditions.

Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the Chamber of Commerce, announced that the Mayor's request for a chamber committee to consider The Arena purchase would be complied with, but withheld comment on the desirability of the purchase.

Mayor Miller a Director.

Sidney R. Baer, first vice president of the Progress Council, which was formed to promote downtown interests, also would not comment on the desirability of the idea, but repeated the council's wish, corresponding to the Convention Bureau's, to reduce the seating capacity of the Municipal Auditorium.

Mayor Miller is a director of the National Exhibition Co., having bought $5000 of the preferred stock. Bixby and Vesper said no one had asked him to propose the purchase. In his letter to the Chamber of Commerce and Progress Council, Mayor Miller praised the facilities of The Arena and said the city needed it urgently in obtaining large gatherings. He urged that civic interests unite in consummating his suggestion. He wrote: "With The Arena to house the big conventions and expositions and a downtown auditorium and soldiers' memorial, this city would be ideally situated to compete for every convention and exposition held in the United States."

The Mayor did not refer to a possible change in the Municipal Auditorium design or say whether he favored combining the auditorium and soldiers' memorial. Secretary Hatfield of the Convention Bureau renewed a suggestion that the city conserve funds by combining these two structures. President Kinsey expressed the belief that they should be kept separate.

Auditorium Situation.

The 1923 bond issue provided $6,000,000 for Memorial Plaza and a soldiers' memorial structure thereon, with the intention that about $1,000,000 should be used for the latter. It also provided $5,-000,000 for acquisition of a site and erection thereon of a "municipal auditorium and community center building."

The city has acquired by direct purchase most of the site of the plaza, including the proposed auditorium site at Fourteenth and Market streets, paying for the whole with plaza bond money. Condemnation proceedings covering the whole are pending. Circuit Judge Bader recently ruled, as Mayor Miller's letter pointed out, that benefit taxes could not be assessed to help pay for the plaza property. The land will cost virtually all of the $6,000,000 plaza bond fund, and the city had counted on the benefit levy to pay for the memorial structure. The Mayor's letter asserted that this court decision would make a delay of several years in building the memorial and the auditorium inevitable.

Cost of the complete auditorium building, as planned by the city, would be considerably more than the $5,000,000 bond item for that purpose. Last winter an ordinance was prepared to build the large hall and exhibition space portion, leaving the interior of the music hall and kindred section unfinished. This scheme was abandoned as a result of delay awaiting Judge Bader's decision. The question has been raised but not settled whether the auditorium site should not be paid for from the auditorium fund, which would leave insufficient money to erect the sort of auditorium city officials have had in mind, but would leave enough in the other item to erect the decorative but nonutilitarian memorial.

cent on the ticket on the second horse, and 15 per cent on the ticket on the third horse. The remaining 10 per cent was to be distributed among holders of tickets on other horses entered in the race, whether they ran or not.

The tickets were prepared in the form of "associated memberships" in the Veterans' Association, and bore the legend, "This certificate certifies that the bearer has purchased an associated membership in this association and is entitled to all privileges until June 1, 1931," with the facsimile signature of C. M. Andrews, auditor. The scheme was not indorsed by the National Veterans' Association.

The Disabled Veterans' Association of Phoenix issued this statement: "The directors of the Association made an effort to call off the sale of tickets and refund the money, but as thousands of certificates were not returned or remitted for, this was obviously impossible. It was then decided to carry out the original plan and distribute the money received. The association has stood the promotion loss, which was a heavy one."

Sale of lottery tickets, a violation of postal regulations, is also considered by St. Louis police to be a violation of the statute governing bookmakers and others dealing in bets or pools "on the result of any trial or contest of skill, speed or power of endurance of man or beast."

BOAT RIDE, LUNCHEON FOR HARVARD VISITORS

Performance of Melodrama on the River Climax of the Day's Entertainment.

St. Louis alumni and former students of Harvard University were hosts yesterday to the visiting members of the Associated Harvard Clubs, most of whom remained for the week-end festivities after Friday night's annual banquet.

Some of the visitors will remain in the city today, and will be the guests of local classmates or friends of university days.

Yesterday, the third day of the thirty-third annual gathering, began with a drive around the city, for those who cared to arise before the starting time, 9 a. m.

Two hours later, the crimson hatbands of the Harvard men, whose classes cover a range of more than half-century, were brightening Washington avenue, as the pavement procession, two abreast, moved toward the Levee. The city harboar boat, Erastus Wells received the pilgrimage as they completed their descent of the cobblestones.

Leaving the Levee about noon the "Rastus" cruised the river until 1 p. m., and then tied up near the Anheuser - Busch establishment. Luncheon was served at the Bevo plant, and the guests remained there until 2:30, when they returned to the harbor boat and proceeded down the driver to Hillcrest Country Club, near the mouth of the Meramec River.

The Harvard men last night witnessed Prof. Roland G. Usher's "Deathless Melodrama—Scrubwater Is Thicker Than Blood, or Lowell (House) at Harvard."

Prof. Usher's "Horrific Meller" poked broad fun at professors, prohibition, and the new Harvard "House System." It was given on the Mississippi River on a real old-time show-boat, the Cotton Blossom No. 2, which has been plying rivers of the Middle West for 53 years. The show followed an open-air dinner at the Hillcrest Country Club, about 20 miles south of St. Louis.

The "stupendous cast" included Thomas E. Powe, class of '95, as the false Prof. Kittredge; Rodney M. Fairfield, '23, as President Lowell; Emanuel Grossman, '96, as himself; George D. Markham, '81, Albert T. Perkins, '87, and Edward Mallinckrodt Jr., '00, as overseers; Samuel P. Goddard, '00, as the policeman; Gordon M. Browne, '16, as Sherlock Holmes; Dr. John Green, '94, as Dr. Watson; Paul Bliss, '13, as the real Prof. Kittredge; John G. Flint, '23, as the ghost of John Harvard; Richard Morey Jr., '27, as the corpse; Charles Lumaghi, '28; Carroll Sibley, '27; Frederick Swarts, '26, and R. L. Hobbs, '17, as students.

STATE SENATOR, 3 OTHERS INDICTED IN BANK FAILURE

James H. Felts and Officers of Defunct Johnston City (Ill.) Depository Named in Writs.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., May 16.—State Senator James H. Felts, Democrat, of the Fiftieth District, and three other executives of the defunct Citizens' State Bank of Johnston City, were indicted here this afternoon in connection with the failure of that bank in April, 1930.

With Felts in two indictments were named W. H. Grant, his brother-in-law, and president of the bank, and Lorenzo D. Hobbs, cashier. One indictment which also names Frank Wente, a director, charges them with embezzlement by accepting deposits when the bank was allegedly insolvent and the other charges them with conspiracy to embezzle $38,000 from the bank. That indictment charges that the three executives met at the bank Jan. 11, 1930, and without making application for loans and without securing the approval of the other directors took $38,-000 of the bank's money. As security for the money they placed in the bank their personal notes, which the grand jury charges are worthless.

Wente is named with the other three in the indictment charging embezzlement. Hobbs was indicted alone for embezzlement by overdrawing his account and was named in still another indictment charging embezzlement of $1890 from a fund subscribed by citizens for relief of tornado victims.

Indictments said to have been originally returned in investigations of three other closed banks in Williamson County were reported to have been reconsidered by the grand jurors during an hour's session this afternoon.

Felts who also is editor of the Illinois Baptist State Association, denied he had done anything wrong in connection with his bank dealings and asserted he would prove his innocence of the charge. He has been connected with the First Baptist Church here as its treasurer for more than 25 years and has just completed a term as City Commissioner of Marion. Grant is a retired farmer who moved to Johnston City to take up banking, Hobbs is a former mine superintendent and Wente a mine engineer.

NUMBER OF DIVORCE SUITS HERE FALLS OFF 7 PER CENT

Total of 561 to Be Heard at June Term Smaller Than Last Year's Figure, Clerk Reports.

A decline of about 7 per cent in the number of divorce suits filed in St. Louis was noted yesterday in the Circuit Clerk's office with the expiration of time for filing suits to the next term of court, which opens June 1.

The filing period for the June term began March 16, during which 1850 suits were filed, being 166 fewer than for the corresponding term last year. The difference is represented by the falling off in divorce petitions, it was stated by Circuit Clerk John Schmoll.

He said he was unable to account for the apparent shortage of divorces unless it was due to economic conditions. A comparison with figures of previous terms show that damage suits for the new term kept pace with similar filings for previous terms. The number of new damage actions total 1050, most of them for personal injuries growing out of either street car or motor vehicle accidents. The number of divorce cases is 561.

Social Research Group to Tell Hoover of Startling Changes

Committee of Experts Notes Basic Modifications in Religion, Investment, Education, Labor, Health Habits and Home Life.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Widespread changes in the American social structure were noted today in the review of President Hoover's Research Committee on Social Trends. Digging into every stratum of the social order, the committee found these changes in religion, investment, education, labor, health-habits and home life.

Dr. W. F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago, research director, said that, after 17 months of scooping up facts, the committee was able to see bottom for the first time.

Education, the committee found, above all else, had wrought the greatest change in the social structure. "Education has caused changes all the while in our attitudes toward science, religion, authority, individualism and co-operation," Ogburn said. "These in turn modify our basic social structure."

Dr. Ogburn said the committee expected to present its report to President Hoover early in 1932. The magnitude of the program caused the fact-finding to be carried on in 28 subjects, running the gauntlet of mechanical inventions, economics, population and racial trends on through to social and public welfare, rural and urban trends on through to law and government.

Discussing the changes in earning a living, Dr. Ogburn said: "The investment of money had reached new classes. Employer-employe relationships are changing and the tactics and policies of organized wage earners are profoundly modified. Woman are found in increasing numbers in more occupations."

These "instigators of change," the committee found, were inventions and scientific discoveries; the utilization of lands, forests, waters and mineral resources.

Reaching further, the "forces of change have touched religion, bringing changes in belief, in organization and in activities of churches."

"In the end," Dr. Ogburn said, "are the changes in the ways in which we try to deal with problems caused by these changes."

Wesley C. Mitchel of Columbia University is chairman of the Research Committee. The members are: Dr. Ogburn, Charles E. Merriam, University of Chicago; Shelby M. Harrison of the Russell Sage Foundation; Dr. Alice Hamilton of Harvard, and Howard W. Odum, director of social sciences of the 1933 Chicago World's Fair.

SAYS WATERMELONS, TOBACCO AND CORN CAME FROM CHINA

Former Editor of Peiping Paper Addresses Earlham Institute of Polity.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Ind., May 16.—The Chinese were using tobacco long before Columbus discovered America, the audience at the Earlham Institute of Polity was told today by Grover Clark of New York, formerly editor of the Peiping Leader and director of the China Famine Relief Commission.

Corn likewise is a Chinese product, Clark said, and also was brought to America by those tribes which migrated from Asia by way of Bering Strait and became American Indians.

"Watermelons also had their origin in old Cathay," Clark said. "They were taken back by travelers and introduced in Greece and thence to other parts of the world."

BANKER CONVICTED OF MAKING FALSE REPORT

W. B. Davis, Asheville, N. C., Found Guilty, Two Co-Defendants Acquitted.

By the Associated Press.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 16.—Wallace B. Davis, former president of the defunct Central Bank and Trust Co., was convicted by a jury here to day of making a false report of the bank's condition and publishing it with intent to deceive the public. Dr. J. A. Sinclair and C. N. Brown, former directors, who were co-defendants, were acquitted.

Sentence was not passed on Davis. The statute provides a maximum punishment of $10,000 fine or 30 days' imprisonment, or both.

Davis was acquitted of making a false report to deceive the State Corporation Commission, which had supervision of the bank. Brown and Sinclair were tried on the same charge.

Davis is a central figure in numerous cases in both State and Federal courts growing out of the failure of several banks in this vicinity last fall.

Twenty-four other men, including Col. Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher, are scheduled to be tried at the special term of court here.

Maj. Fred C. Husman, former officer in the National Guard, who disappeared 13 years ago, returned to St. Louis two weeks ago, it was learned yesterday.

He is staying at the home of a brother-in-law, 4669 Kossuth avenue, with his wife, and has declined to say where he has been, save that from April, 1918, until 1920, he was "in Government Service." Maj. Husman served in the Spanish-American War, the Filipino Insurrection, on the Mexican border in 1916 and in the World War.

He was divorced by his first wife in 1919, and in the course of a 15,000-mile automobile trip, met his present wife, whom he married in the State of Washington. Investigation at the time he disappeared disclosed from the War Department only the information that he had been honorably discharged.

GRAND GROUP ADVOCATES REPEAL OF WIDENING PLAN

Resolution Urges City-Wide Tax for Major Improvement; Mass Meeting at Armory.

A resolution asking the Board of Aldermen to repeal an ordinance providing for the widening of Grand boulevard from Magnolia avenue to Lawton avenue, was adopted by the Grand Boulevard Association last night, at a mass meeting at the Armory.

The resolution stated the members felt a major improvement should be paid for by a city-wide tax and asserted that because of the narrow strip between Lindell boulevard and Finney avenue, the proposed widening would not reduce congestion. Taxpayers, according to the resolution, have been "taxed to the breaking point," for special improvements during the last five years.

GALE F. JOHNSTON WILL HEAD FUND CAMPAIGN

Sidney Maestre Announces Chairman for Tenth Annual Drive in Fall.

Gale F. Johnston, chairman of the commercial division of the Community Fund campaign last November, has been appointed general chairman and will direct all phases of the Community Fund's tenth annual campaign next autumn.

Johnston's appointment was announced yesterday by Sidney Maestre, president of the fund, following official action by the executive committee. Maestre commended Johnston for his organizing ability and leadership and pointed out that he had played an increasingly important part in the drives in which he has participated. Maestre himself was general chairman last year.

"Our new chairman has worked his way up virtually from the ranks," Maestre said, "and has made good in every task that was assigned to him in the drives. It was generally felt that he was the outstanding man to lead the tenth anniversary campaign."

Johnston is 32 years old and is the youngest man ever to serve in the general chairmanship of the Community Fund campaign. He is a divisional sales manager for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and manager of this company's business in seven southwestern states. He is a graduate of Princeton University, class of 1924.

Johnston was born in Jonesburg, Mo., and grew up at Montgomery City, where he purchased and conducted a dairy company when he was 15 years old. Upon his graduation from high school, he purchased an interest in the Daily and Weekly Intelligencer at Mexico, Mo., and became its editor. At that time he was the youngest editor of a daily newspaper in America. During the war, he served as a naval aviator, later going to Princeton.

While at Princeton he was president of the Princeton Debating Association, the Speakers' Association, the International Politics Club, the Press Club and the American Whig Society. The Whig Society founded by James Madison in 1762 and is the oldest public speaking organization in the United States.

After his graduation, Johnston returned to Mexico, repurchased the Intelligencer and became president and publisher. He entered the insurance business in St. Louis in 1925. Since then he has been active in social agency work. He is president of the Big Brother Organization, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital member of the Board of Directors of the Dunn Memorial Hotel for Boys and of the Downtwon Y. M. C .A.

In 1926, Johnston married Miss Miriam Rand; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Rand of St. Louis. They have two children.

State Values Mrs. Sophie Crow's Property at $530,000.

A State inheritance tax of $13,533 was assessed against the estate of Mrs. Sophie M. Crow, 4429 Forest Park boulevard, who died July 2, 1929. The assessment was reported yesterday by Henry A. Baker as appraiser. He found the net value of Mrs. Crow's estate to be $530,860.

Under her will Edward Gay Crow and five grandchildren are the principal beneficiaries. The son's share is held in trust.

$176,000,000 OF CHICAGO TAXES UNPAID LAST DAY

More Than Half of the Property in City Faces Forced Sale Within Three Months.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Bankers and legislators today sought means to save the city from a financial crisis. Although tax paying was thrown more than a year behind through a new system of assessment, the final day for the payment of $276,000,000 for 1929 taxes found $176,000,000 unpaid. On this delinquent charge, property owners must pay 1 per cent a month until accounts are balanced, and at the end of three months, if still delinquent, the realty will be listed for tax sale.

Bankers have purchased already $300,000,000 worth of tax warrants to help the municipality pay current wage bills. But, with nonpayment of fresh levies and advice from certain organizations to property owners not to pay on the ground that the recent assessment was illegal, warning was issued by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank, that more vouchers cannot be marketed, even at the high rate of 6 per cent. Appeals have been made to the State Assembly to change the laws so that a better system of levying taxes might be enacted.

Attorney-General's Statement.

Attorney-General Oscar E. Carlstrom said: "The City of Chicago and the County of Cook, with its minor taxing subdivisions, are facing a crisis of such desperate character with respect to public finances and taxes, that some action must be conceived and executed without delay to avoid a complete disaster."

The Midwestern metropolis and its multiple taxing bodies have leaped from crisis to crisis since the State Tax Commission, discovering "glaring inequalities" in the 1927 assessments, ordered a reappraisal. Tax collections fell two years behind, plunging city, county and State alike into financial straits, rendering payday for school teachers and other municipal employes uncertain from month to month and deferring payment of mature bond issues.

Carlstrom came forward today with a suggestion for emergency relief. "The city's present unexhausted bonding power," the Attorney-General explained, "is approximately $30,000,000. Taking the full value for the assessed value would increase that bonding power nearly $375,000,000, making possible the amortization of practically the whole of the 1930 assessment by retiring the anticipation warrants, paying the State tax and distributing that assessment over a period of 20 years." The bonds authorized would be limited to retiring anticipation warrants and absorbing existing deficits.

The Chicago Real Estate Board immediately indorsed Carlstrom's suggestion. The board supported emergency legislation at Springfield which would extend the delinquency date on 1929 tax payments to July 1 and allow quarterly payments on the installment plan.

Meanwhile the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, regarding the existing tax system as evil, has urged property owners not to pay 1929 taxes pending the outcome of litigation it has started.

One of the principal remedial steps contemplated is the consolidation of taxing bodies in Cook County, where now there are approximately 30 such bodies, presided over by a three-man Board of Assessors and a similar Board of Review. Under the projected amendment township Assessors would be abolished and one Assessor would head the taxing body.

SUIT TO KEEP OPEN ON SUNDAY

Market Owners Seek to Enjoin Enforcement of Ordinance.

Stanley Molasky and Harry Weinberg, owners of markets in the vicinity of Thirteenth and O'Fallon streets, filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday to enjoin the Police Department from enforcing an ordinance requiring grocery stores and meat shops to stay closed on Sunday. It permits delicatessens to remain open for the sale of "cooked provisions."

Edward K. Schwartz, attorney for petitioners, contends the ordinance is unconstitutional, as it contains an element of class legislation. He said many customers of his clients are not equipped with storage facilities to keep meat, vegetables and other articles of food fresh for Sunday use, and it is necessary for them to buy such articles for immediate use. The suit was assigned to Judge Rosskopf for trial.

A delegation from the Wichita (Kan.) Chamber of Commerce visited St. Louis yesterday to discuss with local business men furtherance of a financial and business relationship between the two cities.

At a luncheon meeting at Hotel Statler it was agreed that both organizations should analyze conditions to learn the best manner in which to strength relationships. The completion of a highway from St. Louis to Wichita and the repair of a stretch of road causing tourists to be detoured between Wichita and St. Louis were recommended.

Members of the visiting delegation were: E. A. Watkins, John Kirkwood, Frank Dunn, L. S. Seymour and H. M. Van Anken.

Barring Negro in Primary Upheld.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—The Circuit Court of Appeals today sustained a decision of the Federal District Court of Western Texas that a political party had a right to regulate its primary elections. The ruling was given in the case of L. A. Nixon, against James Condon and C. H. Kollein, in which Nixon asserted he was not permitted to vote in the 1928 Democratic primary election solely because he is a Negro.

List of Worthy Charities.

A list of charities deemed worthy of indorsement is being prepared by the Charities Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce under the direction of George Markham, and will soon be sent out to business men of the city. Information regarding officers, organization and financial conditions of each of the charities will be sought in order to determine which are worthy.

Husband's Psychological Alarm Clock Sends His Wife to Court.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 16.—Jesse A. Smith invented a machine to sound every hour during his sleep, with affirmative psychological suggestions to his subconscious mind. Before long, Mrs. Smith began to get an idea that she wanted a divorce.

"I don't know what the automatic phonograph invention was except that it was supposed to work on my husband's subconscious mind," Mrs. Smith told Superior Judge Henry M. Willis. "He would wind it up before he went to sleep and it would go off every hour right by his bed." The divorce was granted.

MITTEN MANAGEMENT UNDER FIRE IN BUFFALO

City Contesting 10-Cent Fare Application and $100,000 a Year Fee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 16.—The ousting of Mitten Management, Inc., from the affairs of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. is being studied by civic and business leaders of this city, where Mitten Management has been under fire for 10 years.

Virtually every important group in Buffalo, including the City Council, has assailed the International Railway Co., which operates street railways here under Mitten Management. At present the city is contesting an application of the International for a 10-cent fare. Several court actions, started by City Council to compel the company to fulfill its obligation of paving streets between the rails, are now pending. At present three tokens are sold for 25 cents.

The charge that Buffalo is a dumping ground for outworn and obsolete street cars and busses discarded in Philadelphia has been made by members of Council, and the Mitten Management fee has been termed excessive and a drain on the resources of the company. Many traffic accidents have been attributed to faulty paving and road beds.

The contest over the fare increase is being argued in the Federal Court and the proceeding is now in its second year. Briefs were filed yesterday by city and company attorneys and a decision is not expected before fall.

During hearings on the application, Mitten Management was under fire constantly. City Attorneys charged that the $100,000 a year paid to it was excessive and was a drain on the resources of the company and the amount was not commensurate with services performed. The Mitten fee is figured on the basis of 1 per cent of the gross revenue.

Charles L. Feldman, City Corporation Counsel, who has taken an active part in the litigation, charged that Mitten management has "gouged" the Buffalo public ever since it took over the I. R. C. in 1921.

"The city has always maintained that the policies and methods of Mitten Management were injurious to services rendered by the International," he said.

"Our position in the present rate case is that Mitten Management is a liability rather than an asset and must not be charged against the car riders of Buffalo.

"We have insisted in all relations and rate cases with the I. R. C. that payments made by the company to Mitten Management are an improper and illegal diversion of the company's earnings.

"These payments have been and are now entirely unnecessary to operation of the railway system and represent a waste both for the company and the public."

While Mitten Management exacts one cent out of every dollar taken in by the I. R. C., its officials are paid salaries and expenses for any work they might do here. In 1926 the bill for these salaries and expenses over and above the 1 per cent cut amounted to approximately $100,000.

The city has been attempting to get trolleys to the new terminal of the New York Central Railroad but has been unsuccessful. The company operates a "mushroom" bus line to the terminal and ignores any direction to build a trolley line.

LIQUOR IS MINOR FACTOR IN GANGS, MITCHELL INSISTS

Attorney-General Says Inefficient State Officers and a Dormant Public Permit Crime Anyhow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Illegal traffic in liquor was said tonight by Attorney-General Mitchell to provide "on an average not over 20 per cent" of the revenues of organized gangsters prosecuted recently for income tax violations.

"This has been diminishing," he continued, "and if this be an indication of general conditions, the removal of illicit liquor traffic as a source of revenue would not end gangsterism and racketeering."

Speaking over the Columbia Broadcasting System in the national radio forum arranged by the Washington Star, the Attorney-General said that "in one community we know of 48 different kinds of rackets."

"Wherever there is inefficiency or corruption on the part of State authorities, demands are made on the Federal government to intervene," he added.

"Dealing with organized crime is largely a local problem. These criminal gangs commit 10 violations of state law to one violation of a Federal statute. Nevertheless this department has gone a considerable way to help break down these criminal organizations.

"We are not through but until state police and magistrates, stimulated by public opinion, take hold of this problem it will not be solved."

"Control by U. S. Dubious."

Discussing anti-trust matters, the Attorney-General mentioned "natural resources such as oil and minerals" and said: "Any measure which permits combinations to restrain production seems to lead to the necessity of protecting the public by governmental supervision of the combination, and that is a dubious proposal.

"Possibly Congress might consider sympathetically some measure permitting a combination to limit production of natural resources as an emergency matter to prevent waste, limited as to time, under Government supervision, and to be followed by an early return to our present system of competition without restraint."

The Attorney-General said the efforts of the Justice Department in enforcement of Federal statutes including prohibition will be "unremitting."

"During the next three months," he said, "regional conferences attended by Assistant Attorneys-General will be held with groups of United States Attorneys and prohibition administrators to take stock of our present situation and complete the co-ordination between the prosecuting attorneys and the prohibition bureau, which was the purpose of the transfer of the unit to this department, and in other respects to continue activity for effective enforcement of all Federal criminal laws.

"No doubt this nation's methods of enforcing criminal justice are open to improvement and it is hoped that research commissions working to that end will devise improvements in practice and procedure," said the Attorney-General, apparently referring to the Wickersham Commission, "but progress in that direction is slow and the big factor in dealing with criminal cases in the courts is that of personnel.

"If detective agencies are efficient, Prosecuting Attorneys competent and Judges capable and business-like, satisfactory results are attainable even with a poor system, and no matter how perfect the system, if officers are delinquent and public sentiment is not aroused, delay and inefficiency result.

"During the next three months officials of this department will visit those Federal districts in which serious congestion is found, and by consultation with the Judges and co-operation from the local bar and increased activity on the part of District Attorneys' offices, without fundamental changes in the methods of administration of criminal justice, we should succeed in a reasonable time in removing delay in criminal trials and opening the way for prompt disposition of private litigation."

The Attorney-General added that until the additional force of about 450 dry agents authorized at the last session of Congress is fully trained and assigned to duty it will not be known 'whether additional Federal forces are required to perform that share of the work which properly belongs to the Federal Government."

Keith McCanse at City Club.

Keith McCanse, former State Game and Fish Commissioner, will speak to the City Club at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon about the Ozark region of Missouri and its availability as a place for vacations.

Dr. Max Meyer to Speak.

Dr. Max F. Meyer, professor of psychology at the University of Missouri, will discuss the use of electrical equipment in teaching deaf persons and will demonstrate instruments of his own invention for that purpose, at a meeting of the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade at Hotel Statler, Tuesday at noon.

BANK SUES FORMER PRESIDENT FOR $7410

Natural Bridge Trust Co. Brings Action Against O. G. Koenig on Stock Deal.

The Natural Bridge Bank & Trust Co., 4401 Natural Bridge avenue, filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday against its former president, Otto G. Koenig, for $7410, alleging negligence on his part in signing certificates for exchange of stock.

The exchange was made in July, 1929, when the depository changed its name from Natural Bridge Bank.

Koenig, as president, with G. A. Lubeley, then cashier, signed the certificates in the name of the new corporation, the exchange being on an even basis. The suit alleges Koenig signed an exchange of Lubeley's stock without first ascertaining whether the cashier had actually surrendered his old stock for cancellation.

As a matter of fact, the petition states, Lubeley had hypothecated his stock and it was not cancelled. When he obtained the new stock he pledged 152 shares with a bank in Chicago as collateral. As a result the Natural Bridge Bank & Trust Co. was forced to accept liability for the collateral so deposited, the suit states. The bank seeks to be reimbursed from Koenig on the theory that he did not make careful investigation.

Lubeley was sentenced, last October, to five years in Missouri penitentiary on hi plea of guilty to three counts of embezzlement, involving $17,000 of the bank's bonds. At the time of his arrest it was announced that he had embezzled about $156,000 of the bank's assets. The shortage was partly covered by a $100,000 surety bond.

Following a reorganization of the bank Koenig was succeeded by Emil Sieloff as president.

ONE CONVICTION IN TWO TRIALS OF WEEK

Six Persons Plead Guilty of Robbery and Receive Substantial Sentences.

Two trials in the criminal divisions of Circuit Court last week resulted in a conviction and an acquittal. Oscar Woodward, a Negro charged with manslaughter, received a 10-year penitentiary sentence for stabbing and killing another Negro in a craps game at 3403 Pine street last Christmas day. William Overton, 52, charged with rape, was acquitted by a jury.

Six persons charged with robbery received substantial penitentiary or reformatory sentences on their pleas of guilty. Among these was Tuttle Duke, 38-year-old Negro, who accept four concurrent life sentences in Judge Ryan's Court rather than stand trial. Duke, who was charged with robbery and rape, had attacked six Negro women.

Raymond Curry, another Negro, received concurrent 10-year penitentiary terms for robbery under the Henry law. In one of these robberies Curry frightened the cashier of a Negro night club with a fountain pen acid gun. After squirting an acid in the face of Miss Florence Cook at 2201 Franklin avenue on Dec. 24, he took $2.85 from the cash drawer. Curry also was identified by Bernard Ritter, 935 Beach street, as the robber who held him up on Garrison avenue, near Franklin avenue, Dec. 13, taking $35 from him.

On Parole, Sentenced Again.

Clifford R. Lemen, 22, paroled from the state penitentiary by Gov. Caulfield in February, 1930, was again sentenced to 10 years for a robbery committed in April. On this occasion Lemen held up Charles Steinhauer, 1316 S. Ninth street, taking $8 and his automobile.

Lonnie Henderson, a Negro, was given 10 years for robbing another Negro in a confectionery store at 1610 Biddle street on April 8, and Mike Guarina and Lester Rikard, both 17, were given 10-year penitentiary terms, which were commuted to four years in the Boonville Reformatory, for robbing the proprietor of a newspaper branch office of $50 on April 3.

Others who pleaded guilty and took penitentiary punishment were: James B. Earp, burglary, 2 years; Harold Dalton, manslaughter and leaving scene of injury to a person, concurrent terms of 3 years; Myrtle Morris, murder second degree, 10 years; Albert Sherrick, burglary, 2 years; Wm. Burns, burglary, 2 years; James Allen Wray, burglary, 3 years and Beatrice Thornton, manslaughter, 2 years

Plead Guilty to Felonies.

Persons charged with felonies who entered pleas of guilty, but who got less than penitentiary punishment, were: James Watkins, carrying a concealed weapon, $100 and costs; Ruby Vaughn, larceny from the person, 90 days in city workhouse; Lulu Caldwell, larceny from person, six months; Robert Tatum, petit larceny, six months; Luther Stevens, carrying a concealed weapon, three months; Ben Allen, forgery, fourth degree, one year, paroled to report one year; Owen Blackburn, petit larceny, six months; Robert Hardin, petit larceny, one year; Edward Jackson, James Lockheart and Eddie Morrow, petit larceny, three months and 10 days in jail; Ben Smith, petit larceny, three months and 10 days in jail; Anthony Tobacca, turning in false fire alarm, $50 and costs; Samuel Blackwell, petit larceny, one year; John Chiker, larceny of a motor vehicle, three months; James Webb, petit larceny, three months; Frank Ryan, forgery in fourth degree, one year; John Trowbridge, larceny of a motor vehicle, 30 days; Charles Bush, carrying a concealed weapon, 50 days; George Eddins and Lucius Norwood, malicious destruction of property, six months, and Fred Williams and Philip Hummell, petit larceny, 90 days.

Charges of larceny of motor vehicles against John Ball and Mack Martin and a charge of burglary against August White were nolled by the Circuit Attorney's office because of insufficient evidence.

GANDHI MAY VISIT U. S. AFTER LONDON CONFERENCE

Indian Nationalist and Viceroy Arrive at Closer Understanding Through Conversations.

By the Associated Press.

SIMLA, India, May 16.—In the informal conversation between Mahatma Gandhi and Lord Willingdon, the new Viceroy, the two seem to have come to a close understanding of each other.

"I can assure you for myself and for the Prime Minister," the Viceroy told the Mahatma," that it is our intention to fulfill in letter and spirt every clause of the Delphi pact (armistice) and to pave the way for the success of the next round table conference."

He told the Nationalist leader not to worry about the question of constitutional safeguards, for that and all the other matters discussed at the first conference would be reviewed at the second. Gandhi assured the Viceroy that the Nationalists also would do their part in preserving peace.

Mme. Saropini Naidu will go to London with Gandhi in the fall or earlier to demand equal rights for India's women's at the round table conference. Thereafter she will go to the United States for her second lecture tour there. It is learned today that it is not impossible that Gandhi himself may accompany her for a forthnight's visit in America provided he wins a majority of his demands at London.

U. S. EXPORTS LOWEST SINCE NOVEMBER, 1914

Total for April $217,000,000 as Compared With $235,895,000 in March.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Exports from the United States during April fell to the lowest point since November, 1914. The Commerce Department announced today that exports for the month totaled $217,000,000, as compared with $331,732,000 in the corresponding month of last year and $235,895,000 in March.

Imports declined to $187,000,000 from $307,824,000 the preceding April and $210,000,000 in March of this year. This country was left with a trade balance of $30,000,000, higher by $6,000,000 than last April when the balance was $23,908,000.

Gold exports, which reached their low ebb of the year in February, showed a gain in April over March. They totaled $27,000 as compared with $26,000 in March and $110,000 for April, 1930. Imports amounted to $49,543,000 against $65,835,000 last April and $25,671,000 in March.

Silver, which has become one of the world's major economic problems, was exported from the United States to a value of $3,249,000 in April, against $4,646,000 in the same month of 1930. Imports amounted to $2,439,000 against $3,570,000.

While exports and imports of the United States have shown an almost steady decline for more than a year, reports to the department show exports of industrial machinery to Europe. A highly competitive field, were larger last year than since the abnormal year of 1920.

EMPLOYMENT GAINS 0.2 PCT. IN APRIL

Labor Bureau Reports 1.5 Pct. Drop in Payrolls Compared With March Figures.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—An increase of .2 per cent in employment and a decrease of 1.5 per cent in payroll totals in April as compared with March was reported today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The announcement is based upon figures from 15 major industries having in April 4,705,470 employes whose combined earnings in one week were $115,715,549.

Increased employment was shown in 10 of the 15 industrial groups as follows: Anthracite mining, 3.9 per cent; metalliferous mining, .7 per cent; quarrying and nonmetallic mining, 8.7 per cent; power, light and water, .4 per cent; electric railroads, .5 per cent; wholesale trade, less than one-tenth of 1 per cent; retail trade, 2.6 per cent; canning and preserving, 12.5 per cent; laundries, 1.1 per cent, and dyeing and cleaning, 8.8 per cent.

The five groups showing decreases in employment are: Manufacturing, .4 per cent; bituminous coal mining, 3.3 per cent; crude petroleum producing, 3.3 per cent; telephone and telegraph, .6 per cent, and hotels, 1.5 per cent.

For manufacturing industries, the payrolls decreased 1.6 per cent as compared with the .4 per cent drop in employment.

The bureau said decreased employment and earnings in manufacturing industries had been shown in April as compared with March in seven of the nine years covered by the indices, the decrease of .4 per cent in April being slightly less than the average in previous years. Per capita earnings in the manufacturing industries was placed at 1.2 per cent less than in the preceding month.

"Speeds up washday," says Mrs. A. Nolte. 4610A S. Spring Ave.

"Rinso dissolves in a jiffy — speeds up washday — gets clothes gleaming white—saves boiling—keeps colored things new-looking. I wouldn't dream of using any other soap in my washing machine. Rinso is all I need for safe, lasting suds, even in the hard water we have here. Rinso is wonderful for dishwashing, too."

Should merchants carry delinquent debtors?....

MERCHANTS cannot be bankers. Their business is selling goods, not financing families.

They cannot afford to carry delinquent accounts and sell at competitive prices.

Yet, no matter how carefully any merchant selects his credit risks, many of his customers, sooner or later, meet times of stress when unpaid bills pile up.

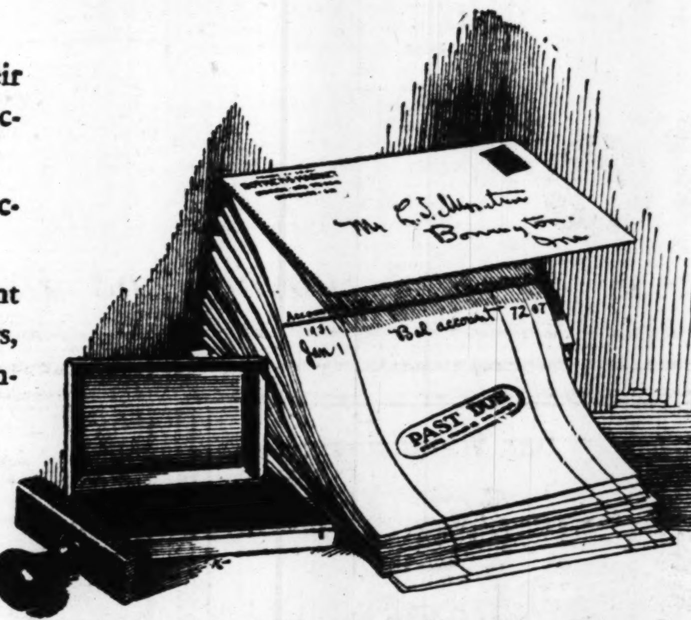
What should he do? Sue? Or put delinquent accounts into the hands of a collection agency who may harass his customer and levy a stiff fee for its services?

Neither course is desirable. Neither is necessary.

Ninety-nine out of a hundred delinquent debtors want to pay. The laws of twenty-five states have made it possible for most of them to pay by borrowing from family finance companies whose business is the lending of funds to tide families over periods of emergencies.

Many worried customers have thanked their dealers for suggesting that the way out of their difficulties could be found at one of the 135 offices of Household, America's foremost family finance organization.

Under the Household Plan, men and their wives may obtain from $100 to $300, without seeking endorsers, putting up bankable collateral, or going through embarrassing investigations.



Thus, their bills are paid promptly and Household, not their merchant, carries them while they repay in small monthly installments.

Household charges only the low rate allowed by Missouri laws, 2½% a month. There are no advance deductions of interest, no fines are imposed, no extra charges are made.

Furthermore, Household renders a distinct economic and social service by helping families budget their incomes so as to keep out of debt in the future.

ST. LOUISAN SUGGESTED AS CONGREGATIONAL MODERATOR

The Rev. J. T. Stocking Mentioned in Unofficial Nominations; Vote to Be Taken Next Month.

The Rev. Dr. J. T. Stocking, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, St. Louis, has been suggested as a candidate for the office of Moderator of the National Council of Congregational Churches, to be filled by election during the council's biennial meeting in Seattle, June 25 to July 3.

Nominations are being made unofficially in the denominational organ, the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, published in Boston. In this week's issue, a letter from the Rev. W. C. Timmons of First Church, St. Louis, seconds the nomination of Dr. Stocking, which had been made previously. Others who have been put forward in this manner are the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Mills of Hartford, Conn., former pastor of Pilgrim Church here, and the Rev. Dr. Carl Patton of Los Angeles. Fred B. Smith, a layman, is retiring moderator.

Election to the office of moderator does not require a pastor to give up his pulpit, although it would add to his duties.

35 Chinchillas Stolen from Farm.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., May 16.—Thirty-five chinchillas, valued at $250,000 by their owner, were reported stolen today from the M. F. Chapman farm near here. Chapman said he believed he had the only chinchilla farm in North America. The chinchilla is a rodent, whose furs are valuable.

URGES SUPERBANK TO BUY ALL BRITISH GOLD AND SILVER

English Authority Has Plan to Avert "Economic Chaos"; Thinks U. S. Would Be Interested.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16.—Establishment of a superbank which would buy and control all the gold and silver resources of the British Empire—possibly also those of the United States—was advocated today by J. F. Darling, director of the British Midland Bank and noted British authority on currency.

Under his plan, to which he believes the United States would find it profitable to subscribe, Darling said there should be no difficulty in restoring silver and keeping it on its true comparative parity with gold.

He asserted the rehabilitation of silver was of immediate importance, "because as I see it we are drifting rapidly toward economic chaos."

The superbank, binding together the financial structures of the entire British commonwealth of nations, would establish the ratio of silver to gold at 20 to 1, which he said, "approximates to the exchange value of the Indian rupee." (The Indian rupee is 26 cents.)

The proposed superbank would, Darling continued, "take over by purchase the existing stocks of gold and silver held by the governments and banks that issue currency for the empire. The superbank would be given a new monetary unit for its exclusive use, which might be appropriately called the 'Rex.' It would be purely a booking unit and would involve no change in actual currencies."

SUES FOR $150,000 FOR USE OF MERCHANDISING SCHEME

E. J. Brunner Alleges Vandervoort's Adopted His Plan and Demands Compensation.

Suit for $150,000, based on an alleged agreement to compensate him for devising a plan to increase sales of merchandise, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Edwin J. Brunner, 3433A Humphrey street, a barber, against Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Dry Goods Co. He states that the agreement was entered into Feb. 15, 1930, and his plan was put into operation March 8 of that year.

It consisted, according to the petition, of having employes of the company formed into groups, each group having a captain and paying bonuses for new charge accounts which they obtained. In this way, Brunner asserts, 3500 new charge account customers were obtained. He is represented by Attorney Jesse W. Barrett and the firm of Foristel, Mudd, Blair and Habenicht.

Frank W. Mayfield, president of Scruggs-Vendervoort-Barney, said that Brunner had at one time suggested some plan for a sales contest, which, however, was not adopted. Subsequently the company conducted a contest under another plan. "We have taken up the claim with our attorneys," Mayfield said, "and they have advised us there is no liability."

Brunner is a stockholder in Vandervoort's, and for years has had the first chair in the Century Building shop.

REQUISITION ISSUED FOR OKLAHOMA MURDER SUSPECT

Earl Quinn Held in Kansas City, Mo., Sought as Slayer of Two Sisters, School Teachers.

By the Associated Press.

NEWKIRK, Ok., May 16.—Kay County officers are arranging for the speedy return and trial of Earl Quinn, ex-convict, accused slayer of the Griffith sisters of Tonkawa, Ok., last Dec. 28.

Quinn was arrested last Thursday in Omaha, Neb. and taken to Kansas City, Mo. jail.

Bruce Potter, county attorney, will go to Jefferson City tomorrow to present to Gov. Caulfield a requisition for Quinn issued by Gov. Murray of Oklahoma today.

The Griffin sisters, Jessie and Zexia, both school teachers, were shot to death after one had been attacked on a main road while they were motoring from their home at Blackwell to their schools.

A vest button found in the Griffith motor car corresponded with those in a garment belonging to the suspect. Quinn protests his innocence.

LORD NELSON'S PISTOL SABER IS ON DISPLAY AT MUSEUM

Lent to Collection of Seventeenth Century Arms by W. H. Owen Jr.

An unusual pistol saber made in London for Lord Nelson, who was killed in the battle of Trafalgar, is displayed at City Art Museum in Forest Park along with other seventeenth century arms in the museum's collection. The pistol saber was lent by W. H. Owen Jr.

A steel and brass double-barrelled flintlock pistol is attached to the curved blade of the steel saber. It bears a silver name plate with the inscription "Horatio Nelson."

One gallery of paintings of the post-impressionism artists remains temporarily on view at the museum. There is also a gallery of prints and drawings of that period.

$3,000,000,000 SPENT FOR HEALTH IN U. S.

4 Out of 10 in America Have Indigestion, Research Experts Find.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Dr. William T. Foster, director of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research, and author of popular books on economic subjects, today argued that America should buy health instead of "things and more things."

Speaking before the committee on cost of medical care, Foster estimated the annual health expenditure at $3,000,000,000 and said the country could afford to pay $3,000,000,000 more.

America's ailments were listed in order of frequency at the committee's concluding session. Four out of 10 Americans have indigestion, the research expert found, a record surpassed only by respiratory diseases—colds, tonsilitis, sore throat, quincy, influenza, grip, pleurisy, pneumonia and larangitis.

These respiratory diseases total [illegible] cases for each 10,000 persons, [illegible] common colds alone totaling [illegible] per 1000. Thus everybody has a chance to cough and sneeze during the year.

The 15 other principal cases of illness were enumerated as: Epidemic, endemic and infectious diseases, 92.5 per 1000; teeth and gums, 57.5; external causes, 54; child birth, 47.2; women's disorders 31.9; general diseases including cancer, rheumatism, and diabetes, 21.4; heart and circulatory system 20.2; ear and mastoid process 15; skin diseases 14.8; kidney diseases 14.4; lumbago and kindred ailments, 11.2; eyes 8.5; boils and carbuncles 5.1; bones and joints 1.8; men's disorders 1.5.

In its estimates of the nation's bill for illness, the committee tallied a $3,106,000,000 annual expenditure, divided as follows. Physicians, $1,000,000,000; medicine and supplies, $700,000,000; hospitals including outpatient departments, $550,000,900; dentists, $400,000,000; extra household help, $123,000,000; nurses, except hospital, $112,000,000; public health $[illegible]6,000,000; optometrists and opticians, $50,000,000; chiropractors and naturopaths, $50,000,000; osteopaths, $20,000,000; midwives, $[illegible]5,000,000; chiropodists, $15,000,000; dispensaries, not hospital, $5,000,000.

The committee consists of 50 experts in medical and economic fields appointed to make a five-year study of health economics with money provided by philanthropic foundations.

VERDICT OF ACCIDENT IN DEATH OF BOXER

Johnnie Paladin Suffered Hemorrhage After Appearance in Benefit Contest.

An accident verdict was returned at a Coroner's inquest yesterday in the death of Johnnie Paladin, 17-year-old amateur boxer, who suffered a hemorrhage of the brain Thursday night following a four-round bout in a benefit performance at Battery A Armory.

Testimony was that Paladin received a discolored eye and lacerated ear in defeating Jack Richards, 18, in the first preliminary. After treating the visible wounds, Paladin waited until the ninth bout to recover a pair of trunks borrowed by another boxer. He then walked to his home at 2340 Hickory street where he died in bed.

Police were unable to find Richards who had moved from the address recorded at his boxing club.

GANG OF GIRL ROBBERS SOUGHT

Stenographer Admits Taking Part in Kansas City Holdups.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 16.—Guided by the signed statement of a 21-year-old stenographer, police tonight were attempting to determine whether a gang of young women robbers is operating here under the direction of a man leader. The stenographer, Miss Loyce McCormick, recently of Oklahoma City, was quoted by police as having confessed participation in the robbery of Ed Patrick, decoyed to a hotel room by an invitation to a drinking party. She said she and a girl companion pointed a pistol at Patrick, relieved him of his money, then handcuffed him.

Among other girl robbers police are searching for a youthful blonde who leaped last night on the running board of Mrs. Jean Patterson's automobile, forced her to give up a dollar bill hidden in her stocking, then took Mrs. Patterson's hat, coat and shoes. The girl robber drove away with two men companions who stood by during the robbery.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 16.—Charles Oskers broke into the Auburn (Wash.) city jail, removed beer that had been seized in a raid at his home, and today was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in prison for being a "smart aleck." Judge John B. Wright, who imposed sentence, said Oskers "was not guilty of a crime as serious as burglary but he was guilty of trying to be a smart aleck."

Red Cross Golden Jubilee Observance to Last Year

Celebration Will Start Next Thursday, With President Hoover Addressing Dinner in Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Nation-wide plans for celebration of the Red Cross jubilee year were announced today by that organization. Beginning next Thursday night, Red Cross officials said, the observance will continue for 12 months, thus including fiftieth anniversaries of the organization meeting of May 21, 1881; the formation of the first local chapter, at Danville, N. Y., Aug. 22, 1881; and the signing of the Treaty of Geneva, International Red Cross, March 1, 1882.

With President Hoover as chief speaker, and Chief Justice Hughes presiding, the celebration will open in Washington Thursday at a dinner of 800 guests, including diplomatic representatives of the 52 member nations of the Red Cross. Judge Max Huber of Geneva, Switzerland, president of the International Red Cross, will speak in its behalf.

Several hundred Red Cross chapters have informed national headquarters of plans for concurrent meetings, with Governors, mayors, and other prominent citizens as speakers. They also will tune in on the broadcast of addresses from Washington.

In the months that follow, various types of celebration have been planned by the rest of the 3500 chapters.

Clara Barton, founder, and her pioneer colleagues in the work of relieving disaster sufferers and alleviating the pain of the wounded on battlefields, were made subject of commemoration by the National Red Cross.

Three of Clara Barton's co-workers were designated as special guests of honor at the big golden jubilee dinner. They were: Mrs. Peter Voorhees DeGraw, Washington, D. C., only living survivor, so far as the Red Cross has been able to determine, of the organization meeting 50 years ago in the home of Miss Barton; Dr. R. P. Andrews, Dansville, N. Y., who, with Miss Barton, called people of that town together to form the first Red Cross chapter; and Maj. William McDowell, Washington, D. C., 91 years old, who worked with her in early disaster relief, including the Johnstown flood of 1889.

CASINO SHUT UP IN 1920 BY FRENCH LAW, REOPENS

Two Paragraphs in National Budget Start Town to Repairing Abandoned Building.

By the Associated Press.

ENGHIEN-LES-BAINS, France, May 17.—The inhabitants of this small health resort, six miles from Paris, are anticipating a big summer because two paragraphs in the French national budget give the town the right to reopen its gambling casino.

Until 1920 the town enjoyed great prosperity through its gaming tables, which attracted visitors from Paris in such numbers that five-minute train service was maintained. The town revenue was so great that the inhabitants were relieved of all local taxation. Then the French Parliament closed the casino. The day after the reopening decree was voted, hundreds of workmen swarmed into the dilapidated casino in a race to get it ready by June 1, when the summer rush begins. Land values jumped overnight.

500 NEW YORK REDS PARADE

Demonstrate Against Death Sentences of Nine Negro Youths.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Communists and their sympathizers held a demonstration today protesting against the death sentences imposed on nine Negro youths, convicted at Scottsville, Ala., of criminally assaulting two women.

About 500 persons participated in the demonstration, which began with a meeting in which speakers attacked the "framing of the youths at the instigation of the Southern bosses." It was followed by a parade in which Mrs. Ada Wright, mother of two of the Negroes, marched. A band provided music as the marchers sang "The Internationale" and "Solidarity." Placards calling attention to the Negroes' plight were carried by several men. A large detail of police was on hand. Twenty-five detectives worked through the crowd before the start of the parade, occasionally searching a suspicious looking person. Five mounted men led the parade and 100 uniformed patrolmen were on duty along the line of march.

Eaton, had been unfair to Continental. The suits were filed several weeks ago by Attorney Charles S. Wachner, a Continental stockholder, and by the Paramount Coal and Coke Co. Eaton was chairman of Continental at the time of the transactions, but since has resigned. Answers today defended the deals as fair and reasonable.

SURVEY SHOWS MORE SMALL STOCKHOLDERS

Cleveland Banker Sees Gain for Business in Widespread Ownership.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., May 16.—The depression has helped make big business more a game for the man with modest means, Allard Smith, executive vice president of the Union Trust Co. of Cleveland, revealed today in a study he has just completed. Furthermore, Smith said, the man with modest means has become wiser.

As a result business today rests on a foundation much broader than in the days before the depression, putting it into a better position to advance when some of its difficulties are ironed out. He based this statement on his discovery that 100 of the leading corporations of the country had increased the number of its stockholders from 5,264,936 in 1929 to 6,133,319 in 1930, giving 868,383 more people a voice in industrial affairs. The gain is about 16 per cent.

He said this splitting of shareholding indicates a "realization on the part of business of the safety which lies in widespread stock ownership."

It was found by the Cleveland banker that a number of well known corporations reported that a majority of their stockholders had holdings of less than 100 shares each.

Nineteen public utility corporations added 290,094 stockholders to their list of 1,306,055; four metal manufacturing companies added 21,516 to make a total of 245,619; four of the largest banks showed a gain of 59,406 to make a total of 186,284.

"If the year has resulted in dividing the capital stock of the principal corporations among a considerably larger number of people, it may be concluded that business as a whole is in a more satisfactory position than ever before to go forward when the wrinkles are all pressed out of the economic fabric, because of the wider foundation on which business ownership will stand," Smith said.

"Another entirely logical deduction from the 1930 showing as to numbers of stockholders is that it indicates an ever-increasing realization by corporation leaders of the safety assured by the wide diffusion of corporate stocks among large numbers of people.

"How complete this realization is, is shown by the number of companies in which stock has been split up so as to bring the per share price within reach of the great bulk of investors.

KENTUCKY GOVERNOR ASSAILED FOR USING COAL MINE GUARDS

Speaker Says If They Are Not Removed Miners Should "Shoot Them Off."

By the Associated Press.

PINEVILLE, Ky., May 16.—After hearing their leaders assail Gov. Flem D. Sampson for "his failure to keep any part of his contract," miners of Bell County today agreed to back their Harlan County comrades in their fight for removal of armed guards at coal mines.

Eight hundred workers assembled at the Courthouse and listened to Lawrence Dwyer and Ben Williams, representatives of the United Mine Workers of America, criticize the Governor's use of National Guardsmen in the Harlan coal fields.

The verbal attack hinged upon what Dwyer said was an agreement made with the Governor's representatives prior to the order sending the soldiers to quell disorders.

George Burchett, miner, urged the Bell County miners to quit work until "the Harlan guards are removed" and hundreds of hands went up as an indication of agreement.

Burchett said if mine guards were not removed the miners "ought to go up and shoot them off."

At Harlan, Sheriff J. H. Blair said he would ask for additional grand jury indictments based on two raids made at Evarts by his deputies. Sheriff Blair said his men had seized a quantity of literature in a building known as local headquarters for the International Workers of the World.

ROBBED OF CASH, DIAMOND AND CLOTHING IN AUTO

Charles Graffigna Says He Was Left in His Underwear on Jamestown Road.

Forced into an automobile in front of his home and robbed of all but his underwear, socks and shoes, Charles Graffigna, 57 years old, 3952 Lexington avenue, was left on Jamestown road, near Bellefontaine road, St. Louis County, early yesterday, by two robbers.

Graffigna aroused a farmer and telephoned his wife, who sent friends to bring him home. He told police he was walking home when the robbers held him up. Besides his clothes he said they took $58 in cash and a diamond stud worth $600.

SAYS BONUSES AND PIECEWORK FAIL TO SPEED PRODUCTION

Investigator Finds Many Workmen Are Habitually Holding Back and Slowing Up.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—A report of the Social Science Research Council declares workmen in many types of American industry are "habitually holding back and slowing up production."

A survey of restriction of output among unorganized workers concludes that "restriction is a widespread institution, deeply entrenched in the working habits of the American people." Bonuses, piece rates and other schemes, devised by efficiency experts to prevent restriction, are actually contributing to it the report made public today asserts.

The study resulted when students at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O., who spend half their time on real jobs, reported to the director of personnel administration, Stanley B. Mathewson, that apparently holding back output is the common thing.

Bonus and piece rates failed to produce capacity output in many plants, Mathewson observed, because workers were convinced the rate would be cut if too much work were done. Wage earners believe, he explains that "more than average output by any member of the group means greater demands with no increase in pay."

Fear of unemployment was found to be another cause of slackened effort.

The writer of this article is in the Russian diplomatic service. He was the People's Commissar of Education until 1929 when he withdrew to reorganize and establish the present Soviet system of education. He is regarded as one of the more enlightened and cultivated members of the party now in power in Russia.

MOSCOW, May 16.

THERE is no doubt that the capitalist world and the young social world, the political boundaries of which coincide with the boundaries of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, are now in a state of competition.

To call this competition entirely peaceful would be hardly true; the competing sides are altogether too interested in victory, while defeat threatens them with great disaster. Hence this competition cannot help taking place under conditions of great tension.

Nevertheless, even a tense, life or death competition may take place in a comparatively peaceful form; that is, without the use of arms, without open warfare.

In this sense, all of humanity is interested in the preservation of this comparatively peaceful form of competition. The Government of the U. S. S. R. is interested in it, as well as the laboring population of the Union, and we can declare with a clear conscience to all mankind that we do everything possible to prevent this struggle, of labor, of creative economics, of cultural strivings, from turning into a bloody conflict.

The hopes of the capitalist world that bolshevism might destroy itself; that it would die because of the disappointment of workers and peasants in not promptly attaining indicated goals—have faded. Capitalist fears that the intense work of scores of millions of the citizens of our country under the leadership of the Communist party would be crowned with success—have increased.

Fear of Armed Attack.

At the same time, the efforts of separate capitalistic countries to unite for a common struggle against us have grown more apparent; grown more imminent also has the grave danger that one or another combination of powers will make an armed attempt to stop the growth of socialism in our Union.

This, of course, is not an easy task; I do not care, moreover, to discuss it at this writing. Dispensing with particularly vicious plots of our most implacable enemies, we must consider other forms of competition which, while not openly military, introduce elements of extreme aggravation into the competition of two fundamentally different economic systems. It is quite natural that many of our opponents think of delivering a devastating blow to the structure of Socialism, of blockading our country, of refusing to purchase our export merchandise or sell us machinery.

As long as a serious crisis exists, it is very questionable whether the capitalist world can afford to deny itself the indubitably advantageous business of providing machinery for a gigantic country which is immeasurably rich in natural resources and in all sorts of economic possibilities.

Considering the hectic contraction of the market, which causes untold sufferings everywhere in Europe and in America, does it not seem strange to propose to eliminate one of the largest purchasers in this very market?

Dumping and Forced Labor.

Since many countries find it indispensable to sell to us—so that they will scarcely consent to boycott our orders, it is also necessary to facilitate the sale of our export products, since we have no other source of payment for our orders.

In spite of this, especially in regard to our export, a serious campaign of obstruction is being waged against us. The myth about dumping, which has been refuted more than once by the greatest of bourgeois economists, is intended to rationalize this policy of disrupting natural trade relations between us. Powerful economic considerations, however, interfere with the organization of an agreement for a blockade against us. Our enemies seek new possibilities of enhancing the chances of success in this direction.

This is the soil in which the myth concerning forced labor was planted.

Regarding at closer range this myth, which is assiduously broadcast by a world of unconscious victims of deception, we distinguish three groups of circumstances.

In the first place: Is there in the Soviet Union such a thing as prison labor? Is there forced labor for persons convicted under our laws? Yes, there is. It differs qualitatively from the same kind of la-

Russian Writer Answers Charge That Slavery Exists in Soviets; Defends Enforcement of Labor

Carrying Out Rule That He Who Eats Must Work — Invites Comparison With Capitalistic Colonial Exploitation.

Declares There Is Grave Danger That a Combination of Powers Will Make an Armed Attempt to Stop Growth of Socialism

By Anatole Lunacharsky.
(Copyright, 1931.)

The writer of this article is in the Russian diplomatic service. He was the People's Commissar of Education until 1929 when he withdrew to reorganize and establish the present Soviet system of education. He is regarded as one of the more enlightened and cultivated members of the party now in power in Russia.

MOSCOW, May 16.

THERE is no doubt that the capitalist world and the young social world, the political boundaries of which coincide with the boundaries of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, are now in a state of competition.

To call this competition entirely peaceful would be hardly true; the competing sides are altogether too interested in victory, while defeat threatens them with great disaster. Hence this competition cannot help taking place under conditions of great tension.

Nevertheless, even a tense, life or death competition may take place in a comparatively peaceful form; that is, without the use of arms, without open warfare.

In this sense, all of humanity is interested in the preservation of this comparatively peaceful form of competition. The Government of the U. S. S. R. is interested in it, as well as the laboring population of the Union, and we can declare with a clear conscience to all mankind that we do everything possible to prevent this struggle, of labor, of creative economics, of cultural strivings, from turning into a bloody conflict.

The hopes of the capitalist world that bolshevism might destroy itself; that it would die because of the disappointment of workers and peasants in not promptly attaining indicated goals—have faded. Capitalist fears that the intense work of scores of millions of the citizens of our country under the leadership of the Communist party would be crowned with success—have increased.

Fear of Armed Attack.

At the same time, the efforts of separate capitalistic countries to unite for a common struggle against us have grown more apparent; grown more imminent also has the grave danger that one or another combination of powers will make an armed attempt to stop the growth of socialism in our Union.

This, of course, is not an easy task; I do not care, moreover, to discuss it at this writing. Dispensing with particularly vicious plots of our most implacable enemies, we must consider other forms of competition which, while not openly military, introduce elements of extreme aggravation into the competition of two fundamentally different economic systems. It is quite natural that many of our opponents think of delivering a devastating blow to the structure of Socialism, of blockading our country, of refusing to purchase our export merchandise or sell us machinery.

As long as a serious crisis exists, it is very questionable whether the capitalist world can afford to deny itself the indubitably advantageous business of providing machinery for a gigantic country which is immeasurably rich in natural resources and in all sorts of economic possibilities.

Considering the hectic contraction of the market, which causes untold sufferings everywhere in Europe and in America, does it not seem strange to propose to eliminate one of the largest purchasers in this very market?

Dumping and Forced Labor.

Since many countries find it indispensable to sell to us—so that they will scarcely consent to boycott our orders, it is also necessary to facilitate the sale of our export products, since we have no other source of payment for our orders.

In spite of this, especially in regard to our export, a serious campaign of obstruction is being waged against us. The myth about dumping, which has been refuted more than once by the greatest of bourgeois economists, is intended to rationalize this policy of disrupting natural trade relations between us. Powerful economic considerations, however, interfere with the organization of an agreement for a blockade against us. Our enemies seek new possibilities of enhancing the chances of success in this direction.

This is the soil in which the myth concerning forced labor was planted.

Regarding at closer range this myth, which is assiduously broadcast by a world of unconscious victims of deception, we distinguish three groups of circumstances.

In the first place: Is there in the Soviet Union such a thing as prison labor? Is there forced labor for persons convicted under our laws? Yes, there is. It differs qualitatively from the same kind of labor in any other country, however, in that its aim is to return the criminal into the fellowship of labor. Besides, in the U. S. S. R. the labor of prisoners is paid for.

> ### "He Who Does Not Labor Does Not Eat"
> * * * *It is not so with us. Among us there exists the following rule: he who does not labor does not eat. All are obliged to work; which means that there cannot be any socially compulsory labor for the benefit of some parasite among us.
> Not only that, but our society, the laboring population of U. S. S. R. is now passing through the stage of building the foundation of its future happiness. Considering the economic and cultural backwardness of the country which the revolution inherited from Tsarism, this may be attained only with the greatest intensity of labor.
> Those who consciously understand the magnitude of this goal, all its advantages in the near future, all of its world-wide historical significance, freely, voluntarily and with enthusiasm strain all of their powers, and in every way try to improve the quality of their labor and of their technical knowledge.

The worldly and spiritual peers who took upon themselves something in the nature of initiative in this new competition with us—a competition in regard to the forms of organizing labor—understood perfectly well that the above-mentioned situation will not carry them very far. In his report before the House of Lords, Lord Newton at once carried the attack further. In his opinion, the crux of the matter is not the question as to whether in the U. S. S. R. there exists labor by persons who have been deprived of liberty by order of the Court; rather, the point is that in general any form of labor in the U. S. S. R. is compulsory.

Here a few things should be elucidated.

Labor is inevitable for man by virtue of the laws of nature. It strikes us that if all of humanity would not labor, it would perish, not to mention the impossibility for it to develop and progress. Now, since the world is so circumstanced that human society may assert itself therein and develop only with the aid of labor, it follows that a just society must be founded on the labor of all.

As a matter of fact either all citizens work, each in some branch of socially-useful labor, or some work, while others do not. Now, if a certain A is free not to work, it is evident that a certain B must work for him. When all work, we have only a compulsion that arises out of the verity of things, out of the common, natural obligation to labor (from which may be excepted children, old people, the sick and child-bearing women). When a certain category of persons has the power of refraining from labor while benefiting by the fruit of others' labor, it means that there exists a compulsory power which enjoins one part of the population to work for the benefit of another part, dictating to the part deprived of its heritage a certain supplementary, and in a full measure socially compulsory, portion of labor.

Building for Happiness.

Such is actually the case in capitalist society. If I possess accumulated capital, which is in fact my social privilege, then I may compel others to work for my benefit.

It is not so with us. Among us there exists the following rule: he who does not labor does not eat. All are obliged to work; which means that there cannot be any socially compulsory labor for the benefit of some parasite among us.

Not only that, but our society, the laboring population of U. S. S. R. is now passing through the stage of building the foundation of its future happiness. Considering the economic and cultural backwardness of the country which the revolution inherited from Tsarism, this may be attained only with the greatest intensity of labor.

Those who consciously understand the magnitude of this goal, all its advantages in the near future, all of its world-wide historical significance, freely, voluntarily and with enthusiasm strain all of their powers, and in every way try to improve the quality of their labor and of their technical knowledge.

Hence the tempestuous development of all forms of shock-brigading, hence the singular labor asceticism, hence the astonishing records that we observe in our construction.

But so long as we have backward elements whose laziness interferes with the tempos we have attained in the movement of that common gigantic conveyor which represents our great constructive effort, we have need for finely worked-out forms of labor discipline. Every American citizen who has seen any kind of conveyor can understand this. He knows whether or not it is possible to permit freedom of labor in the sense of permitting any remiss link to determine for himself the advisability of slowing up work.

Slavery and Capitalism.

This is the second group of questions. The most important. Thus may be represented the organization of our labor. I think that competition in the form of comparing the principles of the organization of labor under capitalism and under socialism will prove most advantageous to us.

In the days before Socialism could be realized in practice, in the years of the first appearance in the German Reichstag of the Marxist Social-Democracy, the multimillionaire Stumm and the clever advocate of the bourgeoisie, Eugene Richter, tried to prove that Socialism was impending slavery. But as a result of debates, of the lightning blows of Bebel and of the elder Liebknecht, this contention was destroyed, and in the light of Socialist criticism it became evident that slavery is rather the foundation of capitalism.

Now this conclusion is all the more inescapable.

As long as under capitalism certain people have full liberty not to work, as long as in capitalist society those who do not labor, may "eat"—and by the word "eat" we must understand the right of property to a tremendous, almost limitless quantity of products made by the labor of others—therefore, as we have already said, it is evident that burdensome, supplementary portions of labor must by compulsion be placed upon persons deprived of corresponding privileges.

Colonial Exploitation.

In part, this is done through direct slavery. The labor of colonial peoples plays a considerable role in the everyday life of capitalism. We could submit an entire library of books, written not by Socialist authors, which give evidence about the merciless exploitation of colonial labor.

Lord Cecil estimated the number of slaves in the full sense of the term at 10,000,000. This is a very low estimate, but even this has considerable significance. As a matter of fact, the actual number of slaves exceeds this estimate. I should like to know very much how the spiritual and worldly peers who raised the question about forced labor in the U. S. S. R. voted not long ago when this chamber ratified the law of Rhodesia, according to which youths and girls, natives of a certain age, are obliged to compulsory labor service and may be subject to physical punishment for insufficient ardor? Not very long ago I happened to read, and so may some of my readers, books by such profoundly bourgeois writers as "The King of French Reporters," Albert Londre, and one of the greatest of French novelists, Andre Gide, books in which evidence of slave labor in French Africa is written with letters of blood.

One need not go far to seek such evidence. Millions of voices of the tortured slaves of Capital will rise in a wail against our accusers.

But who does not know that even hired labor, white labor, is actually no less slave-like, although this slavery is juridically camouflaged?

Comparisons Invited.

Engels wrote this: "The working class is the collective slave of the entire bourgeois class. Its labor, like any merchandise, is sold in the market. When there is too much of it, it remains unsold. Unsold merchandise in storage may be more or less durable, unsold human labor when it lies in storage is threatened by quick spoiling, which is expressed by the death of the laborer and his family."

Right now, when there are 35,000,000 of free unemployed in the world, including the United States, the richest country in the world, it is very difficult for capitalist wiseacres to prove their proposition about the complete freedom of the workman to dispose of his muscles.

This is the third group of circumstances in connection with the forms of the organization of labor.

I repeat that this type of competition is to our advantage.

The head of our Government, Comrade Molotov, has flung a proud challenge to the bourgeois world: let us send purely workers' commissions, ours to you, and yours to us. Come on, let them compare! In our country they will find much poverty yet, much deprivation, but they also will find colossal creative labor which advances the well-being of the toiling masses according to a plan, according to schedule; whereas, in your countries our workers will find a hopeless crisis, aimlessness and doubts, which are beginning to disturb even the most optimistic of bourgeois theoreticians.

The Great American Depression

Causes of Stagnation in Industry and Possible Cures Discussed for the Post-Dispatch by Dean Donham of Harvard Business School.

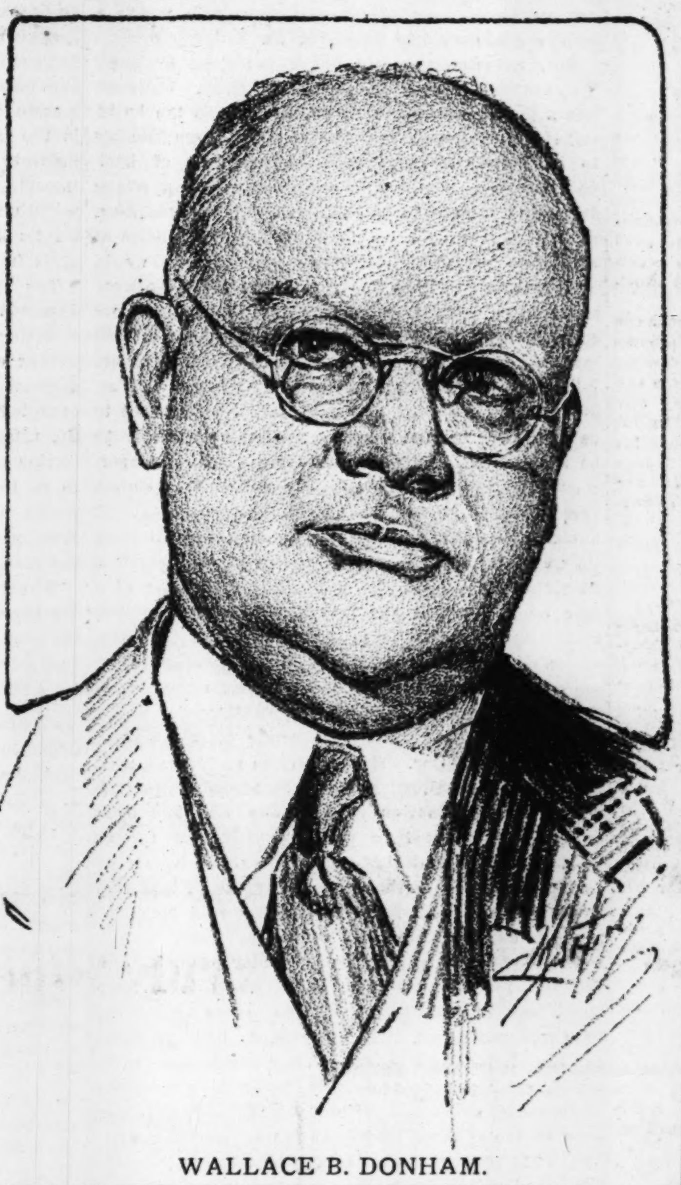
World Conditions Not Responsible for Our Own

Author of "Business Adrift" Believes Federal and State Agencies Should Always Be Prepared to Start Vast Public Works, When Unemployment Gets Serious, and to Continue It Only Until Labor Can Get Back Into Private Industry.

By Sam J. Shelton,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE prevailing business depression in the United States, its causes and the way out, were discussed in an interview for publication in the Post-Dispatch by Dean Wallace B. Donham of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration who was in St. Louis last week to attend the meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs.

In the interview Dean Donham emphasized the complexity of the causes of our business ills, and the danger of trying to simplify too much. In his view the problem of preventing such crises requires the intelligent planning of our ablest men. At the same time he discussed in popular language some of the basic principles which he has treated professionally in his recent book, "Business Adrift."



WALLACE B. DONHAM.

DEAN DONHAM, a graduate of Harvard in the class of 1899, has had wide experience in business and education. He was formerly president of the Old Colony Trust Co. at Cambridge. At present, in addition to being head of the Graduate School of Business Administration at Harvard, he is a director of the Clinchfield Coal Corporation, Haverhill Gas Co., Cambridge Savings Bank and Raymond & Whitcomb Co. Both his book, "Business Adrift," and his recent address before the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington, attracted wide attention among business men.

In brief, the conclusions of Dean Donham were:

> Depression in the United States is not a consequence of World depression, although intensified by the world condition.
> Our recovery is not necessarily dependent upon world recovery. In fact many Europeans feel we must start up first or they cannot.
> The way out for us is to build up purchasing power at home, thus stimulating the home market, and relieving unemployment, rather than through vast expansion of export trade.
> Temporary Government assistance in the form of large public programs offering a great variety of work is necessary to speedy recovery from the present emergency, pending development of adequate business leadership, but should be so used as to cause labor to move freely back to private industry as conditions there improve.

Blind to What Had Happened.

To crystallize the principal points of the interview certain questions were put to Dean Donham. The first was:

"Is our depression due to the world depression?"

"Not due to it, but intensified by it," was his answer.

He was then asked to state the cause of depression in the United States.

"That can't be done in a few words," he said.

"From about 1909, until some years after the close of the World War conditions existed which obscured the operation of long-time forces. Finally those conditions ceased to exist and because we had not made plans for such an emergency the depression followed. For one thing, we had not learned how to handle machines in a machine age."

Dean Donham pointed out that in the period referred to many new inventions to meet human wants were developed. Highly efficient machinery was devised to produce these articles in large quantities and at prices within the reach of a large part of a well employed population. As consumption increased, factory facilities were enlarged, competition within industries and between industries became keener, intensive selling methods were resorted to, installment financing of sales developed to huge proportions, the cost of distribution became more and more of a problem.

In the latter part of this period the sound effort to reduce production costs resulted in the use of more and more automatic machinery and fewer jobs for men. As long as consumption increased the men released usually found other work in the growing industries to which they were attached or in other rapidly developing industries.

Ultimately the forced sales became more difficult and the available markets could not absorb the output of the overbuilt plants. He cited the automobile and radio industries as examples of industries which expanded rapidly and beyond the market.

"The production of the automobile industry was in part for replacements and in part for sales to new owners," he said by way of illustration. "As long as that continued there was a rapidly growing market for automobiles. But there had to come a time when the population was reasonably well supplied with automobiles and there were fewer and fewer first purchasers. Unless we can expand the group who can buy automobiles the capacities of factories constructed under the first condition will be greater than the requirements under the latter. Much the same thing took place in the radio industry."

Dean Donham said he believed the extreme individualism of American industry was partly responsible for this condition continuing to the danger point. Each manufacturer developed his plant without regard to the capacity of others, depending upon a high pressure sales organization to market his product. Intelligent business leadership would find a way to minimize that trend.

World Not Ready to Buy.

"Does our recovery depend upon world recovery?" Dean Donham was asked. He said:

"While many will disagree with me, in my judgment our recovery need not depend upon world recovery. It is not at all necessary to wait for the rest of the world. We should not expect relief from export trade, for the world is not in shape to buy.

"Since exports are a small part of our total production, we have always relied to a great extent on our home markets, in contrast with England and Germany, which have built up their economy on the basis of exports and imports. We have a great chance to expand our home market by building up domestic purchasing power."

Dean Donham pointed out that exports are less than 10 per cent of our total production. He thought this indicated the domestic market always has been our principal consumer and the one to which we should look for future expansion.

In 1929 goods and commodities produced in the United States were valued at $84,082,000,000, as follows: Manufactured products, $68,453,000,000; agriculture, $9,726,000,000; mining products, $5,900,000,000. Exports were only $5,157,000,000, or a little more than 6 per cent of total production. The statistics are those of the United States Department of Commerce.

In some products, particularly cotton and wheat, exports have constituted a much larger percentage, and as Dean Donham said in his book, loss of these export markets will necessitate important readjusments in the areas producing these commodities.

Should Be Work for All.

Although he agreed machine production methods have contributed to unemployment, Dean Donham said we should not hold the machine, an inanimate object, responsible. The fault, rather, is with our lack of understanding of how to use the machine for the widest general benefit. One of the statements was, "Planning is necessary to prosperity in a machine age." He thinks that business should develop leaders able to plan for the near future within reasonable limits and to devise plans to avoid such drastic economic reactions as the present one.

"There should be work for every one who wishes to work," he said. "We should not think of paying men for loafing, as under the dole system, and yet if men cannot find work they must be kept from starvation. With proper planning and development of our home market, there should be work for every one."

"How is work to be provided for every one?" Dean Donham was asked.

His answer to this was a reference to his address Thursday at the luncheon of the Harvard Clubs when he talked on "Must We Have a Dole System?"

Way to Meet Idleness.

He thinks the present unemployment situation is so serious that business in its usual course, or through special efforts to plan for the future, will not be able to relieve it in time to avoid widespread suffering. In the emergency he thinks that only Government aid can bring timely relief, and that a Government plan can be devised which will be effective in leveling out employment whenever future depressions threaten and thus by maintaining purchasing power avoid disastrous consequences.

His plan briefly is this: Governmental agencies, both Federal and State, should have under way vast public works of that variety needed for the convenience and welfare of the whole population, upon which it would be possible quickly to start construction in periods of growing unemployment. He would have the Government recruit labor for these projects wherever there was a surplus of workers with the understanding the employment was to be temporary. Wages should be somewhat less than the scale generally prevailing in the industry, not as an economy measure, but to encourage workers to go back to private industry as soon as it had openings for them. This also would discourage the creation of a large army of permanent Government employes.

As improvement came in general business he would have these Government projects turned over to private contractors or tapered off to stopping place, all but necessary work being suspended in periods of general prosperity in private industry.

The purpose would be for the Government to give to workers security against privation in times of emergency but not to provide permanent employment on a large scale.

His suggestion is that such public works be financed by callable bonds maturing in not longer than 10 years. This would avoid increasing taxes at the time of depression, he says, and would enable retirement of the bonds in time of prosperity when revenue is easiest to get.

Regulating Taxes.

He pointed out that in times of low industrial activity such as the present there is a large accumulation of idle capital and interest rates are low. In such times the Government could easily sell bonds at low interest rates. Whether taxes would have to be increased later, and to what extent, would depend on the volume of public works and the yield of revenue at normal rates when business was good.

Some tax increases probably would have to be made but in his opinion much less than will be involved in the continuance of such calamities as the present one. Dean Donham thinks this would have a good influence toward causing business to exert greater effort to avoid depressions and the consequent levies on capital. He said this would be a powerful stimulus to business to improve its own planning and to carry out the plans so made.

Any such general Governmental policy, he said, should include a planning board constantly in touch with community needs so that emergency work should have a maximum of social value.

The value of this plan, in Dean Donham's opinion, would go beyond the giving of work directly by the Government to large numbers of men. It would make the Government a large buyer of materials and he estimated that for every man put to work by the Government another would have a job in the production of materials.

Throughout his writings and addresses, Dean Donham has emphasized the importance of business itself developing intelligent leaderships and planning for the future to avoid overproduction and consequent serious business stagnation with the attendant evil of grave unemployment. Because of the rapid economic changes in the last 25 years he is not inclined to place the blame for the present depression on business's lack of foresight, but if another of similar severity comes he thinks business must bear the responsibility.

What Depression Has Done to Wages of Women

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 16.

THE woman's bureau of the Department of Labor today made public a report saying the clerical or white collar worker in New York "must have had to adjust her life during the past year to a lower standard of living in order to make her reduced earnings cover the necessities of life."

The report, made by the division of women in industry of the New York Department of Labor, was based upon a study of reduced wages in that city between the fall of 1929 and the present. The report cited not only numerous reductions in the wages of clerical workers but added that "specialized office workers, such as those having experience in insurance companies or banks and brokerage houses, have also felt the hard times."

It said wages for domestic workers apparently had gone down more than for any other class. The tendency to reduction seemed also to hold true for factory workers, it said, but they were harder to trace because of the substitution of piecework pay for the weekly wage. Salary levels, however, were found to have been sustained for saleswomen and restaurant workers.

The department made public a report from Miss Ethel M. Johnson, Assistant Commissioner of the Department of Labor and Industries of Massachusetts, saying firms which had come into that state from other states and opened factories in a number of instances paid women and girls wages as low as $5, $6 and $7 a week for full time work. "In some individual cases," it added, 'rates as low as $3 a week have been found."

"The situation exists particularly in some of the textile cities," it continued. "Owing to the serious business depression, it has been possible for these concerns to secure women and girls, and men and boys as well, at subnormal rates of wages."

The New York study related that before the crash in the stock market and the decline in business generally, clerk's wages ranged from $10 to $22 a week, with the general average between $15 and $18. This year clerks were found to range from $8 to $18 a week "and a much higher educational standard was required."

Other comparisons included a drop for typists from a $15 to $22 range to a $12 to $21 range, with the $12 offer the more usual"; stenographers, from $15 for a beginner to $35 for an expert, to $9 and $20, respectively; bookkeepers from $23 to $25 a week, down to $15; telephone operators on private boards from an $18 to $20 level down to $15; office machine operators from $14 to $12.

Specialized office workers comparisons included: Bank or brokerage statistical clerk, a $1600 a year instead of an $1800 a year maximum; general financial stenographer, a drop from a $1000 minimum salary down to $900 minimum; senior bookkeeper, drop from a $2600 annual salary to one

Farming With a $500 Stake.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PLEASE allow me to reply to the "Back to the Land" letter which appeared May 7. The very valued suggestion is given—from the country man's point of view—that the back-to-the-lander be fortified with a loan of $500 to finance the purchase of land at a valuation of $5 to $30 per acre and stock and equipment.

Hilly, stony land is worth perhaps 30 cents per acre for scenery purposes and nothing at all for profitable farming ventures. The neighbors will welcome the newcomer with genuine hospitality and open arms—because of the $500 in his wallet—and sell him a good milk cow for $75 and a good team of horses for $150—for these necessary farm animals are scarce and high in value at that opportune time.

The cow will give plenty of milk if fed about $3 worth of bran, middlings and corn by-products per week. Grass and tree foliage will not keep up a milk-producing cow—not even during the summer. The cow also requires a tightly-fenced pasture with plenty of good wholesome water. It requires constant watching to keep this fence in good shape, also more labor in milking, feeding, skimming the cream off the milk and marketing the cream once or twice per week at the local creamery for a sales price of approximately $1 per week. The farmer has the residue sour milk to use for himself and family, and to feed to the chickens. Perhaps he has been able to save a little cream for his coffee, too.

At the close of the year he finds his $500 gone; likewise the erstwhile friendly attitude of his rural neighbors has evaporated at about the same time his funds did. Horses and cows are now low in the local trading market. A cow will fetch about $20 from the local trader; horses are just not worth anything—mebbe they will sell for $10 apiece at a public sale, and the rest of the farm equipment will go at about 10 cents on the dollar.

Had he remained in the city he might have rented an apartment for $20 per month and bought the family groceries on what he paid out to feed the cow. He would also have more of the $500 to carry over at the close of the year provided he has lived as frugally in the city as he is forced to live in the country.

Chaplin's Keen Comment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

CHARLIE CHAPLIN, interviewed at Juan les Pins, doffed the motley to make the following observation:

> Patriotism, the greatest form of insanity from which the world ever suffered, is rampant everywhere and the result is going to be another war. The absurd provincialism of Europe, of London, of America, of France!

By patriotism, Chaplin means that narrow nationalism which erects tariff walls, finances huge armies and navies, fosters hatred, revenge and suspicion against other peoples. He said something.

Communism's Antidote.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NEWS dispatches state that Communists are fomenting trouble and influencing miners in Kentucky coal fields. So we have reached the point in this country where non-believers in private property rights and veritable sons of the revolution can, figuratively speaking, become bedfellows! Who would have thought it? The mountaineer who has at all times been willing to fight and die, if need be, for his possession of a cabin, a heifer, a shoat or even an illegitimate still, is fraternizing with disciples of bolshevism.

Insidiousness cannot be combated with force. The Czar with his myriad of minions tried that and where is the Czar? The counterfoil for Communism is contentment. Until recent years, the wellspring of contentment has been rural America. If this is changed, or is changing, it is not the fault of the ruralists, the roots of whose very being have been so strongly implanted in the soil. Exploitation has gradually severed these roots until the few surviving tendrils will hardly sustain life.

Lately the citadels of capital have promulgated the decree that land has no value, either as an investment or as a guarantee of safety or substantiality. What a fallacy! The captains of industry, the tax gatherers, the collectors of increment, should realize and appreciate the fact that the mightiest standing army America has ever had, the greatest force for peace, the most powerful insurance against the devastation of riotous anarchism, has been in the contented hearts and minds of the millions of people who dwell on the land. If the miasmatic fogs of communism ever settle over the hills and dales of rural America, the nation is doomed.

THE FROGS WANTED A KING.

The description of our period of political and economic make-believe as the "Coolidge-Mellon-Hoover regime" is not sufficiently inclusive. The name of Harding must be included, heading the list. We are paying a heavy penalty today because of the lack of faith in democracy and high idealism that led us to elect Warren G. Harding President of the United States.

The extraordinary campaign expenditures on behalf of Wood and Lowden to obtain the Republican nomination in 1920 should have given us some suspicion at least that great combinations of capital were interested in the selection of a President for some reason not solely connected with love of country. The Republican bosses feared the consequences, and when the deadlock between Wood and Lowden arose they cut the Gordian knot by selecting the genial and popular Senator from Ohio, who proceeded to surround himself with the sworn enemies of everything that Woodrow Wilson had stood for.

A nation that had been aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm for open covenants openly arrived at, indemnities without punitive clauses and victory without territorial aggrandizement, forsook those high standards and repudiated the leadership that had raised them. We yearned for the fleshpots of Egypt and we got them. Deep in our hearts we disapproved a policy that had let us fight in a war and then retire without the fruits of it. But business could yet rescue us from this predicament into which a college professor had inveigled us.

But, unfortunately, we didn't get good business. We got bad business, privilege-seeking business. Not a government of oil, steel, power and the building trades, but a government of those corruptionists to be found in every trade whose idea of business begins with lobbying and ends with low wages and hired private gunmen. Distrustful of democracy, we openly approved the liberty-destroying policies of Mussolini and voiced the hope that his like would arise among us. Like the frogs in the fable, we were ashamed of King Log, upon whose broad back we could sit and make our own decisions. We prayed for King Stork, and now King Stork is eating us up.

The question before us in the 1932 election will be, not whether we want this predatory monster still to be king over us, but whether we have the power to be rid of him. If it were merely a question of personalities, there would be little difficulty. Unless there is a business recovery within the next 12 months as striking as the depression that still casts its mantle of poverty over us, the great engineer will be retired to private life without the shedding of a tear by any except the inflationists who surround him. And it is quite probable that Mr. Coolidge, whose contribution to the inflation is becoming daily more evident, would not choose to run except upon the same somewhat improbable postulate; for under conditions like the present he would meet the same fate as his successor. The country in such a case will defeat any Republican who can be named unless the Republican nomination goes to one who has been outspokenly opposed to the administration for at least 10 years. But that means Borah or Norris or La Follette, and the theory that any one of that trio could win a Republican nomination would make us laugh if our eyes were not blinded by tears.

The Democratic party faces a harder problem than the defeat of the Republican party. It is to keep itself out of the hands of the same privilege-hunting gentlemen who represent bad business in the Republican party. They are the overworld, more dangerous to free institutions than the underworld, and made infinitely more powerful than ever by the alliance that has been brought about between the two by what the President has called with his usual political timidity, our "noble experiment."

In comparison with the expenditures that will be made next year by underworld and overworld combined to retain their joint control of American politics, the scandalous campaign funds of Messrs. Wood and Lowden combined will look like the present price of stocks. In comparison with the dark and devious mysteries by means of which these funds will be spent in alleys and byways and speakeasies next year to assure to the overworld the loyal vote and ballot frauds of the underworld, the corruption of the past will be as a day that is gone. And in comparison with the theft of the public domain that will follow the election of the representatives of bad business next year, if it occurs, the scandals of Harding's administration will be a white, unspotted page.

The purpose of government is the protection of life, liberty and property. Next year more than any previous year in our history will put to a test the ability of a democracy to protect any one of the three against those who participate in government as its enemies to secure special privileges at the cost of the people as a whole. We are to decide whether or not the system that President Harding's supporters started and that his successors have continued shall remain the controlling factor in American government.

Fortunately, the elections of last year afford an indication of how we are going to decide it.

USING MOSQUITOES TO CURE PARESIS.

Announcement by the Federal Public Health Service that it will breed mosquitoes to aid in the fight on paresis brings to public attention one of the most bizarre items of recent medical progress. That this insect pest can be converted to any use is surprising enough, and that it can be utilized to combat a particularly pernicious form of insanity, which accounts for 10 per cent of the patients in our asylums, is nothing short of startling. The effect of fever in arresting softening of the brain, as the disease is popularly known, has been studied by physicians for many years. For working out the use of malaria in this direction and then curing the malaria with quinine, Dr. J. Wagner von Jauregg of Vienna received the Nobel prize in 1927. Dr. Logan Clendening, in his "Modern Methods of Treatment" (1931), says: "The malaria method is by all odds the best one we have at present for paresis." It has resulted in improvement or recovery in 50 to 60 per cent of cases, but, of course, it cannot restore destroyed brain cells.

However, it has been difficult to transmit the milder form of malaria, the tertian type, through inoculations with the blood of malaria patients. Growing the organisms in the laboratory has proved impracticable. Hence the use of mosquitoes carrying this type of parasite has gained favor, but they have been difficult to obtain. To aid physicians in getting the proper kind of organism, the Government now has undertaken to find the most suitable variety of mosquito, to breed it artifically and to distribute infected specimens to doctors. Although the mosquito, in biting the patient, serves merely as an animated test tube for carrying the parasites, it becomes important in furthering treatment of a disease scourge. Man has scored a victory in the war with insects by forcing one type to become his ally.

WHEELS OR WINGS?

A dozen railroad experts traveled a short distance at the rate of 150 miles an hour at Hanover, Germany, on Sunday, in a stream-line, propeller-driven car, powered by a 12-cylinder engine. The car is the invention of a German engineer, Franz Kruekenberg. The normal speed of the car is 110 miles an hour, but the Sunday exhibition, which was a test to show its greater possibilities, was an impressive success.

It is lightly assumed now that posterity will do most of its journeying by air. The airplane may fairly be regarded as an infant prodigy, notwithstanding its phenomenal advance since the first feeble flutterings over the dunes of Kitty Hawk. But the obituary of surface transportation may not yet be written. The wheel has not surrendered to the wing. It is conceivable that the demonstration at Hanover presages a future for the railroad in which the locomotive will be a formidable factor in the utilitarian scheme.

There are multiplying reasons for that faith. The evolution of the automobile, for example, which is now in the eight-cylinder incarnation and moving on to larger multiples. Moreover, the present concrete road will, it may be believed, be succeeded by an improved type of construction. An article in Civil Engineering predicts raised center strips to prevent head-on collisions in four-lane highways, with outside lanes of smooth cement and inside lanes of rough macadam, and the erection of channelized islands in the throats of wide intersections—all designed to promote both speed and safety. And we hear of an incandescent element which will make highways self-illuminating, enabling the motor car to slough off its headlights as useless appendages, after biology's immemorial pattern.

The sheer logic of the automobile's advancement demands companionate progress in highway construction. So, too, with the railroads. If the Kruekenberg car heralds a new type of rolling stock, as may reasonably be assumed, inventiveness may be expected to provide a new type of track to achieve the utmost in speed, economy of operation and perfection of service. Friction, to be sure, will continue to be the bete noir of surface transportation, from which flight is relatively free, but aviation has its problem of safety to solve before mankind will desert the earth for the air.

Wheels or wings? It is a question loaded with the ingredients of a superb rivalry for the favor of the chosen people to be born.

A VETERAN SPEAKS.

J. Grant Frye of Cape Girardeau, who won the Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished Service Cross, said some unromantic things about war the other day at a Rotary Club meeting in Chillicothe that cannot be said too often in this country of ours. He urged more restraint in matters of "military glory." The United States, he said, must not teach its children "that narrow nationalism which has goaded the nations to so many sorrows," but instead instil in them "a patriotism which shall some day lead nations into that promised land of a warless world." It was a message of right thinking coupled with vision, heard by only a few, when it deserved a nation-wide hookup. If there were more veterans of Mr. Frye's type there would be less flag-waving "patriotism" in our country and more of the real article.

NEW YORK'S CANCER ROW.

Organized medicine is opposing the proposal of Drs. Coffey and Humber of San Francisco to set up a cancer clinic in New York. These two doctors have patented a treatment for cancer, and their administration of it has attracted numerous cancer sufferers. While no claim is made by its inventors that the treatment, consisting of an adrenal gland extract, constitutes a cure, they allege remarkable results have been obtained in clearing up cancer cases.

Except for the qualified indorsement of the California Medical Association, the profession as a whole has withheld approval of the Coffey-Humber treatment. In fact, in some quarters it has been severely criticised. In November, 1930, the Journal of the American Medical Association said the method "is in no sense of the word a 'cure,' and even its efficiency in treatment is exceedingly doubtful. * * * In the period of six months during which the treatment has been used, 13.5 per cent of the patients have died, about as many as would have died without the treatment." The New York Academy of Medicine last January passed a resolution saying:

> The announcement in California that they (Drs. Coffey and Humber) would treat cancer led to much suffering. Many hopelessly sick persons spent much or all of their money to get to the clinic of Drs. Coffey and Humber, and yet were not much benefited by the treatment. In fact, many died in a short time.

New York physicians make the point that establishment of a special clinic would be interpreted by cancer patients as an indorsement of the Coffey-Humber treatment by the State. They believe that an unfortunate situation would be thus created if the treatment did not live up to expectations. There have been so many false alarms on the subject of cancer that medicine can hardly be blamed for regarding new announcements with the greatest skepticism. If Drs. Coffey and Humber have made an important contribution, it can be thoroughly tested in their San Francisco clinic.

WELCOME, PINK GRAPEFRUIT.

Despite our ingrained reluctance to accept the new and unusual in foods, we greet the pink grapefruit with open arms. Word that it is to be raised on a large scale in the Rio Grande Valley is the best news the national breakfast table has had in many a moon. Now the elimination of grapefruit's great and only drawback is as good as an accomplished fact. For all along the trouble has been, not the speed of the grapefruit's line of juicy fire, but the invisibility of that death-dealing stream. Victims have never had a chance. A person can't duck something that can't be seen. With the juice pink and growing redder with the continuation of pomological research, the individual across the table will be forewarned, and being forewarned is being forearmed. That is, unless he is color blind. Let St. Louis be a leader in this great reform and at the same time support the agriculture of its Southwest. Ask your neighborhood grocer for pink grapefruit.

THE SPIRIT OF '31.

Trotzky on the Future of America

Roosevelt's fruitless fight on trusts and Hoover's acceptance of them show rise of economic power and loss of political rights in U. S., says exiled Russian leader; predicts "great outburst of Yankee truculence" against Europe; views arms limitation pact as vain gesture; thinks America's industrial advantage will dominate the world.

From an Interview With Leon Trotzky in the Manchester Guardian.

THE most striking feature of American life during the last quarter century has been the unprecedented growth of economic power and the equally unprecedented weakening of the political mechanism in the face of that power. Two episodes—one from the past, the other from the present—will illustrate what I mean.

Perhaps the most important, certainly the most vigorous activity of Roosevelt, who, ranks as the most noteworthy of recent Presidents, was his struggle against the trusts. What remains of that activity today? Vague memories among the older generation. The struggles of Roosevelt and the enactment of restrictive legislation were followed by the present formidable expansion of the trusts.

Now consider President Hoover. To him the trusts form almost as natural a part of the social system as material production itself. Hoover, who is credited the possession of an engineering mind, believed that the powerful trusts, on the one hand, and the standardization of production on the other, would be instruments capable of assuring uninterrupted economic development.

His spirit of engineering optimism pervaded, as is well known, the Hoover commission's investigation of recent economic changes in the United States. The report of this commission, which was signed by 17 apparently competent American economists, including Hoover himself, appeared in 1929. But a few months before the greatest crisis in American history, it painted a picture of untroubled economic progress.

Roosevelt sought to dominate the trusts; Hoover sought to dominate the crisis by giving rein to the trusts, which he considered the highest expression of American individualism. The significance of these two failures differs, but both the engineering prudence of Hoover and the obstreperous impulsiveness of Roosevelt reveal a helpless empiricism in the problems of social life.

The approach of an acute crisis was for long easily perceptible. The Hoover commission might have found weighty economic advice in the Russian press had it not been so laden with self-sufficiency. I myself wrote in the summer of 1928: "We cannot help but believe that a crisis will follow the present world swing of American capitalism, and that this crisis may be both deep and acute. But to assume that this approaching crisis will result in a weakening of the North American hegemony would be altogether foolish and could lead only to the grossest errors in political strategy. Exactly the opposite will occur; in a time of crisis the hegemony of the United States will prove more complete, more brutal, more merciless than in a time of upward swing. The United States will conquer her difficulties at the expense of Europe."

It must be admitted that only that part of this forecast has been fulfilled which deals with the imminence of a crisis, and not that part which prophesies an aggressive economic policy toward Europe on the part of the United States. In regard to this I can only say that the trans-Atlantic empire is reacting more slowly than I anticipated.

Certainly it cannot be disputed that the Americans have no experience or training in Weltpolitik; they have grown too quickly, and their views have not kept up with their bank accounts. But the history of humanity, especially English history, has amply illustrated how world hegemony is attained.

Now the material basis of the United States is on a scale heretofore unknown. The potential preponderance of the United States in the world market is far greater than was the actual preponderance of Great Britain in the most flourishing days of her world hegemony—let us say the third quarter of the nineteenth century. This potential strength must inevitably transfer itself into kinetic form, and the world will one day witness a great outburst of Yankee truculence in every sector of our planet. The historian of the future will inscribe in his books: "The famous crisis of 1930-193-? was a turning point in the whole history of the United States in that it evoked such a re-orientation of spiritual and political aims that the old Monroe Doctrine, 'America for the Americans,' came to be superseded by a new doctrine, 'The Whole World for the Americans.'"

The blustering militarism of the German Hohenzollerns, which rose with the yeast of the rapid development of capitalism, will appear as child's play before that accompanying the growing capitalist activity of the United States. Of Wilson's 14 points, which even at the moment of their formulation possessed no real content, there will remain still less, if that be possible, than remains of Roosevelt's fight against trusts.

The so-called "limitation of armaments" stands in no sort of contradiction to the forecasts outlined above, certainly not in contradiction to the direct interests of America. It is entirely obvious that a reduction of armaments prior to a conflict between two nations benefits the stronger far more than the weaker. The last war showed that hostilities between industrial nations last not months but years, and that war is waged not so much with weapons prepared beforehand as with those forged during the combat. The preponderance of "trustified" industry in the United States is capable, when deflected to war production, of endowing that country during a war with such a pre-eminence as we can today scarcely imagine.

From this standpoint, parity of navies is in fact no parity. It is a predominance assured beforehand to the one backed by the stronger industry. Quite apart from all possible doctrines, political programs, sympathies and antipathies, I believe that the naked facts and cold logic keep us from considering accords over parity of fleets or any agreements of a like kind as guarantees of peace, or indeed, as even any lessening of war danger. If a pair of duelists or their seconds agree beforehand on the caliber of the revolvers, it in no way prevents one of them from being killed.

Facts and processes tell us that the next epoch will develop beneath the shadow of powerful capitalist aggression on the part of the United States. In the third quarter (sic) of the fifteenth century Europe discovered America; in the second quarter of the twentieth century America will discover the world. Her policy will be that of the open door, which, as is well known, opens not inward but only outward in America.

LEADERS CLASH ON AUSTRO-GERMAN ECONOMIC UNION

Curtius Defends, Briand Attacks Proposal in Commission Meeting in Geneva.

THREE REMEDIAL PLANS OFFERED

France Urges General Commercial Agreements for Economic Rehabilitation of Europe.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, May 16.—Discussing Europe's economic difficulties today, the Commission for European Union developed three remedial schemes and emphasized the sharp conflict between the French and German attitudes toward the proposed Austro-German Custom Union.

The Austro-German proposal was defended in general terms by Foreign Minister Curtius of Germany and in specific terms by Vice Chancellor Johann Schober of Austria.

It was attacked on legal and political grounds by Foreign Minister Briand of France and on economic grounds by his colleague, Francois Poncet.

Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy approached the subject of the Austro-German accord with reserve, but said the existence of legal factors in connection with it was "recognized."

The general discussion of the European economic situation which brought out these opinions was finally adjourned until Monday afternoon after the sessions of the League of Nations' Council, Monday morning.

Favors Customs Unions.

Speaking broadly on the economic situation in Europe, Foreign Minister Curtius recommended the development of customs unions amonggroups of two or more states. This, he said, would be the logical working out of the league idea of international co-operation through regional agreements.

He pointed to the efforts made for general commercial agreements which, he said, have failed. Larger economic groups, and fewer of them, he regarded as the best method of encouraging European economic solidarity.

Germany, he declared, stood ready to negotiate customs agreements with any of its neighbor nations.

Briand responded immediately, in direct terms, to Curtius. France, Briand said, must oppose proposals for German-Austrian economic unity. Such a combination, he asserted, would provoke suspicion and alarm in Europe and disturb the nation.

"It is not by this route," he said, "that European peoples must march toward international amity."

Briand Offers Alternative.

Briand then proposed instead that further attempts be made to reach general commercial agreements. He warned, however, that "we must avoid doing what it is forbidden to do." He was alluding to previously existing treaties guaranteeing Austria's economic independence, which, France asserts, forbid such a combination as the proposed Austro-German accord.

Answering Briand, Curtius declared the European Commission, then in session, was without jurisdiction to discuss what is and what is not forbidden in regard to customs unions. This decision, he said, was the task of the League of Nations Council. He refrained, he explained, from a specific discussion of the Austro-German proposals because he understood the entire

The Italian proposal, presented by Foreign Minister Grandi, was to seek direct bilateral agreements for facilitating the exchange of goods and the expansion of credit. Grandi recalled Italy's trade agreement with Russia. He said Italy was ready "to give a sympathetic ear" to all plans for relief, but was opposed to any project for preferential customs rates on agricultural products economically unsound.

Austria's post-war condition is "most distressing," Vice Chancellor Schober said, championing the Austro-German plan. The country's annual imports, he said, exceed its exports by $140,000,000. Every general international effort at recovery had failed, he said, adding that Austria "is always ready to negotiate customs agreements with Russia."

The proposed Austro-German union, he said, did not conflict with league ideals, but represented a true development of the league's scheme for regional customs agreements. "Dire economic circumstances," he asserted, "led Austria to seek an economic merger with Germany."

Other national representatives who have still to speak in the general debate are Henderson of Great Britain, Litvinoff of Russia, Zaleski of Poland and Benes of Czechoslovakia.

France Urges General Commercial Agreements for Economic Rehabilitation of Europe.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, May 16.—Discussing Europe's economic difficulties today, the Commission for European Union developed three remedial schemes and emphasized the sharp conflict between the French and German attitudes toward the proposed Austro-German Custom Union.

The Austro-German proposal was defended in general terms by Foreign Minister Curtius of Germany and in specific terms by Vice Chancellor Johann Schober of Austria.

It was attacked on legal and political grounds by Foreign Minister Briand of France and on economic grounds by his colleague, Francois Poncet.

Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy approached the subject of the Austro-German accord with reserve, but said the existence of legal factors in connection with it was "recognized."

The general discussion of the European economic situation which brought out these opinions was finally adjourned until Monday afternoon after the sessions of the League of Nations' Council, Monday morning.

Favors Customs Unions.

Speaking broadly on the economic situation in Europe, Foreign Minister Curtius recommended the development of customs unions amonggroups of two or more states. This, he said, would be the logical working out of the league idea of international co-operation through regional agreements.

He pointed to the efforts made for general commercial agreements which, he said, have failed. Larger economic groups, and fewer of them, he regarded as the best method of encouraging European economic solidarity.

Germany, he declared, stood ready to negotiate customs agreements with any of its neighbor nations.

Briand responded immediately, in direct terms, to Curtius. France, Briand said, must oppose proposals for German-Austrian economic unity. Such a combination, he asserted, would provoke suspicion and alarm in Europe and disturb the nation.

"It is not by this route," he said, "that European peoples must march toward international amity."

Briand Offers Alternative.

Briand then proposed instead that further attempts be made to reach general commercial agreements. He warned, however, that "we must avoid doing what it is forbidden to do." He was alluding to previously existing treaties guaranteeing Austria's economic independence, which, France asserts, forbid such a combination as the proposed Austro-German accord.

Answering Briand, Curtius declared the European Commission, then in session, was without jurisdiction to discuss what is, and is not, forbidden in regard to customs unions. This decision, he said, was the task of the League of Nations Council. He had refrained, he explained, from a specific discussion of the Austro-German proposals because he had understood that the debate was to be entirely general.

The Italian proposal, presented by Foreign Minister Grandi, was to seek direct bilateral agreements for facilitating the exchange of goods and the expansion of credit. Grandi recalled Italy's trade agreement with Russia. He said Italy was ready "to give a sympathetic ear" to all plans for relief, but considered any project for preferential customs rates on agricultural products economically unsound.

Austria's post-war condition is "most distressing," Vice Chancellor Schober said, championing the Austro-German plan. The country's annual imports, he said, exceed its exports by $140,000,000. Every general international effort at recovery had failed, he said, adding that Austria "is always ready to negotiate customs agreements with any country."

The proposed Austro-German union, he said, did not conflict with league ideals, but represented a true development of the league's scheme for regional commercial agreements. "Dire economic circumstances," he asserted, "led Austria to seek an economic merger with Germany."

Other national representatives who have still to speak in the general debate are Henderson of Great Britain, Litvinoff of Russia, Zaleski of Poland and Benes of Czechoslovakia.

The French proposals for the economic rehabilitation of Europe embody relief measures for agriculture, industry and finance and recommend special treatment to put Austria back on its feet.

The first part of the French plan, which is regarded as a counter proposal to the projected Austro-German customs accord, deals with agricultural problems, the second covers industrial problems and the third problems of finance.

European preference for wheat from Central and Eastern Europe is proposed, with a central sales office and abandonment of the most favored nations clauses.

Industrial Organization.

The industrial section proposes organization for production and sale of steel, coal and chemical products, automobiles, textiles, wool, lumber and heavy electric plants, either through existing industrial groups or through new ones to be created. Close understanding among these various industries is characterized as imperative.

In the third part the French Government offers its financial cooperation in execution of the financial program, on condition that the League of Nations Finance Committee shall control state loans for public works and quotations on foreign securities listed on the Paris Bourse. Under the leadership of the Bank of France several French banks would be grouped to study conditions under which they would participate in foreign investment operations.

The proposal asks that European states which are customers of Austria give that national special facilities to increase its outlets abroad.

$140,000,000 Bond Issue Sought.

The committee of the states which are guarantors of the Austrian Loan announced it had received favorably the proposal from Austria for an issue of Austrian Treasury bonds. It is understood Austria asked that the issue be for about $140,000,000.

The announcement said a representative of the committee would go tomorrow to Basel with the Austrian delegation to discuss the terms of the plan with the World Bank for International Settlements and to talk about necessary measures for negotiating the issue. The guarantors' committee will make a final decision Monday.

2100 PATROLS OF BOY TRAFFIC COPS PARADE

Acting Mayor Neun Addresses School Children Demonstrating Against Careless Drivers.

In a show of strength that brought forth a three-quarter mile Parade, and packed the rotunda of City Hall at the end of the march, 2100 School Boy Patrols yesterday engaged in a demonstration against reckless driving and violation of traffic regulations.

Wearing the shining badges, the white Sam Browne belts and the overseas caps with which they face motorists at intersections near schoolgrounds daily, they trekked east on Lindell boulevard from the Automobile Club, down Olive street and Twelfth boulevard, and just before noon swarmed into City Hall.

Save for the neat white and blue uniforms of a number of accompanying school bands and the respectful attention given the marchers by regular traffic officers—who seemed curiously superannuated by such a throng—the crowd came to City Hall with an enthusiasm reminiscent of a Communistic demonstration, and an eager desire to see the Mayor or Acting Mayor.

American flags tossed here and there in the assemblage but the mass of home-made placards overwhelmed attention in every direction. "Jail the Reckless" one read, and others, "License All Drivers," "Courtesy Demands Safety," "Why Slaughter the Innocent," and "When A Fellow Needs A Friend, We're It."

Placards were stacked inside the hall and then picked up again to make room for a crowd that seeped up the stairs to second and third floor balconies, a mass whose cheers and whistles were enough to hold the traffic of perhaps a dozen cities. Mopping brows, loosening collars and lining up obediently at a single trickling drinking fountain, they awaited the speechmaking.

Acting Mayor Neun, hurrying down the stairs from a conference where he had been dealing with another traffic situation in the street car dispute, stood as if amazed, but told them in his first sentence that the sight of them was "inspiring."

"I want to encourage you, and congratulate you," he said. "You are doing more than saving your schoolmates; you are taking an interest in the civic affairs of St. Louis, which it will be yours to handle a few years from now. I thank you for coming."

The School Boy Patrols were organized by the Automobile Club in 1928 to protect the lives of children at schoolgrounds and to teach obedience to traffic rules. In that year there were 25 school children killed, the next year only 15, and last year the number was down to 10. Ten to 25 boys are chosen at each school on the basis of scholarship and general leadership, and are stationed near the school.

Belts and badges are provided by the Automobile Club, which yesterday gave through its president, Roy F. Britton, a large blue and silver banner bearing the emblem of the organization. Schools represented by bands and drum corps yesterday were The Principia, the Lowell, Harrison, Dewey, Ames, Fanning, Webster and Carondelet Schools, and Bristol School of Webster Groves.

DROPS LIBEL SUIT AGAINST ONE OF FIVE DEFENDANTS

County Circuit Clerk Jacobsmeyer Withdraws Action Against Josephus M. Todd.

A libel suit for $100,000 filed by Oscar Jacobsmeyer, Circuit Clerk of St. Louis County, against the St. Louis County Taxpayers' League and four of its officers last August was dismissed as to one of the defendants, Josephus M. Todd, at Clayton yesterday.

Todd, a Webster Groves attorney, is chairman of the League's executive committee. Other officers named in the suit as individual defendants were George W. Baumhoff, J. A. Jennings and Gus Loeffel. The suit followed issuance, by the league, of a circular attacking Jacobsmeyer's candidacy for Circuit Clerk.

In dismissing the action as to Todd, Jacobsmeyer said he believed that Todd was not morally liable for the circular although he might be legally liable. Todd testified in a deposition, taken in February, that he had been chairman of the league's executive committee only a short time before issuance of the circular and had not authorized the league to use his name in the matter.

CHARGED WITH MURDER SO COUNTY CAN SAVE $5 A DAY

Taxpayer in New Bloomfield, Pa., Objects to Paying Woman As Material Witness.

By the Associated Press.

NEW BLOOMFIELD, Pa., May 16.—Mrs. Lola Mell was under a formal charge of murder today because a taxpayer objected to having her receive $5 a day while being held as a material witness. James C. Wright, whose wife was found slain, swore out a warrant for Mrs. Mell at the request of John Motter, a local attorney, who said he was acting as a taxpayer. While Mrs. Mell was held as a material witness, he said, the county was obliged to pay her $5 a day. As soon as the warrant was served, her pay ceased.

Wright's wife, Mrs. Eleanor May Wright, a coroner's jury said yesterday, was slain by James Ritter. Mrs. Mell, who was Ritter's housekeeper, testified at the inquest Ritter struck Mrs. Wright with a stove poker. Ritter is in jail. Charles H. Smiley, Perry County District Attorney, expressed surprise when he learned that Wright had preferred a murder charge against Mrs. Mell.

TWENTY GRAND SETS RECORD, WINNING DERBY

JOHN BERLY, ONCE OWNED BY REDBIRDS, BEATS THEM

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, May 16. — Rochester, Houston, Danville and other links in the great Cardinal baseball chain have contributed many brilliant young athletes who have helped to bring fame and fortune to the mother organization, but this afternon a cocky young gentleman who learned his curves and his pitching technique while doing chores at the various Redbirds' farms, stepped out to the pitching rubber at the Polo Grounds and made the St. Louis bats as useless as an eye dropper at a general alarm fire.

John Berly was the young man who did the stepping and pitching, and because he held the Redbirds to three hits in six innings, and because Charles Flint Rhem couldn't protect a three-run lead, the Giants captured the first game of the important series, 7 to 5.

Berly Steals Show.

Berly, in stopping the Redbirds so effectively, stole the show from his teammate of last year, young Pepper Martin, the wild horse of the Osage, who started as though he were bound for a flock of banner lines and the rotogravure section of all the Eastern papers.

Martin made two singles, scored two runs and drove two comrades over the plate while Carl Hubbell was the New York pitcher, but when he had to face the curves and dipsydoo slow balls of young Mr. Berly it was an entirely different story.

The big clash between the two young graduates from Rochester 1930 was in the seventh inning. The bases were filled and it looked like the great chance for Martin to settle the question of banner lines and a rotogravure picture. But Martin had to bow to Berly. The bow was in the form of a harmless grounder that Martin sent to Jackson, forcing Bottomley at second to end the only inning in which Berly was in anything that could be described at all as approximating danger.

Three Homers Off Rhem.

Three home runs by free swinging members of the Giants helped to make the day a Berly affair. Allen, Ott and Hogan were clubbers who pounded four-baggers against the facades and ramparts of the Polo Grounds stands, and as one man was on when Ott hit his homer, the wallops accounted for four of the New York tallies.

New York errors helped the Cardinals to their early lead. With one out in the second, Hafey singled to center and took second on Ott's fumble, scoring on Martin's single to left. After Gelbert ground-

INDIANS OBTAIN KAMM IN TRADE FOR FONSECA

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., May 16.—Lew Fonseca, hard-hitting first baseman of the Cleveland Indians, was traded tonight to the Chicago White Sox for William Kamm, best defensive third baseman in the American League.

The trade, involving no money, was made by telephone between Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians, and Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox. Evans, in announcing the deal, also indicated he was negotiating for an experienced shortstop to plug another weak spot in the Indian defense.

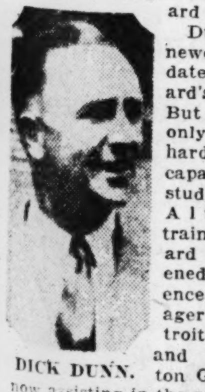
The steps are in recognition of the weakness in the infield, which has done much to put the Indians on the skids in the league race in the last week, Evans said. Cleveland lost its eighth straight game today and was in fifth place. Last Saturday it was leading.

Evans declined to identify the shortstop he is seeking except to say he is "the outstanding shortstop in the minor leagues and a man of several season's experience as a major league regular."

WRAY'S COLUMN

Making It Hard for Him.

SEVERAL men have been termed "successor to Tex Rickard." But Fistiana is still without a super-promoter. There is no individual who has caught the public imagination as Rickard did.



DICK DUNN.

Dunn is the newest candidate for Rickard's crown. But they are only making it hard for this capable understudy to Tex. Although trained by Rickard and broadened by experience as manager of the Detroit Olympia and the Boston Garden, and now assisting in the promotion at Cleveland of Schmeling and Stribling, Dunn hasn't the same made-to-order situation confronting him.

Practically all of the elements that contributed to Rickard's success are wanting, today. In the first place a "big fight" is no longer a novelty. Million dollar gates are an old story. In the second place the stage is not set for a great battle between an idolized national champion and a foreign challenger. Then again the great national pocketbook no longer is filled to the brim and running over. And to cap it all there are no longer the fighters, the color or the class to catch and hold the popular attention.

A Real Miracle Man.

WE stand ready to believe that, in the face of all these handicaps, if any promoter can put over a million-dollar Cleveland fight between a man who won his title on a foul and a challenger who has failed every time he has had a chance, then he is not merely "another Tex Rickard." He is a far greater wizard than Rickard himself ever was.

And this goes double since the announcement that Sharkey and Carnera will fight in Brooklyn June 10, preceeding the Cleveland contest

TWO CALIFORNIA ATHLETES EQUAL WORLD RECORDS

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—The Golden State's track and field athletes sent their warning to Eastern members of the I. C. A. A. A. A. today in the form of two world records tied and 10 meet marks eclipsed as the University of Southern California team retained its California intercollegiate championship.

Coach Dean Cromwell's Trojans rolled up a 93-point total. Coach Dink Templeton's Stanford Indians amassed 49 points, while California finished third with 19 and the University of California at Los Angeles, infant member of the group, last with two.

Ben Eastman, Stanford's sophomore quarter-miler, equalled the 15-year-old mark of 47.4 seconds around two turns, held by Ted Meredith.

Frank Wykoff, who has frequently tied the 100-yard world record of 9.5 seconds, set in 1929 by Eddie Tolan, and twice bettered it with yet unaccepted speed splurges of 9.4 seconds, today again tied the official mark.

William Graber, Troy's sophomore pole vaulter, made a bid for a world's record, attempting to clear the bar at 14 feet, 2 inches, or one-half inch to the skyward of Lee Barnes' record, but he failed in the final attempt.

The new meet records came in the mile, which Cliff Halstead of S. C. won in 4:23.8; the two-mile run taken by the diminutive but determined Everitt Mossman of California, in 9 minutes 39.4 seconds; the half-mile, captured by Victor Fitzmaurice, Trojan, in 1:55.4; the javelin throw, won by Kenneth Churchill of the Golden Bears, with a toss of 212 feet 1 inch; Wykoff's 100 and 220-yard dashes; Eastman's spirited quarter; Don Barber's 24 feet 9¼-inch leap in the broad jump adding to the Trojan's total; the 220-yard low hurdle victory by Ernest Payne of S. C. in 23.4 seconds, and the 3:15.2 mile relay turned in by the Stanford quartet.

Harvard Rows To Victory in Three Events

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Harvard rowed to three impressive victories in Pennsylvania's home regatta on the windswept Schuylkill River today.

The Crimson beat Navy by a lenght and a half in the varsity race of a mile and a half with Pennsylvaia a poor third. Harvard's time for the ruffled course was 8m 1s, while Navy, rowing one of its best races of the season, did 8m 5 3-5s.

In the junior varisity, Harvard had things its own way and beat Pennsylvania by two and three-quarter lengths, while Marietta College of Marietta, O., making its debut in college rowing circles, was a scant length and a quarter back of Penunsylvania. Harvard's time in the junior varsity for the mile and a half was 8m 22s.

Harvard's freshman crew gave the wash to Pennsylvania yearlings, there being but two starters. The crimson first-year men had three lengths to spare doing the stretch in 8m 34s.

This was Harvard's second straight victory of the season, Princeton and Massachusetts Tech being beaten two weeks ago on the Charles River.

Withdrawal of Equipoise Stuns Derby Crowd; Colt Has Cracked Fore Hoof

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE Ky., May 16.—The announcement of the withdrawal of Equipoise from the Derby simply stunned the early arrivals at Churchill Downs this afternoon. It seemed almost as great a surprise to young trainer Freddie Hopkins as to the casual visitor for until this morning it was not suspected anything was amiss with the game son of Pennant and Swinging.

Equipose breezed satisfactorily yesterday morning and when taken back to the barn showed no apparent soreness. But this morning the colt was a cripple, no more or less. Expert examination disclosed the fact that he was suffering from a blind quarter-crack in the right fore hoof. It may be remembered that is was this same affliction that incapacitated Whichone of the same stable as a three-year-old a year ago. Which One's trouble was not discovered until after the running of the mile and a half Belmont, which was won by Gallant Fox. Later in the Travers of a mile and a quarter at Saratoga Whichone broke down and did not return to the races. He was run in a bar plate to protect the tender hoof from which the blind quarter crack had been cut.

Perhaps no Derby candidate ever commanded a greater play in the winter books than did Equipoise, the champion money winning two-year-old of 1930 despite the fact that G. D. Widener's Jamestown was conceded the juvenile championship because of his victory in the Futurity. In view of the heavy play in question C. V. Whitney was very anxious that Equipoise's supporters should be given a run for their money. It was believed the colt had entirely recovered from the indisposition that caused his dismal performance in the Chesapeake at Havre de Grace, when he ran last in a small field. After yesterday's breeze Hopkins declared his colt better than he had been at any time since the Chesapeake and predicted Equipoise would run much better in the Derby than he did in the Preakness.

HORSES, BOYS AND A RABBIT ALL SHOW SPEED

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—The thousands of turf patrons that thronged Churchill Downs today received more than they bargained for in the way of fast running.

Early in the afternoon small boys and grownups in legions began vaulting the back fence at a point where no police guards were posted. The movement grew into a concerted rush to the infield, where the hundreds of gate crashers paused for breath, then split into two divisions, one band heading for the stretch rail and the others running at top speed for the west stands to occupy seats the management had not intended to be free.

Soon came the fourth race, and Gallant Knight stepped into fame by setting a world's record for six and a half furlongs. Most of the spectators, however, did not know at the time they had witnessed a world record-breaking performance.

Rabbitt Shows Its Foot.

The next exhibition of speed, however, was quite evident. A few minutes before the Derby field was led from the paddock, a frightened rabbit appeared from nowhere and hippity-hopped down the stretch. How he did run—and how the crowd laughed and applauded. Mechanical rabbits at dog racing tracks are necessary fixtures, but a real rabbit on Der-

Twenty Grand, much the best and slow to begin, was sent up slowly after a half mile, raced up strongly on outside at second turn and wearing down Sweep All, drew away fast and had speed in reserve. Sweep All broke slowly but saved ground working way up fast in first quarter. Followed the leaders under restraint in back stretch and raced into a good lead at stretch turn, but could no withstand the winner, yet was widely best of others. Mate improved his position fast in first quarter, saved ground at second turn and failed to rally under vigorous driving in stretch. Spanish Play began slowly and closed with good courage. Boys Howdy began fast and finished well after dropping back on far turn. Insco held on well. Pittsburgher began slowly, met early interference and was never a factor. Ladder quit badly after one mile. Prince d'Amour had early speed.

$2 mutuels paid: Twenty Grand, win $3.76, place $3, show $2.60; Sweep All, place $15.58, show $7.60; Mate, Show $3.62.

By W. J. Macbeth
Of the New York Herald Tribune Sport Staff.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand, which, coupled with Surf Board and the tempermental Anchors Aweigh, was the prime favorite of a field of twelve in the fifty-seventh Kentucky Derby run at historic Churchill Downs this afternoon, acquitted himself in the noblest fashion of this famous stake's history.

Perfectly ridden by Charlie Kurtsinger, the son of St. Germans and Bonus not only won easily but hung up a new track record for the mile and a quarter in doing it. The long-striding thoroughbred, as well built and powerful as ever had gone to the races in many years, stepped down to the judges' stand in the sensational time of 2:01 4-5 to earn the major award of $49,250.

Under the steadying impost of 126 pounds, Twenty Grand clipped one and two-fifths seconds off the track record of 2:03 1-5 that the seven-year-old Woodtrap had established under the feather of 106 pounds. Furthermore, Twenty Grand shattered even worse the record for the Derby, which Old Rosebud hung up at 2:03 3-5. He beat it, of course, by one and three-fifths seconds.

Twenty Grand paid $3.76 to win, $3 to place and $2.60 to show. The place price on Sweep All was $15.58, with $7.60 to show. Mate paid the show price of $3.62.

Four Lengths in Front.

A crowd of more than 60,000 cheered itself hoarse as this well-played favorite galloped some four lengths in front of Dixiana's Sweep All, an outsider that sprang a particularly startling surprise as the Sweep colt was figured to be a gone gosling when the track dried out to a constituency of pasteboard.

Sweep All forced all the brilliant pace and was mainly responsible for the record-breaking performance of Twenty Grand.

A fly dropped into the ointment this morning, however, almost before the earliest arrivals when it was discovered that Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Equipoise, greatest two-year-old money winner of 1930, and lustiest rival of Twenty Grand both as a two-year-old and again as a three-year-old, would not be able to go to the post.

Gallant Knight Beats Boojum's World Record

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.

GALLANT KNIGHT, runner-up to Gallant Fox in the 1930 Derby, raced to a new world's record of 1 minute, 16 1-5 seconds for six and a half furlongs in winning the fourth race here today, immediately preceding the Derby.

The Audley Farm's four-year-old, ridden by Jockey H. Schutte, set the new mark in beating Miss Blanche Watson's Nostaw by three lengths and E. F. Prichard's Tannery, another Derby favorite last year.

Gallant Knight's time wiped out the world's record of 1:17 set by the Whitney colt Boojum, as a two-year-old in 1929 at Saratoga. The former Churchill Downs track record was 1.17 3-5.

Sweep All Upholds Traditions of West; Twenty Grand Looks Like Belmont Winner

Sweep All saved the honor of the Mid-West if not of the Blue Grass State. This horse was bred in Kentucky but is owned by Charles T. Fisher of Detroit. Though beaten four lengths he was in no manner disgraced. No three-year-old that stood on plates could have beaten the Twenty Grand of today. If nothing happens to him meanwhile, he should win the Belmont by a city block or more, for he was crying to run away with Kurtsinger after it was all over and when he returned to weigh out, he was not puffing hard enough to blow out a candle.

That Twenty Grand, on his pasteboard track, is in a class all by himself among the three-year-olds he proved conclusively this afternoon.

Greentree's First Derby.

This, by the way, was the first Kentucky Derby won by the popular Greentree Stable and in winning Twenty Grand reflected the sportsmanship of the late Harry Payne Whitney, whose Regret, that won this stake in 1915, was the only filly ever to have accomplished such a noble feat. The third dam of Twenty Grand is Remembrance, which is a daughter of this same Regret.

Against Twenty Grand in his fine fettle of this afternoon even an Equipoise at his very best could scarce have hoped to save the winter money wagered on his chances. The best he possibly could have hoped for was second money. He might have beaten Sweep All but under pressure Twenty Grand might have clipped further fractions from the stake and track records and saying that is the highest posible praise. It should be remembered that when the great old Rosebud hung up his record this Kentucky Derby was not a weight for age event. Old Rosebud carried only 114 pounds to his brilliant victory.

Twenty Grand's Winnings Total "Hundred Grand"

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.

TWENTY GRAND, winner of the Kentuky Derby, now has won more than 100 "grand" for Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable. He won $56,580 before winning the $48,725 Derby purse today, which made his total winnings $105,305.

Twenty Grand won the Wood Memorial this year, and was second in the Preakness. As a two-year-old he was first in the junior champion stakes, the Kentncky Jockey Club Stakes and two other races.

Besides the Derby record, 2:01 4-5, set today, he holds the world mile record for two-year-olds, 1:36, set in the Jockey Club Stakes at Churchill Downs.

Anchors Aweigh, which in view of the withdrawal of Equipoise broke from the second stall, was quite as obstreperous as usual. He was hard to handle even with a switch and consequently was off absolutely last. He never figured at

15 RECORDS FALL AS UNIVERSITY CITY WINS COUNTY MEET

OWEN SETS NEW MARKS WINNING IN DASHES OF SENIOR GROUP

POINT TOTALS

	Jun.	Sen.	Totals.
U. City	58	47	105
Webster	27	52	79
Maplewood	22	27½	48½
St. Charles	8½	14½	23
Kirkwood	7	10	17
Clayton	9½	2	11½
Wellston	8	0	8

Track and field athletes of St. Louis County took advantage yesterday of ideal weather conditions to break 15 records, establish two new records, and tie one other, in one of the most sensational meets in the history of the association. Webster was the winner of the senior division with 52 points to U. City's 47; Maplewood coming in third with 27½ markers. U. City's margin of victory in the junior division, however, was enough to give them the honors when the two divisions were totaled. U. City had 58 points in the juniors, with Webster having 27, and Maplewood 22. Total points were: U. City, 105; Webster, 79; Maplewood, 49½.

The javelin throws were the unusual feature of the day, both records being broken by many feet. In the senior division, Arthur de Salme of Webster hurled the javelin 185 feet 9 inches, and in the junior division Butler Caskey of U. City threw it 180 feet 6 inches.

Jimmy Owen of Maplewood came through as expected in the dashes, setting new records in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. He clipped three-tenths of a second off the hundred mark, and one and two-tenths seconds off the 220-yard mark. The finish of the hundred was very close, all four men being at the finish bunched within a yard.

An Upset.

An upset of the day was the defeat of Karl MacKenzie of U. City, State champion in the 440, by Charles Burgess of Webster, who nosed MacKenzie out in the quarter-mile by about three inches, a desperate drive in the last 10 yards giving Burgess first place.

Both high jump marks were beaten by a half-inch, Mason of Wellston setting the junior mark, and Short of U. City and Kelley of Webster jointly setting the senior record. The relay team of Maplewood turned in the best performance of the day, running the 880 relay in 1 minute 32 seconds, 4½ seconds better than the old mark.

Butler Caskey of U. City was the star of the day, setting two new records, winning three first, a second and a fourth. Caskey set records in the javelin and broad jump, and really should have another record in the hurdle race. The old hurdle mark of 14.7 seconds was made when only five hurdles were used instead of 10. Hence his mark of 15.6 should be the record, as the next best time made in previous meets was 15.8 seconds.

Roosevelt Wins, Takes Lead When Cleveland Is Beaten

By Harold Tuthill.

An unwelcome surprise sent the Cleveland team tumbling down from first place in the City High School League baseball race, as Beaumont won the second game of the semi-final double-header from the Carondelet school, 10 to 3, yesterday afternoon. Roosevelt eased into undisputed possession of the lead by downing Central, 8 to 5, in the first contest at the Public Schools Stadium.

The upset would have been twofold, if Central had played heads-up ball in the first contest. The Mid-Cityans forgot all they knew when they were on base and twice runners were trapped attempting to steal. Once, in the sixth, George Straith singled to start the inning, strayed off first, and Bernie Drumm picked him off. Since a walk and three singles followed to net only one run, Straith's mental lapse was costly.

Murrel Effective in Pinches.

Jack Murrel pitched a good game despite the 16 safeties Central gathered off his shoots. The most pleasing thing about Murrel's performance was that he proved he could go the full nine innings. The doubt of his ability to last almost leaped into expression when Central scored three times in the ninth frame, and had two on with one out. Alex Schnurman struck out and Murrel threw out Keleman to end the game.

Charley "Brownie" Baronovic was responsible for Roosevelt's two runs in the third, when he got his first triple with Valci on first. Baronovic counted on Drumm's ace over second. The second of "Brownie's" two three-ply swats drove in two more runs in the sixth and Baronovic counted the fourth run of the round on a wild pitch.

Gray Fans 14 Batters.

One bad inning, the third, when Beaumont scored seven runs, spoiled what might have been an otherwise interesting game. Bob Wilfert seemed to have the situation well in hand when Fuller, first up, rolled out and Gallagher struck out. Leonard Reiter dropped Gray's third strike and in trying to throw the Beaumont pitcher out at first threw over Vierheller's head, Gray reaching second. Five hits and two walks drove Wilfert from the mound after six runs scored and Ernie Weiss was found for another before the side could be retired. The ex-leaders of the league gave up after that round, because Hayward Gray was too stingy with hits. Gray struck out 14 of the Cleveland batters.

The standings of the schools:

Roosevelt	5	1	.833
Cleveland	4	2	.667
Beaumont	3	5	.375
Central	2	4	.333

PITTSBURG TEACHERS WIN CENTRAL MEET

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., May 16.—Shattering six meet records and completely outclassing the field, the Pittsburg Teachers' College won its fourth straight central conference track and field title here this afternoon.

Three other new meet records were written into the books by the athletes of the University of Wichita, who placed second.

Pittsburg amassed a total of 82 1-5 points to 42 1-5 for Wichita, which had been figured as a strong contender.

The Emporia Teachers pulled up in third place with 13 1-5; Washburn and Southwestern tied for fourth with 8 7-10, the college of Emporia earned 7 points and Fort Hays State College ranged last with three.

CARIDEO SUBSTITUTES FOR ROCKNE; SPEAKS AT SCHOOL BANQUET

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 16.—Frank Carideo, lithe quarterback who is credited with winning many football games for his late mentor, Knute Rockne, tonight substituted for the Notre Dame wizard as speaker at a father and son banquet.

Weeks before the fatal airplane crash which ended Rockne's career at its height, the noted coach promised authorities at Pembroke School where his two sons are students, that he would speak at the banquet. The task fell to Carideo.

"I'm glad to be here," the quarterback said, "but I'd give anything if "Rock" were here instead."

45 Roosevelt Stars Qualify For High School Meet Finals

Placing the most athletes in each of the three divisions, the Roosevelt High track team greatly outnumbered all other city high school teams in qualifiers in the preliminaries held yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium for the final meet which is to be held next Friday afternoon.

Roosevelt's total qualifiers numbered 45, the Rough Riders having 17 men in the senior division, 16 in the juniors, and 12 in the midget section. The next closest team was Beaumont with only 29, Cleveland followed with one less, Soldan had 23, while Central placed but 12.

Not a record was broken, the athletes being content to qualify.

Soldan was second in the senior section, placing 13 men. Cleveland was very close to Roosevelt in the juniors, with 15 qualifiers, while in the Midget's Beaumont have 9 runners.

There are quite a few marks that should be bettered in the finals, judging by the closeness of trial races. In the senior 440-yard dash, Reyburn of Cleveland came within two-tenths of a seconds of the old record of Johanningmeir of Soldan made in 1927 at 52:5. The senior 220 dash will also probably be bettered, as Shaw took it in 12.2 seconds, just one second more than the old mark.

The junior century dash, the midget low hurdles, and the junior broad jump are others likely to have records broken.

SCRATCH OF EQUIPOISE STUNS DERBY CROWD; HORSE'S HOOF CRACKED

by day is an extra added attraction.

Then Twenty Grand circled the oval for a new record for the mile and a quarter Derby distance and for the Churchill Downs track record. All in all—speed was the order of the day.

After the Derby had been run, the race track became public property for the time being. Thousands of fans broke through the mounted police guard to swarm on the turf, supposedly the stamping ground for horses only. They were determined, however, to see the king of the thoroughbreds bedecked with his wreath of roses.

Few were able to hear the words of Vice President Charles Curtis, the guest of honor, broadcast through loud speakers as he presented the gold trophy to Mrs. Payne Whitney. The almost 60,000 cash-paying customers and gate crashers kept up a continuous pandemonium of cheers and, it must be said, groans. It all depended upon what horse the individual had wagered his money.

All the Trimmings.

The sunshine, the flowers, the sky, the horses, an autogyro, Earl Sande, the Vice President, the Governor of Kentucky, the new frocks worn by women patrons—everything that goes to make up a successful Derby day was on hand. And the concession operators made a killing. Five deep, thirsty racegoers crowded around soft drink stands battling for something to slake their thirst.

It was more of a battle to get to the ticket windows to lay a wager, or, to those who were fortunate, to cash tickets. Lots of people cashed tickets after the Derby, though, for Twenty Grand was the odds-on favorite.

What's the Derby without a true touch of the South? This touch was furnished by two small Negro boys battling for possession of a stick in front of the stands. This one incident didn't end very happily, for one of the urchins received a nasty crack on the crown of his head with the prize the fight was all about. The wielder kept the stick.

For almost everyone else, though, it was a perfect day. Even though it ended with the usual battle through traffic after the big event was history.

The owner of Equipoise, C. V. Whitney, had a thrill early in the afternoon as his Chimney Sweep won the second race.

Defeat of Spanish Play and Pittsburger Saves Bookmakers

The fifty-seventh Derby apparently proved a harvest for the "big stores" that made a future book on the Derby. While Twenty Grand was liberally played, he was held a short price from the beginning, more than two months ago.

The heaviest play was on Equipoise, favorite, on which hundreds of thousands of dollars were wagered. Held at 6 to 1 in the early wagering he was backed down to as short as 3 to 1. When he was scratched all the money wagered on him in the future books went to the bookmakers. It was estimated that his withdrawal cost the public $1,000,000.

After the Preakness, Mate, the winner, divided the future book Derby play with Twenty Grand. Most of this money was bet "on the nose," in other words to win.

The books reaped a harvest on Mate, as well.

The bookmakers did not breathe freely until the returns of the race showed that neither Pittsburgher nor Spanish Play had finished in the money. Both of these horses were played heavily at long odds and were backed down from about 10 to 1 in the early days of the book opening to 15 to 1 yesterday. Had either or both run one, two, a financial disaster might have followed.

Tom Kearney, who operates one of the biggest books in the country on the Derby, when asked how he fared remarked: "Well, the same old way. Always feel lucky to come out even. That's about where I'll land when I figure it up. Worked all winter and get nothing for it. That's the bookmaker's life."

And then he winked.

WISCONSIN TRACKMEN WIN FROM CHICAGO AND IOWA ATHLETES

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., May 16.—All around strength gave Wisconsin a triangular track victory over Iowa and Chicago here today as two stadium records were established. The Badgers collected 86 points by scoring in every event. Iowa finished second with 62 and the Maroons trailed with 17.

Dale Letts, Chicago's great middle distance star, entered only one race—the half mile—and gave a championship performance. Letts finished in 1 m. 54.8 s. to establish a new Randall track record.

A leap of 13 feet 4 inches by Ralph Lovshin, Wisconsin, set a new field record.

The Badgers won eight firsts and placed in every event; Iowa took six firsts and placed in 13 of the 15 events while Chicago scored its only first on Letts' victory and counted in just four of the runs.

Bill Killefer's Browns yesterday battled the Washington Senators through 11 innings but, in the end, the result was what has become an old Brownie custom—defeat. Rip Collins essayed his first 1931 start, but was convinced by a barrage of hits in the sixth that he should have waited a bit longer. Coffman relieved and did good work until the fatal eleventh. The final score was 9-7.

As usual, the Browns led in the early stages and just as usual, they were later overcome despite the fact that they did tie the count in the eighth. Home runs were potent factors in the Washington attack, Bluege, Cronin and Hargrave hitting them. Hargrave's came in the sixth when, with two on, he pinched for Spencer and cleared the right-field pavilion.

Fischer, Burke and Marberry were used by Manager Johnson in winning the game. The decision came in the eleventh, when, with men on third and first and two out, Joe Cronin tripled to right center for the two marginal runs.

Each team made 14 hits but nine of Washington's were for extra bases. Only two St. Louis hits were for more than one base. Melillo led the Browns' attack with four safeties.

Browns Fifth Straight Loss.

It was the Browns' fifth successive defeat; thus far, they have failed to win a game from an eastern club.

Washington got away in front with two runs in the second. After West had fouled out, Bluege pushed one into the left-center seats for the round-trip. Jordan then doubled past first and scored when, in trying for a play at third, Collins threw Spencer's tap past the bag.

In the last half, the Browns got one of these runs back. Kress walked as a starter and advanced on infield outs by Jenkins and Melillo. After McNeely had walked Ferrel shot a single to right to score Kress.

The third saw the Browns take the lead. Levey beat out a slow hopper toward third. Burns bunted and got a hit when no Washington player covered first. Goslin's grounder to Hayes advanced both runners. Kress then hit to Cronin, who fumbled, and Levey scored, Burns going to third, whence he ran in after West caught Jenkins' long fly.

The Browns got two more in the fourth. McNeely singled and stole second and Ferrell walked. Collins laid down a perfect sacrifice and McNeely beat Cronin's throw of Levey's grounder home. Goslin doubled to center to score Ferrell, but Levey was out trying to make it.

With two out in the fifth, Melillo doubled to right and McNeely sent him in with a single to center.

The daily Brownie blow-up came in the sixth. This time it resulted in four runs which enabled the Senators to tie the score. Cronin walked and West struck out, but Jordan doubled to score Cronin. "Pinky" Hargrave then batted for Spencer and hit over the pavilion for a homer and three runs. Coffman relieved Collins and managed to retire the side without further damage.

Luck frowned on the Browns in the second half, for, with two on and two out, Jenkins hit a terrific line drive toward center. At full speed, Cronin stuck up his glove and made the catch.

The bookmakers did not breathe freely until the returns of the race showed that neither Pittsburgher nor Spanish Play had finished in the money. Both of these horses were played heavily at long odds and were backed down from about 10 to 1 in the early days of the book opening to 15 to 1 yesterday. Had either or both run one, two, a financial disaster might have followed.

Tom Kearney, who operates one of the biggest books in the country on the Derby, when asked how he fared remarked: "Well, the same old way. Always feel lucky to come out even. That's about where I'll land when I figure it up. Worked all winter and get nothing for it. That's the bookmaker's life."

And then he winked.

Cronin Gets Freak Homer.

Cronin's homer which bounced off the concrete in right center started the Washington seventh and so far as scoring went ended it.

The Browns tied it queerly in the eighth. With two out, Goslin singled. Kress raised a weak pop to Jordan, who missed the catch completely. Trying to pick the ball up, he kicked it—actually—and Goslin scored. As the ninth produced nothing in the way of a run, the game went into overtime.

Brownie Notes.

THE first game of today's doubleheader will start at 1:30. Manager Killefer will call on Sam Gray and George Blaeholder for the pitching and Walter Johnson, chief Senator, will "rebut" with Lloyd Brown, a southpaw, and "General" Crowder, a right-hander. Crowder this year has been about as successful as prohibition.

Monday's scheduled game was moved ahead to make today's two-timer so the Browns will rest before engaging the very surprising Boston Red Sox. As a rule, at this stage of the season, The Bostonians are well buried in the cellar, but this year, they are looking down on the Browns and White Sox.

"Most valuable" Cronin has an almost-Heine Groh stance at the plate, but he meets the ball squarely and gets his fair share of hits. He certainly did, yesterday.

Fischer, the Washington pitcher, "came over night." In training camp, it is said he didn't show a thing and was about to be released. Some of Walter Johnson's regular starters, however, went bad and he was given a chance. Now, he is rated along with Jones, Brown, Crowder and Marberry as a first-stringer.

The Senators ran to extra-base hits. They made four safeties in the first three innings. Three were doubles by Manush, Jordan and Cronin and the other Bluege's homer.

Kress was credited with a run driven in in the third even though Cronin fumbled his grounder. It was in deep short and, with one out at the time, Cronin could not possibly have thrown Levey out at the plate.

Cronin staged a young "mad scene" when McNeely was called safe on his steal in the fourth. Of course, the ranting affected Tommy Connolly, who made the decision. Of course, meaning. He showed the world just what a fearless man, willing and able to give and take a wallop could do in the ring. He set a standard in both fighting methods and popular appreciation that had never been even dreamed of.

That was Dempsey's gift to boxing.

And then there's the other side of the shield—the damage he did to the sport. That's more or less a theoretical damage. It developed when Dempsey passed out of the picture. When Dempsey quit there were no substitute Dempseys. There were no terrible punchers, no big men who could flatten foes with a punch, no "dead game" guys willing to take half a dozen wallops to trade for one of his own; no heavyweight willing to meet anybody at all times regardless of his style or record.

They Broke the Mold.

DEMPSEY had created the appetite and there remained no boxer to satisfy it. That made all the pugilistic world look bad. And it continues to look terrible, to those who worshipped at the shrine of Dempsey and his killer wallop.

For a time it appeared that Gene Tunney, by his splendid and intelligent fighting, might wean away fans from their admiration of sheer power and courage. As champion and two-time conqueror of Dempsey it was thought that the game might be won back to an appreciation of science, strategy and clever defense, as well as of crushing attack. But Tunney, just when he was winning popularity, took that time to quit the game and leave it flat.

And so we still have the impression left by Dempsey, rather than that of his conqueror. And the revival of fight interests awaits the development of another super-puncher like Jack the Mauler.

Dempsey Changed Ring Styles.

ANOTHER set-back has been suffered by boxing through the advent of Dempsey. When Jack, with his knock-em-dead style dawned on the world and rose to great fame, boxing began to disappear from the ring.

Slugging began to replace the scientific part of the game which for so many years had been termed the "manly art of self defense." Defense, in fact, almost passed out of the picture.

Fighters trying to emulate Dempsey without his punching power, failed because they lacked his stuff. Fights degenerated into mere lead-and-clinch parties. Boxers who might have made fair headway with proper defensive education, developed into mere clinchers and glove catchers under the new form of ring tactics. They could neither punch like Dempsey nor box like Corbett. When everybody tried to become Jack Dempseys without Dempsey's tools, the standard of fighting deteriorated.

Defensive Fighting May Come Back.

WHEN athletes find out that there are only a few men equipped to adopt the slogan of "the best defense is a powerful attack" they may return to the normal policy of finding an effective defense against any attack.

A clever defense is quite as interesting to watch as a blasting attack. A shifty boxer, by skill and brains nullifying a relentless and powerful assault, once upon a time elicited as much applause, even more, than the landing of knockout punch.

The great deterrent to the return of defensive boxing is the lack of competent instruction, there being practically no teachers of fistic skill today able to hand down the wizardry of Young Griffo, Jim Corbett and other famous scientific boxers.

VANCE BEATS JOHNSON 2-1 IN HURLING DUEL

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 16.—Johnny Frederick's triple followed by Rube Bressler's long fly in the ninth inning gave the Brooklyn Robins a 2-to-1 decision over the Cincinnati Reds today. The two teams went into the ninth deadlocked at one-all as the result of a hurling duel between Silas Johnson and Dazzy Vance. Johnson might have won had not Wright's fly in the second inning gone for a triple when Heathcote lost it in the sun. The Robins' shortstop scored on Gilbert's single.

Cornell Crew Wins From Yale And Princeton

By the Associated Press.

DERBY, Conn., May 16.—Eight husky sons of Cornell, untried this rowing year, swept through to victory in the twilight on the Housatonic River today over the crews of Yale and Princeton in the fourteenth annual Carnegie Cup regatta.

There was a length of open water showing between the stern of the big red shell and the bow of the Blue at the finish. Princeton, the leader for a few minutes at the start, was almost four lengths further back.

It was the first victory for Cornell since 1922 when the great Red varsity set the record time of 10 minutes, 11 seconds. The time today was three seconds slower but Cornell gave the impression of having been well able to go faster if it had been necessary. Yale won the freshman and 150-pound crew events and Cornell took the junior varsity.

AGEE SETS NEW RECORD WINNING MARATHON RACE

BALTIMORE, May 16.—William Agee won the national A. A. U. marathon championship today by beating 100 other distance runners in the ninth annual Laurel-Baltimore race in record time.

The Baltimorean, twice before winner of the event, former national 15-mile title holder, six times South Atlantic cross-country champion, and member of the 1928 Olympic team, took the lead less than 100 yards from the start at noon and steadily increased it.

When he broke the tape in the War Memorial Plaza in the downtown section after the 26 mile, 285 yard grind, he was two miles ahead of the defending champion, Karl Koski, of the Finnish-American Athletic Club of New York, who won the championship race last year at Staten Island.

Agee's time of 2 hours 32 minutes, 38 seconds, broke the record of 2 hours and 41 minutes set in 1925 by Frank Zuna of New York.

Koski, running on an unfamiliar course, finished in 2 hours 44 minutes. Arthur Garvin of the Millrose A. C., New York, was third in 2:47.1, Albert Michaelson of the same club fourth in 2:47:58, and David Fagerlund, teammate of Koski, was fifth in 2:57:48.

In sixth place was Tom Bury, Lynn, Mass., and the next four, in order were Frank Ferry, New Castle, Pa.; Alex C. Meutsis, of the Greek-American Club, New York; Lawrence Reed, Lynn, and Mike Flomp, of Jamestown, N. Y.

The race was run under ideal weather conditions over a concrete highway for 18 miles to the outskirts of Baltimore and then uphill and winding about city streets.

James A. Montague of Washington kept up with Agee for the first mile but then dropped back. At the 18-mile point Agee was a mile and a half in front.

A girl, Gazella E. Weinreich, 18, of Baltimore, for the first time on record here, was ready to start the long race when a telegram arrived from Daniel Ferris, A. A. U. secretary at New York, ruling that the girl was ineligible. Miss Gazella won a medal last winter by dancing 2000 hours in a marathon dance contest and said she was confident she could finish but Ferris said the race would be too much for any woman.

MINNESOTA LOSES PAIR.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 16. — Roy (Lefty) Henshaw, University of Chicago sophomore pitcher, did the "iron man" trick today, hurling the Maroons to 10 to 2, and 4 to 1 victories over Minnesota, in the first double header of the Big Ten season.

Giants Rout Flint Rhem And Defeat Cardinals, 7 to 5

ed out, Mancuso walked and when Hubbell, fielding Rhem's slow roller, threw wild to first, Martin scored.

With one gone in the third, Frisch walked and went to third on Bottomley's single to right. Hafey struck out, but Martin had another single in his bat, his drive to right scoring Frisch and sending Bottomley to third. Gelbert then doubled to right center, scoring Bottomley and Martin.

Hafey Fails in Pinch.

Berly took up the pitching job in the next frame and the Cardinals couldn't do anything with his delivery. In the seventh, with one out, Watkins singled and Berly lost control, packing the bases by walking Frisch and Bottomley. It was a great chance for Hafey, but the California chicken sent up a harmless pop foul to Vergez and then it was that Berly won his little duel with Martin.

John McGraw left his comfortable seat in the dugout after the Giants had played such slovenly baseball in the second and third inning and gave them a good talking to, gesticulating as he told the boys what he did and didn't think of them. He must have used some good words, for the Giants were a different team after that, running out base hits and going after flies and line drives as though baseball really was their business, instead of a little sport to occupy the afternoons.

Terry Does Some Hitting.

Terry's double and an infield out produced a run in the second and Allen, batting for Hubbell, hit a homer in the third.

Terry's single and Ott's homer cut the Cardinal lead to one run in the sixth and in the seventh they overhauled the league champions and took the lead.

With one out, "Shanty" Hogan started the drive with a home run that hit the foul pole in the upper deck of the left field stand. Berly then shot a looping liner to center for a single and Critz did the same. Leach's long fly advanced both runners and then the Cardinal defense cracked. Jim Bottomley could have retired the side on Lindstrom's grounder, but the ball trickled through his hands and between his legs and Berly scored from third, putting the Giants one to the good. Rhem then uncorked a wild pitch and Critz scored the third and final of the inning.

Redbird Notes.

NEW YORK, May 16.

FRED FITZSIMMONS, who has won five straight games without a defeat, will face the Cardinals tomorrow in the second game of the series. Burleigh Grimes, undefeated in four games, will be the Redbirds' hurler.

The Polo Grounds stands have been enlarged, the present capacity being given as 58,000. New boxes have been installed, the press box has been raised to a mezzanine floor and the home plate moved a few feet toward center field.

The attendance for the opening game was estimated at about 40,000 and tomorrow the crowd is likely to tax the capacity, if the weather is fair.

Hafey, making his first appearance of the season, at the plate in the second inning, picked on the first pitch and lined a single to center. Ott fumbled momentarily and Chick slid safely into second base.

Hafey in mid-season form, would have caught Terry's fly in the second, but he misjudged it and the ball fell in front of him for a double.

Al Munroe Elias, official statistician for the National League, announced today that the victory scored by the Cardinals over the Cubs at Chicago, April 18, had been credited to Bill Hallahan. Originally the Chicago scorer gave the victory to Derringer, who pitched to only one batter and who under the circumstances had no chance to be charged with a defeat. President Heydler approved the change. The writer at the time called attention to the unfairness of the decision.

Hogan's home run, which tied the score in the seventh inning, hit the foul pole on the upper deck of the left field stand.

Allyn Stout, making his first appearance of the season on the hill, pitched the ninth inning and retired three Giants in a row.

After Terry walked in the seventh Rhem was taken out and Derringer finished the frame. It was the first time this year that a Cardinal pitcher was knocked out of the box. Grimes retired in Pittsburg, but it was in the thirteenth inning and it had been agreed that as Burleigh was tiring he would not try to carry on further if the first Pirate batter reached base.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 16.—Bryan Grant, Atlanta tennis star, will be seeded No. 1 at the Southern conference tournament to be held at New Orleans.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Pat Caraway hurled four-hit baseball this afternoon to shut out the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 0, and break the Chicago White Sox losing streak of seven straight games. Caraway was nicked for a single in the first, another in the second, and then did not allow a man to reach first base until the eighth inning, when two more singles were made. The victory was Caraway's fourth of the season.

DETROIT GAINS 3 TO 1 VICTORY OVER YANKEES

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, May 16.—Detroit defeated the New York Yankees 3 to 1 today in a game cut short in the sixth inning by rain. Tom Bridges, young Detroit hurler, got himself in trouble several times through his wildness but pitched his way out each time, limiting the Yanks to three hits and striking out six.

Henry Johnson started for the Yanks and was driven from the box in the fourth when the Tigers scored all three runs. Schang doubled, Bridges reached first on a fielder's choice, Roy Johnson walked and Owen drove in two runs with a single. Johnson stopped at third then scored on Gehringer's roller to Lary. Phil Weinert halted Detroit until the sixth when he gave way to a pinch batter.

FALL APPLE GAINS VICTORY IN KEENE MEMORIAL AT BELMONT

WHITNEY'S COLT BEATS UNIVERSE 3 LENGTHS IN $7000 FEATURE

By the Associated Press.

BELMONT RACE TRACK, N. Y., May 16.—C. V. Whitney's Fall Apple, the colt which won the Aberdeen Stakes at Havre de Grace this spring, easily captured the $7075 purse which went to the winner of the Keene Memorial, four and one-half furlong dash for juveniles, at Belmont Park today. This score was the second of the day for the Whitney barn and gave Jockey Robertson a double as well.

Fall Apple defeated the favorite, T. M. Cassidy's Universe, which recently beat the Whitney juvenile at Jamaica, by three lengths, to pay 4 to 1. J. E. Gaffney's Irene's Bob took third, a head back of Universe, with Don Red fourth. The Youngsters ran against the wind over a fast track and the time was :54 4-5. Fall Apple, in winning duplicated the feat of his stablemate, Equipoise, which won the and a half in :55 1-5.

Five-Minute Delay at Post.

After a five-miute delay, the field got off to a good start, but Leonine, which had to be placed outside, had little chance as a result of his wild antics. Universe broke in a slight tangle but was rushed right up. Don Red was first to leave, while Irene's Bob and Phantom Legion followed. Universe and Fall Apple were next in line, right together. It didn't take long for Universe to sprint to the front and head Irene's Bob, while Robertson had Fall Apple running strongly in third place. In the final furlong Fall Apple passed the leaders without undue effort and drew away to score easily. Universe held on gamely to outlast Irene's Bob.

Whitney's other victory came in the first race when Pintail showed a fine pair of heels to a field of 15 maiden fillies in the four and one-half furlongs sprint. The filly was quoted at 10 to 1 in the betting. The favorite, Sarietta was second with Foxiana third. Sarietta led to the final furlong where Pintail took command and won by a length an da half in :55 1-5.

Favorite Players scored in the fifth, the secondary feature, when E. R. Bradley's good filly, Baba Kenny, scored in a romp over some fair fillies winning at the end by five lengths. Lady Leggs finished second with Romanesque third. There was not much to the race. Baba Kenny just galloped along until the boy was ready. She took the lead and won in 1:41.

Twenty Grand Sets Record In Winning Kentucky Derby

Kurtsinger Avoids Crowding.

Twenty Grand broke smartly enough but he was slow to find his best racing stride and almost from the first jump, Kurtsinger plied the quirt to rouse him to his best effort. As they swept up to the judges the first time the front ones were well bunched. Prince D'Amour and Boys Howdy were running head to head a length in front of Ladder, which was in turn a half length in front of Sweep All. Surf Board was seventh and Twenty Grand farther back but now full of run.

There was no crowding at the clubhouse turn. Usually in a Derby at this spot there is plenty of roughing. Charlie Kurtsinger, who had hugged the rail throughout the Preakness was careful to avoid such a mistake here. He took to the outside, 15 feet or more from the fence.

All, even the trailers, were stepping along lively enough. The first quarter was run in :23 1-5 and the half in :47 2-5. As they swung into the back stretch, Sweep All took command and went on to the end o fthe six furlongs in the rattling time of 1:12 flat. In that long back stretch run, Mate momentarily flashed the foot that earned him a Preakness. Yet try as he would, Mate could make no serious impression against the fine advantage Sweep All enjoyed.

And then Kurtsinger turned Twenty Grand loose for the first time. It was beautiful to see that great horse run. He was a poem of action, an epic of tireless and irresistible force. In rhythmic strides that appeared to carry him a length and a half to every length of his competitors, running low to the ground, he reached out in a fashion that meant naught but certain defeat to all opposing him. A great shout went up, re-echoed from the throat of almost every man, woman and child assembled. "There goes Twenty Grand." And go he surely did.

Tunes Up in Back Stretch.

Kurtsinger did not make his move with the husky favorite until well up the back stretch. He evidently wished to place the horse so as to lose no more ground than absolutely necessary on the far turn.

One by one he picked up the straining pace followers. Within a sixteenth of a mile Twenty Grand broke the gallant heart of Mate, broke it as a rampant bull might be expected to break Dresden china.

"Twenty Grand in a walk," the experts said then, though as yet the flying Sweep All had shown not the least disposition to quit. The son of Sweep and Nettie Hastings was three lengths or more in front of the St. Germans colt after covering that first mile in the sensational time of 1:37 2-5. But the hoofbeats of Twenty Grand were pounding closer and more closely until Kurtsinger, crouched low, swung out on the home turn clear of the straining front runner and then sat down to a snug hand ride.

Twenty Grand no longer needed other encouragement. Useless now would have been whip or spur for he scented victory and maintained his clock-like ground-annihilating strides as Sweep All wavered, faltered and shortened up. It was all over but the shouting.

There are few finer finishers than Frankie Coltiletti, who from first to last rode Sweep All as if life itself depended on the issue. But no horse flesh or no riding skill could foil that closing charge of the big bay Jimmy Rowe had saddled. Foot by foot and yard by yard, Twenty Grand closed on Detroit's pride till at three-sixteenths out, he was up to him. Then quite as steadily he drew away to what was really a ridiculously easy victory.

KANSAS TRACK TEAM DEFEATS MISSOURI IN MEET, 92 TO 39

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., May 16.—The University of Kansas swamped the Missouri Tigers 92 to 39, and set three new meet records and tied another in the thirteenth renewal of their annual outdoor dual track meet here this afternoon.

The Jayhawkers, who defend their Big Six title at the conference meet in Lincoln, Neb., next week-end, were superior all the way, winning by the second greatest margin in the history of the event.

Ross Bryan of Ellsworth set a new record for the meet and for the Jayhawker school in the javelin throw, his best toss was 191 feet 4½ inches, surpassing by 2½ inches the throw of big Jim Bausch made at the conference meet last year. Brown of Missouri established the former Missouri-Kansas meet record of 182 feet, 4½ inches.

Bernard Gridley of Wichita skimmed the 220-yard low hurdles in 23.6 seconds, clipping four-tenths of a second off the old record made by Welch of Missouri in 1930.

Ralph Sickel of Leavenworth lowered the 220-yard dash record to 21.3 seconds, bettering the old mark of 21.6 set up by Grady of Kansas in 1928. Sickel and Joe Klaner of Pittsburg ran a dead heat in the 100-yard sprint, tying the meet record of 9.8 seconds made first by Branham of Missouri in 1908 and tied by Scholz of Missouri in 1920 and by Klaner last year.

The Jayhawkers made an overwhelming showing in the field events, sweeping discus, pole-vault, javelin and shotput.

Frank W. McDonald, athletic director at the Haskell Institute, was referee.

McGRAW AN

NEW BASEBALL AIDS FIELDING SAYS MANAGER OF THE GIANTS

By John J. McGraw,
Manager, New York Giants.

NEW YORK, May 16.—When the Cubs and Cardinals have been through this two weeks of battling, the Eastern clubs in the National League will all have something like a real chance of shaping up the race and locating the tough spots. This also goes for the Pirates, whose work has been sort of so-so, while the others have been picking on the Reds. The Westerners are not likely to find much easy pickings in the East, according to the way the pitchers have been going in New York, Boston and Brooklyn. I also look for the Phillies to give their pitchers trouble.

The situation is much the same in the American League with the Athletics, the Yanks and the Senators going against Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago for the first time. The Browns also have shown enough improvement to put up a stiff fight. Very little can be foreseen in a baseball race until all the clubs have played at least one full series against each other.

Good Spring Pitching.

The big factor in this early stage of both races is the unusually good pitching for this time of the year. It should be noted also that the first class men are well scattered. I can't remember a season in which so many pitchers have won as many as four games in less than four weeks of playing. Several have won three games and quite a number have not been beaten at all. Clarence Mitchell and Fitzsimmons have been standouts for the Giants, while Grimes and Haines have been going great for the Cardinals. Then there are Ferrell of Cleveland; Brandt and Seibold of the Braves; Root and Malone of the Cubs; Walberg of the Athletics; Brown, the Washington left-hander who, by the way, has pitched some tough luckers, as has Carl Hubbell. Right now it's pretty hard to put your finger on any club that hasn't at least one first-class pitcher. Stewart of the Browns, for example, has gone good. Thomas and other White Sox pitchers also have shown a lot of stuff.

New Ball Helps Fielders.

Undoubtedly the really skillful pitchers have been helped by the new ball with the larger seams. Another striking effect of the less lively ball has been its great help to the infielders. The throwing to bases this spring has been exceptionally good. Bad throws are a rarity.

While the new ball appears to have curbed the fluke hitting, it hasn't hurt the really good hitters at all. The general averages may be slightly lower, due to the abolishing of sacrifice flies as well as the slower ball, but you will always find the first-class batters bunched in the leading groups. The good hitters will always hit just as the really good ball player will play good baseball. In a group of 10 leading hitters published weekly you are pretty apt to find the same names all season. That rule also holds good for pitchers of recognized merit.

Before the season started most all baseball men mentioned the Cardinals as dangerous on account of their well balanced pitching staff. It has run to form and held them up despite one or two batters falling into a slump. They pointed to our Giants as a hard-hitting club and the prophecy was fulfilled. We have surprised a lot of them, though, with our excellent pitching.

Despite their many accidents the Yanks are still up there and are pretty sure to be contenders right to the finish. It was a game thing for Babe Ruth to get in there with a bad leg but it might not be smart. It's rather risky to endanger a star player's future service to a team by using him before he has fully recovered from an injury.

Though it is still early to fit teams into their proper places on actual strength, these first Eastern and Western invasions find all of them setting a pretty hot pace. Many more attendance records are likely to be broken before these intersectional fights are over. Never has there been such keen interest in baseball before the middle of May. The westerners will find the East full of fight. Make no mistake about that.

CLEVELAND CUBS TAKE SERIES OPENER FROM ST. LOUIS STARS, 6-4

The Cleveland Cubs of the Negro National Baseball League defeated the St. Louis Stars yesterday afternoon in the opening game of the series at Stars' Park, 6 to 4. Walker led the batting attack for the visitors when he collected a home run and a triple which was followed by Ridley who tripled to deep center field. Young made two of the Stars' seven hits.

A doubleheader is scheduled for this afternoon with the first game starting at 1:30 o'clock.

This also goes for the Pirates, whose work has been sort of so-so, while the others have been picking on the Reds. The Westerners are not likely to find much easy pickings in the East, according to the way the pitchers have been going in New York, Boston and Brooklyn. I also look for the Phillies to give their pitchers trouble.

The situation is much the same in the American League with the Athletics, the Yanks and the Senators going against Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago for the first time. The Browns also have shown enough improvement to put up a stiff fight. Very little can be foreseen in a baseball race until all the clubs have played at least one full series against each other.

Good Spring Pitching.

The big factor in this early stage of both races is the unusually good pitching for this time of the year. It should be noted also that the first class men are well scattered. I can't remember a season in which so many pitchers have won as many as four games in less than four weeks of playing. Several have won three games and quite a number have not been beaten at all. Clarence Mitchell and Fitzsimmons have been standouts for the Giants, while Grimes and Haines have been going great for the Cardinals. Then there are Ferrell of Cleveland; Brandt and Seibold of the Braves; Root and Malone of the Cubs; Walberg of the Athletics; Brown, the Washington left-hander who, by the way, has pitched some tough luckers, as has Carl Hubbell. Right now it's pretty hard to put your finger on any club that hasn't at least one first-class pitcher. Stewart of the Browns, for example, has gone good. Thomas and other White Sox pitchers also have shown a lot of stuff.

New Ball Helps Fielders.

Undoubtedly the really skillful pitchers have been helped by the new ball with the larger seams. Another striking effect of the less lively ball has been its great help to the infielders. The throwing to bases this spring has been exceptionally good. Bad throws are a rarity.

While the new ball appears to have curbed the fluke hitting, it hasn't hurt the really good hitters at all. The general averages may be slightly lower, due to the abolishing of sacrifice flies as well as the slower ball, but you will always find the first-class batters bunched in the leading groups. The good hitters will always hit just as the really good ball player will play good baseball. In a group of 10 leading hitters published weekly you are pretty apt to find the same names all season. That rule also holds good for pitchers of recognized merit.

Before the season started most all baseball men mentioned the Cardinals as dangerous on account of their well balanced pitching staff. It has run to form and held them up despite one or two batters falling into a slump. They pointed to our Giants as a hard-hitting club and the prophecy was fulfilled. We have surprised a lot of them, though, with our excellent pitching.

Despite their many accidents the Yanks are still up there and are pretty sure to be contenders right to the finish. It was a game thing for Babe Ruth to get in there with a bad leg but it might not be smart. It's rather risky to endanger a star player's future service to a team by using him before he has fully recovered from an injury.

Though it is still early to fit teams into their proper places, on actual strength, these first Eastern and Western invasions find all of them setting a pretty hot pace. Many more attendance records are likely to be broken before these intersectional fights are over. Never has there been such keen interest in baseball before the middle of May. The westerners will find the East full of fight. Make no mistake about that.

Lott and Van Ryn to Compete In French Hard Court Tourney

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 16.—America will be afforded a fair idea of its chances of lifting the Davis Cup this year by the showing of its representative in the French international hard court championships starting tomorrow at Rolland Garros Stadium here.

Included in the field are John Van Ryn and George Lott, members of the American team that, barring an upset, will face France in the Davis Cup challenge round in the same courts in July. Lott and Van Ryn have displayed fine form in practice.

The field, containing a large number of Davis Cup players, is one of the strongest drawn by the international event in recent years. Teams are entered from South Africa, Germany and Hungary.

Helen Jacobs leads America's feminine contingent. She and Elizabeth Ryan will try to make up for the absence of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, whom French fans have never ceased to acclaim.

Western Wins A. B. C. Meet

Western Military Academy won the A B C League meet yesterday with a total of 88 5-6 points. Country Day was next with 40 5-6 markers. John Burroughs and Principia gained 18 1-3 and 3, respectively. Proctor of John Burroughs smashed the former A B C League record for the mile run, which was also made by him, by running it in 4 minutes, 52 seconds. In the half mile relay, the Western Military Academy quartet shattered last season's mark by doing it in the remarkable time of 1 minute, 37 seconds. In the 220-yard low hurdles race Schlapp of Country Day tied the present record by breasting the tape after 27 seconds of running.

GOLF by W. J McGOOGAN

New Ball Defenders.

JUST when it appeared that all the outstanding golfers of the St. Louis District were agreed that the new ball was a dud and should be retired quickly in favor of the old sphere, along come Elliott Whitbread, district champion; Jim Manion, a former champion, and Art Longworth, professional of the St. Louis Country Club and present numerous reasonable arguments in favor of the balloon.

Whitbread states that while his scores have been relatively higher this spring, the new ball is not to blame. He declares there are fewer "squirrel" shots with the new ball than with the old. For the benefit of the uninitiated we might explain that a "squirrel" shot is one poorly hit from which good results are obtained. Whitbread points out that errors in hitting the new ball are multiplied and this is one point on which we are sure everyone will agree with "Cotton."

Jim Manion claims that the new ball should be given a chance (just like the eighteenth amendment) to prove its worth. He maintains that the new ball will work to the advantage of the shot maker, a golfer who is able to manipulate a ball under all conditions. Jim points out that some of the par three holes, such as No. 18 on his own Normandie course, will be unfair with the new ball for they are so long that they are impossible to reach with one shot except with a favoring wind. He contends that putting with the new ball will be no more difficult than with the old except that fewer badly hit putts will drop.

Longworth thinks the only trouble with the golfers is that they have not learned how to control the new ball.

"Roll the ball into the hole with your putter," Longworth advises, "don't try to put overspin on it and hook into the cup as some of us were accustomed to doing with the smaller ball. Stand farther back and try to roll the ball and you'll find that putting the new ball is greatly simplified."

A Putting Aid.

"PUNISH the flesh, to become a good putter," declares a member of the Triple A Golf Club who really is proficient on the greens. He suits his advice to action also for when he misses a holeable putt it is not uncommon for him to throw the ball high into the air and permit it to descend upon the top of his head, or he cracks himself on the dome with the shaft of his putter. And still another trick he has is to bite his arm. Recently he is said to have taken a chunk out of his left arm.

Also his partners are not always immune to punishment, one of them declared, for he recently missed a putt which meant victory for their side and received a whack from a putter.

Of course you may use your own judgment as to the advisability of following this system, but perhaps after everything else fails it might work.

Golf Instruction in Pocket.

BOB McDONALD, famous golf professional, has compiled a book, "Golf at a Glance," which may be carried in the pocket on the course for reference in any trying situation. It is a complete golf lesson with illustrations, showing everything from the club grip to the holing of a putt.

So when Mr. Dub has a tough shot all he has to do is reach in the pocket, pull out the book and he will have before him a picture of the stance, grip and swing of Mr. MacDonald coming out of the sand with minute instructions as to how to do it. Unfortunately, Mr. MacDonald won't be in the pocket, so Mr. Dub will still be forced to swing the club.

For those who believe that golf proficiency may be attained by studying books, this little pamphlet should be of assistance, for the correct method of handling each club is described.

SCHAPP HURLS TWO VICTORIES IN MUNY PLAY

The teams in the Municipal Baseball Association made up for time lost due to postponements by playing 38 games in nine divisions yesterday afternoon. Schapp of the Red Goose nine liked the warm weather so well that he pitched his team to a double victory, 8 to 7 and 17 to 7, over the Star Brand team in the Y. M. C. A. No. 3 League. The first game went seven innings and the second six.

Norman Tarantola of the Wolverines added another one-hit game to his string, making two this year, letting the Agogas down, 7 to 1, in the South Side Y. M. C. A. League. It was not until the eighth that the Agogas got their safety and it helped to score the losers' only run.

Due to the hurling of Wilbur Quest, Immanuel Baptist won from Hamilton Christian, 2 to 1, in the feature game of the Sunday School League. Hamilton Christian is the defending champion of the Sunday Schools.

A'S MANAGER IMPRESSED BY TIGHT PITCHING IN THE CIRCUIT

By Connie Mack,
Manager of the World Champions.

CLEVELAND, May 16.—A point that has impressed me about baseball this year has been the increasing number of games in which one team or both played to the finish without making a solitary substitution.

In past seasons it was a rare afternoon in the majors when the same nine men started and finished but I notice that it is nothing unusual this spring.

Just before we left the East, the Athletics had a streak in which we used nine men in one afternoon in five out of seven games. It's the same way with other clubs.

This fact is the best proof that the pitching has been tighter this spring than for a number of years. I also think that managers are depending more on their regulars and now only make substitutions for good reasons.

It certainly was overdone in the past and became such a habit with some managers that they didn't think they were doing their full duty by trying to win with the same nine men. They often shuffled their line-up when there was no valid reason for doing so.

Apparently they are getting away from foolish and unnecessary substitution, as this spring's box scores suggest.

Eastern and Western teams have had a peep at the rivals in their own section and now the first battles between the East and West are being staged in the majors.

The Western teams of the American League are at home getting their first slant of the year at Eastern foes while in the National League the Eastern teams are entertaining Western rivals at their parks.

After the first skirmish among American League teams in the East, I think that the Yankees did a little better than the rest of us and went West leading both the Athletics and Washington by a slight margin.

To me, the Yanks seem to be a team that is functioning better than last year. They are playing steadier and sounder baseball and their team work is better. They are not thinking so much of home runs as getting runs. I saw this change of spirit and policy very plainly in the games the Yanks played against us and give all the credit to Joe McCarthy.

The Yanks stayed up and won even when they had Babe Ruth, Dusty Cooke and Myril Hoag, three of their outfielders, disabled.

It looked like Ruth was in for his best year in baseball until he was hurt in Boston. At that time some skeptics thought that because of his weight and age he might not be able to give his best to the Yanks this year after the accident.

As he always does when hurt or ill, Ruth came back sooner than expected and is playing his usual stunning game. I have made a study of Ruth and this season he has convinced me that he is going to give his all to his team in an effort to bat the Yankees back into the world series.

Deep in his heart, I know he feels that the Yankees have a grand chance this year and he is going to go the limit himself to help his team win the pennant.

The Yanks are getting better pitching. Pennock seems himself again and the younger pitchers, notably Johnson, Sherid and Gomez, are better than last year, while Pipgras, rapidly recovering, is about ready to take his regular turn.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

LAST DISTRICT BOARDS OF REVIEW TILL FALL

Joint Meetings to Be Held Each Month of Summer, However,

The last district boards of review to be conducted by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council until September will be held in each of the five districts this week to certify candidates for advancement in rank and for merit badges. A sixth review, for all Negro Scouts of the city, will also be held.

District reviews are suspended during the summer months because many scouts are at camp or elsewhere away from the city. For those remaining in town, however, a special joint review will be held each month for the entire council area.

The reviews this week will be as follows: Suburban district, Webster Groves High School, tomorrow evening; inter-racial, Banneker School, tomorrow evening; north district, Farragut School, Tuesday evening; south district, Fanning School, Tuesday; central district, Gallaudet School, Wednesday; west district, Clark School, Thursday evening. Scouts are not required to attend the examinations for their own district.

Badges certified for at the reviews may be awarded either at troop courts of honor or at a special joint court of honor that will be conducted by the council July 27. The joint court will be for scouts of all districts, enabling them to receive earned awards before the regular fall court of honor convenes.

Following the central district review, a mass meeting for all scout leaders of the district will be held at the Gallaudet School, 1604 South Grand boulevard. At the meeting, the last group meeting of leaders this year, plans for next season's activities will be discussed. Plans will also be made for the district's participation in the Smoutmasters' Camp at Irondale, and an organization will be set up to direct this work.

PERSONNEL IS ANNOUNCED FOR BOY SCOUT CAMPARALL

Camp and Inter-Troup Contest to Take Place in Forest Park June 12, 13, 14.

The personnel of the staff which will direct activities of South District troops in the annual Boy Scout Camparall next month was announced at a meeting of the South District Deputy Commissioners held at Mission Inn last Thursday evening. The Camparall, which is a combination camp and intertroop contest, will take place at the Old Tourist Camp in Forest Park, June 12, 13 and 14.

Paul E. Kelley will be Campmaster for the event, while H. Walter Gotsch will act as Chief Observer and N. C. Tines as chief scorer. Kelley will be assisted by a staff composed of Larry Collins, W. J. Rau, William Buehl and W. J. C. Kern.

Plans for district participation in the Scoutmasters' Camp at Irondale May 29 to 31 were also completed at the meeting.

Troop Notes

North District.

Five tests were passed by scouts of Troop 3 of the Grace Church at the regular meeting last week. Instruction in other tests was given, and plans for a hike May 24 were made. Scoutmaster Simons talked to the troop on "Giving Credit." Eleven scouts and three officials attended the meeting.

Troop 127, formerly of the Windsor Methodist Church, has been reorganized and will meet hereafter at the Baden School. Carl J. Vogel will be scoutmaster and Byron Brouse assistant scoutmaster. The Troop Committee is composed of Chairman O. R. Doyle, F. J. Rachter and C. A. Schlueter.

Troop 148 of the Hyde Park Congregational Church has re-registered with 100 per cent of last year's membership. The troop held a get-together meeting with the troop committeemen Friday evening.

Two patrol leaders, Scouts Charles Beardsley and George Nolte, were sent to the Patrol Leaders' Camp at Irondale this week-end by Troop 143, St. Paul's M. E. Church. The troop is working on an elimination contest to determine the membership of its Camparall patrol. Every scout in the troop re-registered for 1931 last week.

Five visitors were present at the regular meeting of Troop 161 at the Webster School last week. Tests in first aid were passed, an inspection was held and troop yells were practiced.

A new troop, No. 233, has been organized at the Bel-Nor School, under the leadership of Scoutmaster H. T. Garrett. The Troop Committee is composed of E. B. Johnson, C. B. Reder, C. E. Knibb and H. J. Kobusch. The troop will meet Thursday evenings.

West District.

An inter-troop contest conducted by mail between Troop 17 of the First United Presbyterian Church and Troop 814 of Chicago ended last week with the St. Louis troop victor. The troop is planning a hike to Overland next Sunday. Scoutmaster James Butler and Assistant Scoutmaster Harry Taliaferro will attend the Scoutmasters' Camp at Irondale May 30.

Instruction in mapping was given Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., by Assistant Scoutmaster Louis Romansky last week. A troop drill, several games, and an inter-patrol contest in bird-and-tree identification also were held. The troop is planning to conduct a photography contest.

The stag patrol is leading in an inter-patrol contest being staged by Troop 87 of the United Hebrew Temple. The Apache patrol won a contest in nature study at the meeting last week. A talk was given to the scouts on camping.

Patrol Leaders Bell Ford, Carol Beasly and Paul Krull of Troop 161, which meets at the Elias Michael School for Crippled Children, are attending the Patrol Leaders' Camp at Irondale this week-end. The Scouts are guests of the Downtown Optimists' Club, which is defraying all their expenses.

Troop 138, University Methodist Church, was host to several neighborhood troops and to the church Girl Scout troop last Friday evening. Dr. Fitterington, pastor of the church, gave an illustrated talk on the early American Indians, while Charles H. Mills, activities director of the St. Louis Scout Council, showed motion pictures of roving camps. Mills also led the group in singing. The entertainment was planned by the troop committee, which consists of Chairman Harry Lewis and Committeemen Hill, Pickerell, Stocke and Ashe.

SOUTH DISTRICT.

At the Court of Honor held at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, Monday, May 4, Charles Smith of Troop 232 of Blow School was made an Eagle Scout and at the regular meeting of the troop last Friday was given the post of Junior Assistant Scoutmaster in recognition of his achievement.

Troop 192, the Gardenville School, was the first South District troop to re-register this month. The troop re-registered 36 Scouts. An elaborate totem pole is being built by the Scouts, under the direction of Chairman A. E. Martz of the troop committee.

Senior Patrol Leader Karl Kirberg and eight patrol leaders and assistant patrol leaders of Troop 128, which meets at the Scruggs School, are attending the Patrol Leaders' Camp at Irondale this week-end. The troop has reserved the Treehouse Unit at Irondale for the fourth section of camp this summer. Committeeman W. C. Kern will be in charge of the unit. Scout Oliver Winney received an Eagle Badge, and Scoutmaster Louis F. H. Schmitt received a Scoutmaster's Key, at the last City Court of Honor. Four other Scouts of the troop got life badges, and one other received a star badge.

Central District.

Troop 155, the McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church, attended the church in a body a week ago Sunday, in honor of the Rev. Mr. Bergin, new pastor of the church. A mystery hike was conducted last Sunday. The troop's annual Fathers' and Sons' hike will be held out Geyer road next Sunday. Plans for the Camparall are now being completed.

Members of the Camparall patrol have been chosen by Troop 242, St. Francis de Sales Church, and are undergoing careful instruction. Hikes are being taken every other week to practice outdoor work, equipment is being gathered, and a room has been obtained for working on demonstrations of merit badges.

Grace Chapman Wed in Ohio to Wray Brown

Many Relatives of St. Louis Bridegroom Attend Ceremony in Columbus—Bride Dressed in Wedding Gown Her Aunt Wore in 1904.

COLUMBUS, O., May 16.

MISS GRACE MAXWELL CHAPMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benton Chapman, 1601 Hawthorne Park, Columbus, was married to Wray Douglas Brown of St. Louis this evening at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, East Broad street, in the presence of a large company of guests. A reception for 300 followed at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

The Rev. John F. Scott, who came to Columbus early this year from Lynn, Mass., to take the place of the Rev. Sidney E. Sweet, now of Christ Church Cathedral of St. Louis, as rector of St. Paul's, read the marriage service. The altar of the church was banked with ferns and tall vases of gladioli. The pews were marked with silk cord which had been used by the family for years at weddings.

Included in the wedding party were Mrs. Theodore A. Eggmann (Dorothy Green) of St. Louis as matron of honor; Miss Nana Green of Yonkers, N. Y., Miss Catharine Wertz, Wooster, O.; Miss Charlene Poston, Columbus, and Miss Lloyd Thomas of Bexley, O., as bridesmaids. Woodward Brown of St. Louis, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and Horace L. Chapman II, brother of the bride, Theodore Eggmann, Woodward Palmer, Russell Richardson and Theron Green, all of St. Louis, were ushers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a wedding gown of Brussels point applique, over ivory satin with veil to match, both having been worn by her aunt, Mrs. Henry Nelson Rose of Columbus, at her marriage, April 5, 1904. It was for Mrs. Rose, the former Grace Chapman, that the bride was named. The style of the bridal gown was unaltered, Miss Chapman appearing in it just as her aunt had worn it, with high neckline and boned collar, and with a satin sash at the high waist line, a full skirt and train. The bodice was trimmed with a bertha of rose point lace. She wore ivory kid gloves reaching to the short sleeves and carried an old-fashioned round bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, tied with silver. Her slippers were of ivory satin.

Mrs. Eggmann and the four bridesmaids were dressed alike in chartreuse green frocks, the full skirts of mousseline de sole touching the floor in the back and ankle length in front. The bodices were of lace in the same shade, made with peplums and with sashes of darker green velvet ribbon, matching their moire slippers and their hats of horsehair braid. The frocks were cut low in the back and all were made with berthas of lace. The matron and bridesmaids carried arm bouquets of Edith Helen roses, blue lace flower and English larkspur shaded from lavender to deep purple. Watteau hats of green hairbraid adorned with French flowers completed the costumes.

Included among guests at the wedding were the following from St. Louis: Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas Brown, 5925 Washington boulevard, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Palmer and their son, Woodward Palmer, uncle, aunt and cousin of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Richardson, cousins of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Woodward Brown; Mrs. F. W. Green, Theron Green, David Baer and Mr. and Mrs. Eggmann.

Mr. Brown and his bride will reside at 5890 Cates avenue, St. Louis.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Horace Chapman, at one time candidate for Governor of the State of Ohio. She attended the Columbus School for Girls and was graduated from the Bennett School, Milbrook, N. Y., after which she entered Ohio State University where she became a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority. During the past winter Miss Chapman joined the Junior League. She also belongs to the Pleasure Guild of the Children's Hospital.

Mr. Brown, Missouri Valley tennis champion, is associated with the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in St. Louis. He is a former student of Washington University and a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Derby Day Dance At Country Club

THE Kentucky Derby was the inspiration for a Derby day dinner dance given last evening at the St. Louis Country Club for 150 members and their guests. The dining room represented a miniature Churchill Downs with the field made from painted beaver board at the barrier and the stables in the background from which could be seen the papier mache heads of horses representing the Derby favorites. The tables, decorated with spring blossoms were placed in the imaginary infield and on club house lawns. Jockey caps and whips were given as favors.

Among those entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Simmons, the latter formerly Miss Jean Wright Ford; Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lehmann, Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Hammar and Miss Kathryn Blair, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vilray P. Blair, who was hostess in honor of Miss Julia Klipstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Klipstein of Brentmoor and her fiance, Carl Higbee Schlapp Jr., and their wedding party.

While the party was in progress at the St. Louis Country Club, other St. Louisans were participating in the actual post-Derby parties at Louisville. A group leaving late last week in a private car and returning today, included Mrs. George Welch Simmons, 21 Westmoreland place, and her daughter,

Yet, to be polite,
She said:

made people avoid him until—

THEY applauded his singing, but turned down his dates. Liked his looks, but shunned his society. Said, "I hate to snub him," but kept on doing it! Girls can't overlook "B.O."—body odor—no matter how attractive the man is otherwise.

Fortunately this young man woke up to the real facts at last. Once he realized his trouble, a simple change in toilet soaps quickly ended it—ended unpopularity, too! Now he's a favorite with everyone, invited to every affair. No more "B.O." to mar his attractiveness.

The unseen enemy

If "B.O." were only something we could see and feel, we'd act—quick! But we get no warning—never know when we're offending because we quickly get used to an ever-present odor.

Yet pores are constantly giving off odor-causing waste—a quart daily. Take no chances! Make Lifebuoy your toilet soap—enjoy bath-to-bath freshness and freedom from "B.O." worries. Lifebuoy's rich, creamy, gently antiseptic lather penetrates pores—removes every trace of odor. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies!

New complexions for old

Complexions quickly respond to Lifebuoy's gentle, yet thorough, cleansing. Pores are freed of clogged impurities—dull skins bloom with fresh, healthy radiance. Thousands of women, envied for their lovely complexions, give all the credit to Lifebuoy—and Lifebuoy alone! Adopt it to-day.

MELODY, as a matter of fact, will be paramount in Forest Park this summer with many tunes which everybody knows. Theater orchestras, radio entertainers, dance orchestras have made many of them familiar. For instance, "The Street Singer," which with Queenie Smith as its star comes as the second musical offering of the season, with the score by Jean Gilbert, Nickolas Kempner and Sam Timberg, are such popular favorites as "You've Made Me Happy Today," and "I May Be Wrong But I Think You're Wonderful." In "Music in May," of which Emil Berte, the Viennese composer and Maury Rubens, assistant musical director of Municipal Opera are the composers, come such song successes as "The Glory of Spring," "Unto Your Heart," "Every Month is May," "Seidels," "High, High, High," "There's Love in the Heart I Hold," "Lips That Laugh at Love," and others including "It's the Cooks, Not the Looks."

"Nina Rosa," which opened Municipal Opera's last season still contributes "My First Love, My Last Love," "Your Smiles, Your Tears," and "The Serenade of Love," from the score Sigmund Romberg provided, to the popular music of the day.

"The Countess Maritza," contains among the lovely melodies Emmerich Kalman, the distinguished Viennese composer has provided, "The One I'm Looking For," "Play, Gypsy, Play," and "Come at the Call of Love." "The March of the Musketeers," from "The Three Musketeers," was an instantaneous popular success from the moment Florenz Ziegfeld presented that operetta on Broadway. Rudolph Friml, who contributed the music of "Vagabond King," and "Rose Marie," to recent operetta repertory, also provides for the dashing D'Artagnan romance such tunes as "Your Eyes," "My Sword and I," "Queen of My Heart," and "Ma Belle."

And Rudolph Friml and Herbert Stothart, might have made themselves famous with the melodies of "Rose Marie" had neither ever composed another song. Everybody has whistled, "The Indian Love Call," and "Rose Marie," and scarcely less popular are "Door of My Dreams," "Totem Tom-Tom," and "Why Shouldn't We."

"Irene," won its success because of Harry Tierney's winning tunes, chief of which was "My Alice Blue Gown," whistled and sung everywhere. Ziegfeld's "Rio Rita" also has music by Harry Tierney, and like that work is filled with delightful melodies.

AND while the Municipal Opera is crowding out other theatrical news, it might be mentioned that the New York Theater Guild is preparing for a greater number of plays here next season, taking over some New York successes, not produced by the organization, to send on the road under the Guild banner. Five plays were promised during the past season, but only four reached St. Louis. The Guild is suggesting that theatergoers who subscribed for the five dramas take credit on next season for the money spent for the non-appearing offering.

The Guild group will include among its plays for next season John Golden's production of Rachel Crother's comedy "As Husbands Go," which has been one of the outstanding New York successes this season. There will also be included in the list Gilbert Miller's production of Philip Barry's "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," also a success of the New York dramatic season.

Many Melodies for Park

Tuneful Airs, Many Already Familiar to the Public, Will Be the Keynote of the Shows During Twelve Weeks of Municipal Opera—Two Theater Guilds To Offer Subscription Plays Here Next Season.

MUNICIPAL OPERA, which opens the coming summer cycle in Forest Park on Friday, May 29, less than two weeks off, with "Three Little Girls," will present that work with the original cast augmented by the all-St. Louis chorus, on a scale more lavish than the original production which ran for a year in New York and which recently closed a record run of 33 weeks in Chicago.

It was the original plan to continue the Chicago run of "Three Little Girls," until the company was brought here to inaugurate the opera season. There was a demand for it in other cities and two weeks ago it moved to Milwaukee. Last week it ran with success in Minneapolis and next week St. Paul sees it and then the company comes to St. Louis to usher in Municipal Opera's season.

Viennese in spirit and in music "Three Little Girls," is by Walter Kollo, a young Viennese composer who stands as heir-apparent to the laurels of Strauss and Kalman and Fall. The book develops the romantic story of three generations of lovers, parted at first by differences in birth and fortune, but united in the end. It was adapted by Marie Armstrong-Hecht and Gertrude Purcell from the Viennese original of Herman Feiner and Bruno Hardt-Warden.

The melodies of "Three Little Girls" have contributed to its success. Such song numbers as "Love Comes Once in a Life Time," and "Love's Happy Dream" have been heard by everyone, in the theaters, over the radio, and in the homes, while other song favorites from the operetta include "The Letter Song," "Whistle, While You Work, Boys," "A Cottage in the Country," "Dream On," "Annette," "The Doll Song," and "Waltz With Me." In addition to which there is interpolated, "The Habanera," from "Carmen."

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

WILLIAM POWELL, who has had a lot of dying to do in all of his late pictures, winds up that way again in "Ladies' Man" at the Ambassador when an indignant husband, with considerable right on his side, pushes him out of the window of an eightieth floor New York apartment. Bill had about made up his mind to quit running around and settle down with Kay Francis forever but retribution and the injured husband overtook him and Kay was just out of luck from then on. You see Mr. Powell was one of those sort of fellows who just naturally attracted women. He didn't take money from them, being rather high class, but little gifts like diamond shirt buttons and other trifling knicknacks were OK with Bill. When he got around to accepting emerald necklaces, which he promptly pawned, and automobiles fitted up like Hollywood's idea of pretty nifty bedrooms the husbands of his misguided lady friends called a convention in Madison Square Garden and compared notes. Bill meant to reform but got the idea just a few minutes too late. It all makes a very entertaining picture with Powell and the striking Miss Francis and Carole Lombard doing some nice work.

This Bachelor Recovers.

SOMETHING of the same sort happens in "Bachelor Apartment," at the St. Louis, but in this one the husband doesn't get his man and Lowell Sherman, the philanderer, finishes in the arms of Irene Dunne with wedding bells ringing just outside the apartment, Irene, you see, being one of Lowell's few acquaintances who had not already accumulated a husband of her own. The irate male in this case was married to Mae Murray and he rather hoped to find her in Lowell's quarters when he went there with a gun and his mind all made up. Irene steps in and prevents any shooting and Lowell is so grateful that he forgets all his early ideas and proposes marriage on the spot.

The Old Oakie Bucket.

GANGSTERS and make believe cowboys mix it up in "Dude Ranch" at the Missouri with Jack Oakie cast in the role of a stranded actor who plays at being a Western bad man just to give the summer visitors a thrill. It would have been perfectly satisfactory if the tough men from the East, intent upon robbing a bank, hadn't happened along. Young Mr. Oakie has his hands full after that but by the time the eighth reel rolls around he is sitting on top of Arizona and has won beautiful June Collyer who, take it from us, is worth all the trouble that Jack went through to capture. Mitzi Green, the child actress, is in the picture, too, and, as usual, she about runs away with it. "Dude Ranch" is entirely enjoyable and there is some fun, once in a while, in the Missouri's second feature, "Too Young to Marry," a picture made from the little comedy "Broken Dishes," which the Grand Central Stock Company did here last winter.

Flaming Youth Tamed.

ANOTHER film made from a comedy which played here during the year—Mary Hart did it at the Orpheum after it had been seen at the Shubert—"Young Sinners" is also in town this week being on display at the Fox. The story of the boy who gets a lot of sense beaten into him, is fairly familiar by this time but the picture is fast moving and entertaining and is especially interesting because it marks the return to the screen of that one time favorite, Tom Meighan. Meighan, looking considerably older than he did when he retired from the camera, does not put in an appearance until the story is about half over but from then on, as the Irish rebuilder of wayward youths, he is the one best bet with Dorothy Jordan, the girl who needed a bit of reforming, too, running him a close second. The audiences at the Fox gave Meighan a round of applause, or rather gave it to his shadow, when he first stepped into view.

Big Underworld Business.

"QUICK MILLIONS," down at Loew's is another racketeer film—the first gangster picture that house has shown, incidentally—with a lot of thrills and inside information on how the hoodlums hold up the rich and doublecross each other. It is well played by Spencer Tracy, a truck driver who goes high hat when the money pours in, and by Marguerite Churchill and Sally Eilers, but the story does not run as smoothly as it might, being chopped up into too many short scenes which are hard, at times, to follow. As it is necessary to show the young idea, in teaching them how to shoot, that no gentlemen of the underworld can possibly beat the game and come to a good ending, Tracy is taken for a ride as the last scene fades out.

Civic Music League Begins Making Plans For the Coming Year

THE Civic Music League of St. Louis tomorrow will begin an intensive enrollment of new members seeking to recruit its strength to the capacity of the Odeon where, each season it sponsors a series of five concerts by well known musical artists. The league, recently reorganized, elected George C. Mackay president.

The Civic Music League is an affiliation of St. Louis music lovers who seek by concentrating the buying power of their individual musical budgets to provide themselves with the finest type of concerts at the lowest possible cost. By organizing a permanent audience in advance it can avoid the high cost of sensational exploitation, while at the same time, runs no danger of financial loss in case it brings an artist for a first appearance in St. Louis.

Membership, as that in a club, continues from year to year except in the event of desired withdrawal. Not until the annual dues for the coming season are received and in the bank does the league undertake to determine its artists for the season.

Buddy Rogers Coming To the Ambassador

Buddy Rogers, screen star, who has been uplifting the stage in New York, is to come to town next Saturday for six days of personal appearances at the Ambassador. It is reported, more or less truthfully, that young Mr. Rogers will pull down some five grand, Hollywood language, for his visit here.

Rogers is an accomplished musician and will play and sing for the customers. His New York engagement will prevent his arriving here in time for the opening of the Ambassador's new bill next Friday but he will begin collecting the following afternoon.

Richard Bennett in "Bought."

Richard Bennett, father of Constance Bennett and one of the best known actors on the stage, will appear with Miss Bennett in "Bought." Ben Lyon will have the masculine lead opposite Miss Bennett. "Bought!" in an adaptation of the novel "Jackdaws Strut," by Harriet Henry.

Walther League Choir Concert.

The a capella choir of the Walther League of St. Louis will be heard in a concert of sacred music next Wednesday night, at Sheldon Memorial, under the direction of William B. Heyne. Paul Freiss, organist, will be the assisting soloist.

Two Artists Secured For Schubert Concert

Mrs. Lewis Rumsey announced yesterday that the Schubert Memorial concerts which were begun last season in St. Louis will be continued to the extent of having one concert given by two artists during the next season. The artists who will appear at this joint recital are Phyllis Kraeuter, violoncellist, and Ruth Posselt, violinist. The concert will be given in the home of Mrs. Edward Faust and the public, as usual, will be invited. The date will be announced later.

Art Students in Play.

The Art Students Association of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts will give its annual play Friday in the St. Louis University Law School Auditorium, 3642 Lindell boulevard.

The play to be presented this year is "The Family Upstairs" by Harry Delf. It is a three-act comedy. In the cast, composed of art students will be Mildred Buchroeder, Harold Didier, Ellen Kamuf, Herman Miller, Fred Morrie, Ruth Mohr, Cecilia Robinson, Charlotte Koons and Fred Kessler.

Lecture Recital Today.

A lecture recital will be given by Ernest R. Kroeger at 3:15 this afternoon, at the home of Frank E. Arnold, 4040 Wyoming street. Mr. Kroeger will lecture on personal characteristics of famous composers.

New Theatrical Association.

A new theatrical managers' and press representatives' association of St. Louis will be organized Monday night at a dinner at the Hotel Mayfair. The officers of the organization will meet weekly as the Executive Board of Directors to discuss matters confronting the various playhouses. Milton S. Harris, advertising manager of the Fox Theater, is a candidate for the office of president.

Artists' Guild Follies At the Little Theater

For the five days beginning Tuesday, May 26, the Little Theater of St. Louis, will present to the general public the "Artists' Guild Follies," described as a whirl of sound and music, heretofore reserved for the inner sanctum of the Guild members. The event is being made possible, by the Cryptic Club, the actors' and workers' organization of the Little Theater, who obtained special permission from the Guild to reassemble a program selected from four of the editions of the Follies' previous years.

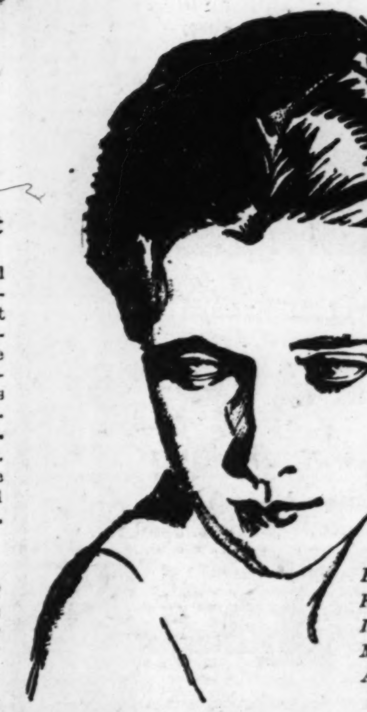
The program will consist of dramatic and musical sketches interspersed by dancing by Tamara Darialova and her troupe.

Y. M. C. A. Mummers Will Give a Shaw Play

"Androcles and the Lion," George Bernard Shaw's well-known comedy on early Christian persecution, will be given by the Mummers, Downtown Y. M. C. A. dramatic club, Friday evening at 8:15 in the Wednesday Club Auditorium, Taylor avenue and Westminster place.

"Veneer," a one-act play of the sea, will also be presented. It is by Rudolph H. Gaber, director of the Mummers. More than 50 young men and women will be in the two casts.

Tom Meighan In "Young Sinners," Fox.



Kay Francis' In "Ladies' Man," at the Ambassador.

Russian Film Shown By the Film Guild

"Ten Days That Shook the World," one of the best motion pictures to come out of Soviet Russia, was presented by the Film Guild of the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A., Union and Enright avenues, last night. It will be tonight at 8:30.

The picture tells the story of the period between the fall of the Kerensky regime and the beginning of the Soviet republic. It is a picture of mass movement, with unusual photography. Eisenstein, the director of the film, is one of the best known Russian directors.

Webster Groves Theater Guild.

The Webster Groves Theater Guild will hold the annual meeting and election of officers on Wednesday evening, when two one-act plays which were recently produced under the auspices of the Art League of St. Louis will be presented.

Old Timers Try Comeback

Tom Meighan and Mae Murray Return to the Screen This Week—The Former Was One of the Most Popular Movie Heroes, While "The Gilded Lily" Has Had a Busy Career Both On and Off the Screen.

By NIE.

REMEMBER, way back in the early days of the cinema, when Tom Meighan was the ranking star of the picture houses and Mae Murray was the glamorous gilded lily of the screens? Both of them are staging a comeback this week, Meighan being on view as the star of "Young Sinners," at the Fox and Mae playing a secondary role, being merely mentioned as among those present, in "Bachelor Apartment" at the St. Louis. Time was when either of these names was a box office magnet but even before the talkies came their popularity had started to wane. Meighan, a rich man by that time, decided to quit the game cold and spend the rest of his life playing golf while Miss Murray just naturally dropped almost from sight. Now Tom is going to try and regain his lost standing with the fans and Miss Murray is being given a chance to show her stuff again.

Miss Murray, a Virginia blonde beauty, sprang into fame originally by way of the Ziegfeld chorus and the jump to Hollywood was a natural and easy one. It was not until 1920 that she attained stardom, Paramount putting her out that year in "On With the Dance." She was an established success then and the money rolled in. But with the prosperity came trouble in a big way. She was in and out of the courts more often than any other person in the films. Sometimes she was suing somebody for a lot of money and again she was being sued as a result of her many large deals in California real estate. She was kept fairly busy seeing the judge, too, in connection with her matrimonial ventures. Her fourth husband elevated her to royalty as he happened to be Prince David Mdivani before he came to this country and worked as a driller's helper in Harry Sinclair's oil fields in Oklahoma. One of her husbands was Jay O'Brien, New York sportsman and famous polo player. Another was Robert Leonard, the film director. She was no piker, either, when it came to court over money matters. Last year, after the failure of her first talking picture, "Peacock Alley," she brought suit against Tiffany-Stahl Productions for $1,750,000 claiming that the company had subjected her to "ridicule and humiliation" by sending the film out only half baked. About the same time she asked for $300,000 from the same firm as her share in the profits of some of her earlier pictures.

Now she is back for another try.

MEIGHAN, on the other hand, has kept very much in the background when not acting. Among the players in New York and the cinema folk in Hollywood he has been immensely popular and the secret of his success, both on and off the screen, was always his compelling personality. He still has, incidentally, his first and only wife.

The ordinary biographer might point to "The Miracle Man" and assert that it was a fortunate circumstance for Meighan that he was cast in the stellar role of this famous picture and insist that it furnished his real vehicle to fame.

But it was Meighan's own persuasiveness, his own faith in himself and his judgment that led to "The Miracle Man." When this drama was first published as a story, Meighan sensed in it an ideal vehicle for himself, and after George M. Cohan had produced it on the stage, Meighan determined he would make the screen version.

The picture was produced and it carried Meighan and nearly all other members of the cast to stardom. You may recall that among the players were Lon Chaney and Betty Compson. That was back in 1919.

It was his faith in himself and his dogged determination that first led Meighan into the profession. Born in Pittsburg, where he grew up and was educated, Meighan developed a desire for theatricals while a student at St. Mary's College. His father intended that Tom should become a doctor and was bitterly opposed to a stage career for his son. Here Tom brought his persuasive powers into play and succeeded in convincing the elder Meighan he was better suited for the stage than a career in medicine.

TURNING to the theater he obtained his first job as an extra in "Miss Nell," at the time playing in Pittsburg. Extremely ambitious, and with a natural ability for histronics, it was only a matter of time before the young actor was playing important parts. Meighan played for three years with David Warfield and enacted the leading role in "The College Widow" during its long run, appearing both in this country and in England. In London, he became an immediate favorite and starred in the American dramatization of "Broadway Jones."

Returning from England, he portrayed his first role in a motion picture, appearing in "The Fighting Hope." Innumerable successes followed. They included, in addition to "The Miracle Man," "The Bachelor Daddy," "Manslaughter," "Old Home Week," "Our Leading Citizen," "Irish Luck," "The Man Who Found Himself," "The New Klondike," "We're All Gamblers," and other successes. His last screen appearance was in "The Racket," an underworld melodrama which was not so hot.

Then he decided to retire and loaf. He wanted to play golf, but recently discovered that a life of idleness so bored him that he made up his mind to return to the screen. He signed a Fox Film contract and his first assignment was the role of the trainer in "Young Sinners," adapted from the stage success of the same name which was seen here last winter.

IN the meantime the word comes that the only Oriental male star of film history, Sessue Hayakawa, will return to Hollywood soon to resume his motion-picture career which he left 12 years ago for vaudeville.

On June 3 he will arrive by steamer in San Francisco from his home in Japan. His first new picture will be with Anna May Wong, Chinese actress.

When Hayakawa quit films for the stage he left behind him a successful career. He played in many pictures with outstanding screen celebrities.

Marguerite Churchill in "Quick Millions," Loew's.

Negro Octette in Concert.

The Dana Octette, composed of young Negro men, will appear in their first annual concert Tuesday night at 8:15 at the Berea Presbyterian Church, 3027 Pine street. This musical group is coached by Arthur R. Taylor and directed by Clarence H. Wilson.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 16.

DULL thoughts of a dullard:

When I pass the modest brick home of Jimmy Walker in quiet St. Luke's place, the home to which he has clung through all his honors, I somehow cannot think he is as bad as painted.

I still think "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" is, if not the best from a dramaturgic viewpoint, the most enjoyable play of the year.

Some one tells me Edna St. Vincent Millay has "moods" and will go away completely to herself for several days. Such seclusion is excellent for anyone, but only poets seem able to do it.

Not one for years seemed to think of the name The New Yorker, but in the past few years there came a magazine, a hotel, a restaurant and an express train by that name.

An architect tells me the pent house was a fad and is already losing its living appeal. Scores are untenanted.

A melodramatic mystery play is almost certain to have at least a five-week run in New York, no matter how bad. There are that many people who will go to every mystery play presented just for the fun of guessing at the solution.

Marilyn Miller has been publicly reported as about to marry five different young men in as many months. She jokingly calls boy friends endearing names in public, and thus the rumors grow. No small town loves rumors like Broadway.

A man who has owed me $50 for six years recently paid it and speaks to me again. He hadn't spoken during all the six years, which is why many of us refuse loans.

New York forgets more quickly than almost any other city. Big Tim Sullivan was an example. In his day he was one of the best-known men in town. Yet when he died he remained for five days a nameless body at the morgue. His identification was purely by accident. He might have gone to the potters' field.

Roark Bradford, who was largely responsible for Marc Connolly's successful play, "The Green Pastures," saw the New York production of the play for the first time several weeks ago. Bradford is a modest gentleman who came to town quietly, went into the theater inconspicuously, and otherwise conducted himself becomingly. He lives in New Orleans, where he picked up much of the material for his masterful studies of the Negro.

I think the best line in "The Green Pastures" is where the modern decadence is being deplored. Someone observes: "People these days just use Sunday to get over Saturday night."

The comeback of Lew Cody in the movies is one of the high lights of the movie world. Ill and believed by many outmoded, he returned to the screen to make the biggest hit of his career. He is featured in a half-dozen future releases.

Klingler further said hat the Chevrolet Motor Co. ended 1930 with 143 more dealers than t had at the beginning of the ear. This does not take into acount some 5000 associate dealers.

"Results of this policy are now being shown by registration returns and factory operations. For the last four consecutive months for which domestic passenger car registrations are available Chevrolet sixes led all makes of cars.

"Chevrolet factories also are now operating on full five and one-half day weeks, according nouncement by Pres Knudsen. Retail sa were nearly 50 per February, and April show a further ga formance of the c is credited in a la its aggressive sales of the brightest sp tional industrial hor

The new convertible Chevrolet body types are selling even more rapidly than was anticipated, he said. The sport models are helping greatly to stimulate interest in Chevrolet cars.

Retail sales in March were nearly 50 per cent ahead of February, and April is expected to show a further gain. The performance of the company, which is credited in a large measure to its aggressive sales policies, is one of the brightest spots on the national industrial horizon."

Total of 106,096 Chevrolet Cars and Trucks Made in April

April production of the Chevrolet Motor Co. was 106,096 cars and trucks, more than 20,000 units above the original schedule for the month and within a few thousand units of the output in May, 1930, the biggest production month of last year, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announces.

The April output falls only .000 units below the comparable figure for April, 1930, which was one of the biggest months of 1930, and compares with 79,603 cars and trucks built in March this year, Knudsen said.

The output in the month just ended was the first in 11 months that crossed the 100,000 mark. It is understood that the company expects to maintain the present high rate of output for at least the current month, with prospects excellent for running ahead of last year's production in the later spring and summer months.

Cadillac Used In Oil Test Will Be Here Tomorrow

Oil Consumption at 55 M. P. H. Seven Times That at 30, A. A. A. Finds.

A Cadillac, which was in the fleet of 17 Iso-Vis test cars now touring the Middle Western and Rocky Mountain states, will be here tomorrow and will be on display by the Oliver Cadillac Co., Sarah and Laclede.

This road tour is a continuation of the test recently finished on the Indianapolis Speedway, sponsored by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana but conducted by the AAA.

This test was undertaken to observe the effect of speed on gas and oil consumption and other technical data, using different makes of automobiles under different driving conditions.

In the test, which lasted 25 days, each car was run 9000 miles, of which 5000 miles was at a steady 55 miles per hour. The tests were made in 1000-mile runs, after which motors were partly dismantled and examined.

All cars on this road tour have decelerometer, chronometer, with stop watch, water and oil thermometers, tachometer and fuel flow meter.

Some of the facts developed in the Indianapolis test and certified by the American Automobile Association are:

"Iso-Vis motor oil did not thin out from dilution.

"During the entire test of 9000 miles the engines and chassis of all cars were lubricated effectively.

"Oil added: Only 63-100 of a quart for all cars in 1000-mile test at 30 miles per hour, using Iso-Vis No. 50 (heavy).

"Effect of speed on oil consumption: (Speed is the chief factor affecting oil consumption.) All oil tested at 55 miles per hour showed a consumption nearly seven times that at 30 miles per hour.

"Carbon: Only 6.23 grams per cylinder at 30 miles per hour, using Iso-Vis No. 50 (heavy), average for all cars. Carbon decreased 33 per cent at 55 miles per hour.

"Cylinder wear: Scarcely measureable—less than one one-thousandth (1-1000) of an inch in any cylinder in any car for the entire 9000 miles."

A two-reel motion picture film showing the high lights of the 25-day test at Indianapolis will be shown at the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana office tomorrow at 3 p. m. and at 8 p. m. Auto dealers, fleet owners and others interested in the auto industry have been invited to see it.

Marmon Big Eight Has Free Wheeling On Optional Basis

Free wheeling, with positive gear control, now is optional at slight additional cost on the new Marmon Big Eight. The Big Eight is offered in a complete line of standard and deluxe body styles with the five-passenger, four-door standard sedan listing at $1895 factory.

The announcement of optional free wheeling on the Big Eight follows closely a like announcement affecting the Marmon eight in the $1000 field. Immediately after the Marmon eight announcement sales of this model showed an immediate upturn which resulted in a new high record being set for the year.

The Big Eight is the finest eight ever built by Morman, yet it is several hundred dollars lower in price than the comparable model in last year's line. It has a 125-horsepower engine, designed and built in the same shops and by the same men who build the Marmon Sixteen.

Commercial Car Bureau to Meet

A meeting of the Commercial Car Bureau, composed of distributors of trucks who are members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, will be held at the Coronado Hotel at noon Tuesday to consider legislation passed by the Missouri Legislature and other matters. There are 15 members of the bureau, including every truck handler in St. Louis.

M. F. McCarty of the International Harvester Co., who was recently elected vice president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, is chairman of the bureau. Robert E. Lee is secretary.

New Prosperity Six Wins Public Favor; Production Increased

The new Prosperity Six, which marks the Grahams' entry into the field of popular priced cars selling at less than $800, is reported to have met with immediate acceptance by the motoring public.

"The factory is now working at a production rate 50 per cent higher than in April, operating five days a week instead of four, and more hours a day," says a statement from the Graham-Paige Co. to the Gross Motor Co. The Graham body plant has gone on a nine-hour working basis instead of six. This increased production is not due entirely to the introduction of the low-priced six, for the improvement in buying conditions has led to an increase in sales of the four-speed special six and eight models, also."

An announcement from the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation lists the various options in equipment to be had with the body models of the Prosperity Six. Safety plate glass throughout, which is standard equipment on all other Graham cars, may be had in the new six as an extra. Instead of wood wheels, the car may be purchased with five wire wheels, or with a folding trunk rack and two spare wire wheels mounted in fender wells.

De Vaux Car Tenth In Production Total Already, It Is Reported

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 12.—The DeVaux-Hall Motors Corporation, now building 150 cars a day, occupies tenth place in volume of production in the motor car industry, according to figures presented to Norman DeVaux here.

The president of DeVaux-Hall Motors had just returned from Oakland, Cal., where he supervised the first few weeks of manufacturing operations at the Western DeVaux-Hall plant.

"Reaching tenth place in the industry within six weeks after starting production is a record that is without parallel in the annals of motordom," said DeVaux. "No other motor car ever has made such progress."

Buick Sales Gains Larger Each Month

The month-to-month gain from January to April in retail deliveries of Buick cars indicates a substantial improvement in the automobile buying market, according to C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Co. In April, 13,108 new Buicks were delivered, a gain of 32 per cent over March, when deliveries were 9959.

January deliveries of Buicks were 5616 units and February 6409. This gives a total of 35,092 cars from Jan. 1 to April 30.

An analysis of the automobile market by the Buick Motor Co. shows that the American farmer, despite drouth and general business difficulties, increased his purchases of new Buicks by more than 2 per cent in a year. It also shows gains in sales to engineers, miners, clergymen, educational groups, journalists, miscellaneous professional people and laborers

Dodge Truck Sales Rise 25 Per Cent

Retail deliveries of standard and heavy-duty trucks by Dodge Brothers dealers increased 25 per cent in the four-week period ending April 25. In the three weeks' period ending April 18 the increase was 22.8 per cent.

Compared to the corresponding period a year ago, retail truck deliveries in the week ending April 25 increased 12.4 per cent.

This increase bears out the prediction made a short time ago by Walter S. Graves, Dodge truck sales manager, that April would exceed March figures by a substantial margin, although it is generally accepted that March runs at least 10 per cent better than April in factory truck sales.

Gas Tax Costs Motorists Millions.

State gasoline tax collections in 1930 reached a new record of $522,110,000. This was an increase of $73,927,000 from 1929 and of $203,709,000 from 1928. California again led the states in amount collected, $39,988,920, as compared with $37,559,713 in 1929. The tax rate was 3 cents per gallon in each year. Ohio again was second with collections of $38,802,460, against $34,082,187 in 1929, both at the 4 cents per gallon rate. Texas replaced Pennsylvania with third highest collections.

Chrysler Adds De Luxe Models To Line of Eights

All Are Patterned After the Imperial Eight in Appearance and Appointments.

Addition of five de luxe body styles to the Chrysler eight line is announced by Midwest Motors, Inc.

Patterned after the Chrysler Imperial Eight in appearance, and with distinctive interior appointments, these de luxe models are designed for those who enjoy luxurious travel and want a car distinctly different from others.

The de luxe models range in factory price from $1525 for the coupe; $1545 for the roadster; $1565 for the sedan, and $1585 for the convertible coupe, to $1970 for the phaeton.

Double windshield with chrome-plated frames is a prominent feature of these Chrysler eight de luxe models. The radiator cap is modeled after he gazelle, swiftest of animals.

Small 17-inch wheels and large 6.50x17 six-ply oversize tires maintain a normal road clearance, and at the same time add to smart appearance and contribute to improved roadability and riding qualities. Five wire wheels are standard equipment.

The de luxe models come in a series of color combinations, with unusually harmonizing effects.

Bedford cord upholstery, trimmed with moulding lace, is found in each closed model. The open models have genuine leather upholstery.

In the construction of seat cushions and seat backs, Marshall-type springs, with many coils individually encased in cloth pockets, are employed.

The front seat is low. It is solidly and permanently anchored to the center pillars of the body. The back of the driver's seat is adjustable over a range of 3¼ inches. The steering column is adjustable to three positions.

Arm rests in the rear compartment of the sedan are of a new design, shaped for practical use, with smoking sets conveniently built in at the end of the arm rest. Floor carpetings are of high-pile quality and richness.

The inside of the cowl panels is completely carpeted and the dash is insulated with heavy felt material that contributes to quietness and the elimination of draughts.

Individual inside sun visors, similar to those used in the Imperial Eight models, and covered with the same material as used for the head lining, are adjustable at any angle.

The engine of the Chrysler Eight de luxe develops 95 horsepower at 3400 revolutions per minute, and is capable of 80 miles an hour.

Plates Made by Prison Labor.

Inmates of Auburn prison manufactured 2,690,795 sets of 1931 automobile license plates for New York State. They also made 16,000 plates for motorcycles, 275 for motorcycle dealers and 13,299 for trailers.

Free Wheeling Made Optional Equipment On Hudson, Essex Cars

Selective free wheeling will be offered on all Hudson and Essex models, as optional equipment, commencing tomorrow, according to an announcement by William J. McAneeny, president and general manager of the Hudson Motor Car Co. The adoption of free wheeling by Hudson makes Essex the lowest priced car offering this feature, with Hudson maintaining its position as the lowest priced eight.

While all of the basic principles of free wheeling as used in the costliest cars are retained, Hudson engineers have included several engineering advancements. It is to these that the term "selective" has been applied. The word, says Mr. McAneeny, should be taken literally, for the driver is able to enjoy the fullest advantages of free wheeling or operate his car as a standard vehicle, whichever he desires, by simply touching a small lever.

This lever, which is placed conveniently at the driver's right hand, when moved backward puts the car "into" free wheeling for all three forward speeds, the driver merely continuing to drive as in a conventional car. He is, however, also able to "free wheel" at will, returning to any gear without any thought of touching the lever.

Oakland-Pontiac Has Its Best Month Since August, 1929

With a production of 14,188 cars, April became the biggest month of the Oakland Motor Car Co. since August, 1929, some 20 months ago. The April figure compares with 12,245 in March of this year and 13,763 for April of a year ago.

April retail sales this year took a spectacular jump over the March level. The April sales figure was 13,557 as compared with 9887 for March, an increase of nearly 40 per cent.

Operations of the company continue considerably in excess of the corresponding period of last year and give promise of another new mark in May. This is the more significant because ordinarily April exceeds May.

As early as May 4 the factory had on hand 13,110 orders for May shipment. Telegrams were on hand asking that delivery of 6500 of these be rushed at once. As a result of this situation, Oakland already seems assured of passing May, 1930, when retail sales totaled 11,155 units.

Auto Output Rises in Canada.

A total of 6496 automobiles were manufactured in Canada in January. This is 16 per cent more than in December, 1930, but 37 per cent under January, 1930.

Says Average Auto Engine Burns Only Half of Fuel It Uses

The average automobile and truck engine is burning only about 50 per cent of the fuel fed to it, according to H. T. Ashton, president of the Lubrite Refining Corporation, maker of Mobilgas.

Ashton says that joint investigation by Lubrite and Vacuum Oil Co. engineers has disclosed that many cars are actually completely burning but half of the gasoline they use. This waste is attributed to the fact that carburetors are set so "rich" that 40 per cent too much gasoline is being supplied. The average mileage per gallon of gasoline might be increased 20 per cent if motorists kept their carburetors properly adjusted. This is the opinion of the American Petroleum Institute, which estimates that the annual saving for motorists of this country would reach at least $250,000,000.

The wastage is particularly heavy in cities due to the excessive number of stops and starts, excessive choking and continuous braking. Fifty startings of the average automobile engine require as much gasoline as running 10 miles. Idling of the engine while waiting for traffic lights to change is another great waster of gasoline.

But better carburetor and engine design is giving the motorist more miles per gallon than he ever obtained before, Ashton believes. Added to this is the constant effort of research in motor fuels by technological staffs of oil companies. Lubrite and Vacuum alone, says Ashton, maintains a staff of over 20 engineers devoting their energies to the problem of making the atom and the molecule give up new secrets of power.

New Auburn Cars Have Aviation Type Instrument Panels

Dials with crowned lens type glasses and large indication hands pointing to white figures on black background are conventional on airplanes, but an innovation on automobiles.

Auburn engineers have virtually transplanted the aviation instrument board to the panel of the new Auburn car. In doing so they have constructed an instrument board that is both easily readable and simple.

The panel is of chrome basket weave design of the inset type and carries all the controls and operating instruments except the horn, which is on the wheel. Controls on the panel are: Starter, choke, lights, spark, gas, manifold heat control and electro ignition lock. These are all of the push-button type.

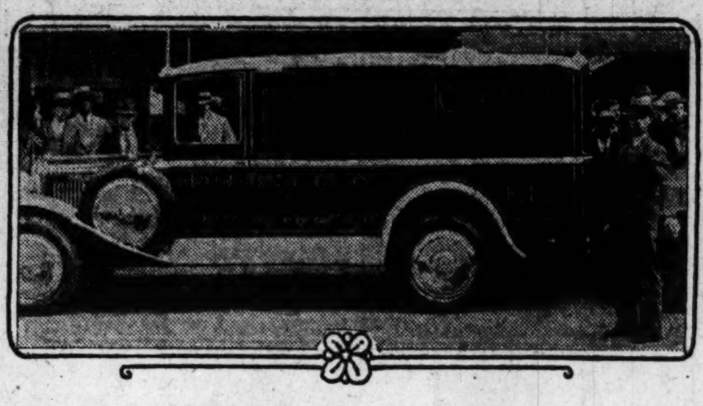
The operating instruments have large dials with indicator hands pointing to bold white figures on a black background. They are the speedometer, ammeter, oil-pressure gauge, engine heat indicator, and King-Seeley hydrostatic gas and oil level indicator.

The speedometer is the center of the panel board, easily observable from any position at the wheel.

Tax on American Motorists.

Motor car owners in the United States paid an average of $29.41 per car in special taxes last year. The lowest average, $17.80, was paid in Illinois; the highest, $52.78, in Florida. These taxes include gas tax, city and state licenses, etc.

Truck Takes Speakers to Scene



This $15,000 special portable public address system, the only one of its kind, has been touring St. Louis daily the past few days in the interest of R. C. A.-Victor "Superette Week," the "Superette" being the new Radiola mantel and small console type radio receiver.

It was built to carry out an idea of David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, and is being used by Radio-Keith-Orpheum on a two-year tour in this country. Harry Levy, of the Aeolian Co. of Missouri, was able to borrow it because his firm is the R. C. A.-Victor distributer and, so, affiliated with the R. C. A. as is R-K-O.

The truck—a Dodge—carries 12 R. C. A. dynamic speakers, six on a side, and a special amplifier to work them either from a microphone or from records. Its volume capacity is really tremendous, and the quality of reproduction is extraordinary, so good, in fact, that it is praised by sound experts wherever it goes.

D. C. current to operate the amplifier is supplied by a motor generator carried in the truck. The amplifier consists of two stages, each having its own rectifier and power unit. The first amplifier consists of a 26 type tube, transformer coupled to a push pull stage of 45 type tubes. The 45 tubes, in turn, are transformer coupled to a push pull stage using eight 50 type power tubes, four of them in parallel in each push pull leg. When the output of those eight 50 type tubes operates the 12 dynamic speakers full blast, tones from 25 to 10,000 cycles can be produced. The result, naturally, is such volume, and at the same time such fidelity of tone, as to be astonishing.

Oldsmobile Sales Register Steady Gain

Steady, consistent increases in the production and sale of Oldsmobiles since the first of the year are reported by officials of Olds Motor Works. Retail sales in April were greater than in the same month last year.

"Production, shipment and sales of Oldsmobiles have increased each month of 1931," the report states. "Domestic retail sales give the most convincing picture of this consistent betterment. There were 36 per cent greater in February than in January; 34 per cent larger in March than in February, and April sales showed a 25 per cent increase over those of March.

"In face of this continued increase, stocks of both new and used cars are materially lower than at corresponding periods during 1929 and 1930."

Roads and Autos in France.

France ranks first in Europe when the length of her highways is compared to land surface, having 2.08 miles of roadway per square mile of territory. Great Britain follows closely with 2.04 miles of roadway, while, for contrast, the United States has only 0.99 mile per square mile and Germany falls to 0.70 mile per square mile. In total road mileage France ranks fourth in the world, behind the United States, Russia and Japan. However, in the number of motor car registrations the nation is led only by the United States and Great Britain and is on the point of displacing the latter country for the honor of second position.

Twin-Ignition Now Required by U. S. on Planes of Over 40 H. P.

Twin ignition, the high efficiency, high economy engineering principle which has distinguished the engines in Nash motor cars for more than two years, is now required by the Federal Government on all the great public carriers of the air.

In its new set of official air regulations, issued Jan. 1 and in effect throughout the country, the Department of Commerce makes two spark plugs per cylinder mandatory as a basis of its "air worthiness requirements."

"Dual ignition systems," the department decrees in section 3 of its air commerce regulations for engines and propellers, "with at least two spark plugs per cylinder, are required on all engines with a power rating of 40 horsepower or more."

American Motorists Like Canada.

A total of 5,409,458 motor cars conveying tourists entered Canada from the United States in 1930, or 900,649 more than in 1929. The Province of Ontario had the most visitors, for 4,164,603 cars were admitted principally at Windsor, Bridgeburg and Niagara Falls. Quebec came next with 649,970 cars.

To Spend Millions on Roads.

Highway and bridge construction in New Jersey is now providing direct employment for thousands of workers in field as well as in the industries supplying the material. Upward of $22,937,000 is to be spent in the State this year for new roads and highway improvement.

Awards to Goodrich Test Fleet Drivers For Avoiding Accidents

Twenty-two drivers and mechanics of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.'s silver fleet of test cars have been awarded bronze plaques, indicative of having operated throughout 1930 without an accident.

The fleet operated six days a week, 24 hours a day, averaging nearly 600 miles a day for a total of nearly 2,000,000 miles during the year.

It is upon the records of this fleet and the fleets of years before that the Silvertown Safety League driving code, sponsored by the Goodrich company, is based.

Observing all the precautions set forth in the Silvertown Safety League pledge, these drivers drove in all kinds of weather over all types of roads.

The Silver Fleet crew is one of 25 Goodrich departmental groups which went through last year without an accident. Each department was awarded a similar plaque.

New Drivers a Menace.

According to a statement by the American Automobile Association, there are upward of 500,000 new drivers admitted to the highways of the United States each year who are a potential menace to life and property. This is due to the fact that 36 States do not require mental or physical examination of applicants for drivers' licenses. In 12 States and the District of Columbia, which have mandatory laws, 25 per cent of applicants fail to obtain licenses on the first examination and 3 per cent of all candidates ultimately fail to get a license.

Awards to Goodrich Test Fleet Drivers For Avoiding Accidents

Twenty-two drivers and mechanics of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.'s silver fleet of test cars have been awarded bronze plaques, indicative of having operated throughout 1930 without an accident.

The fleet operated six days a week, 24 hours a day, averaging nearly 600 miles a day for a total of nearly 2,000,000 miles during the year.

It is upon the records of this fleet and the fleets of years before that the Silvertown Safety League driving code, sponsored by the Goodrich company, is based.

Observing all the precautions set forth in the Silvertown Safety League pledge, these drivers drove in all kinds of weather over all types of roads.

The Silver Fleet crew is one of 25 Goodrich departmental groups which went through last year without an accident. Each department was awarded a similar plaque.

New Drivers a Menace.

According to a statement by the American Automobile Association, there are upward of 500,000 new drivers admitted to the highways of the United States each year who are a potential menace to life and property. This is due to the fact that 26 States do not require mental or physical examination of applicants for drivers' licenses. In 12 States and the District of Columbia, which have mandatory laws, 25 per cent of applicants fail to obtain licenses on the first examination and 3 per cent of all candidates ultimately fail to get a license.

Here and There on the Air

Series of Broadcasts to Commemorate Joan of Arc — Army Air Maneuvers to Be Broadcast —Four Speeches by the President on the Air This Month—St. Louis Tenor to Take James Melton's Place on Chain Program.

By J. L. S.

"Bob" Burdette, football coach and associate of the late Knute Rockne, will direct a series of health and exercise broadcasts over WLW from 5:30 to 6:45 every morning, except Sunday, beginning tomorrow. He will be assisted by an orchestra.

Robert A. Millikan, the scientist, will be the first speaker at 8 o'clock next Friday night in a "Men of America" series of broadcasts scheduled for Friday nights over chains of the NBC and the CBS. President Hoover is to introduce him. The National Advisory Council on Radio in Education will promote the series. Others invited to speak in these broadcasts include Nicholas Murray Butler, who will talk on some phase of international relations; Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, on the law; Walter Lippman on journalism and John Dewey on education. Only four or five persons will be invited to deliver the addresses each year. This "Men of America" series will be the council's first attempt to demonstrate what it believes is a type of educational broadcasting that will interest the American public.

Robert Simmons, the St. Louis tenor, who has been winning a place in chain broadcasting, will replace James Melton in the weekly concerts at 6:30 Thursday evenings over KWK and allied stations. After leaving St. Louis, Simmons won recognition in Berlin, where he was soloist and director of music for the American Church, and sang in concert in other European cities. He now devotes all his time to radio singing.

The five hundredth anniversary of the martyrdom of Joan of Arc will be commemorated by a series of broadcasts over the NBC's WJZ chain on Tuesdays, beginning May 19. This broadcast and similar ones on May 26 and June 2 and 9 are scheduled for 8 to 8:30 p. m. Margaret Anglin, internationally known actress, will play the role of Joan. During the four broadcasts the life of Joan will be dramatized with a musical background played by a symphony orchestra. Tschaikowsky's seldom heard "Jeanne d'Arc Suite" will be the basis of the musical setting. The last two programs are to be rebroadcast at Domremy, France, birthplace of Joan of Arc.

Morton Downey, tenor, and Anthony Wons, of "Tony's Scrap Book" fame, are to be featured with Jacques Renard, violinist, and his orchestra in a six-days-a-week series of broadcasts at 5:45 for Eastern listeners and 9:30 p. m. for the Mid-West and Pacific Coast. These programs, daily except Sunday, will start June 1 and will be carried by the CBS chain, including KMOX, and will replace the Pleasure Hour programs on the NBC's WJZ chain which will end May 27. Downey has become one of the most popular of radio tenors. Wons is to be master of ceremonies. Renard directs an orchestra in Boston.

Most of the chain announcers and technicians will be busy Friday night and Saturday afternoon broadcasting descriptions of the army air maneuvers over New York City. At 9 o'clock Friday night they will try to give the radio audience an idea of a night airplane raid on New York's theater district, when a fleet of planes will release flares to simulate the dropping of bombs. From noon to 2 o'clock Saturday, they will attempt to describe a mass attack by 672 planes on New York's financial district. At the conclusion of this mock air battle, the planes are to fly in solid formation, more than 20 miles long, over Floyd Bennett Field, New York's new municipal airport. The ceremonies in connection with dedication of this airport will be broadcast.

Addresses by President Hoover will be broadcast at 8:30 p. m. Thursday before the Red Cross; 8 p. m. Friday, when he will introduce Dr. Robert A. Millikan; at 11 a. m. Saturday when he will speak on the dedication of the Cornell University war memorial at Ithaca, N. Y. at 8:30 a. m. Memorial Day.

Treasury Secretary Andrew W. Mellon will discuss the budget deficiency and possible taxation changes in a Radio Forum broadcast over the CBS chain at 7:30 Saturday night.

Another of the older programs is to go off the air Tuesday night, when the broadcast at 7:30 will be the last. On subsequent Tuesday nights the 7:30-8 o'clock period will be taken by the program featuring Earle Spicer, baritone, which will be shifted from Saturday night.

(WENR and other WEAF chain stations—Catholic Hour (chain). WENR (870 kc) broadcasts this program in full, except in rare cases when a baseball game may run over for a few minutes, as was explained last Sunday, KSD can broadcast the Catholic Hour only from 4:30 to 5 o'clock, because of New York City's change to daylight saving time, which has pushed all chain programs ahead one hour for listeners in this region, and also because of the time sharing arrangement with KFUO. Listeners should tune in the first part of the program on WENR, then shift to KSD for the final 30 minutes. Other stations that are scheduled to carry this program are: WOW (590); WDAF (610); WSB (740); WBAP (800); KOA (830); KVOO (1140) or WSM (650).

Rev. Dr. Edward J. Walsh, C. M., of St. John's College, Brooklyn, is the speaker to be heard. Dr. Walsh's subject will be "Channels of Grace."

KMOX Notes

The Community Forum weekly debate over KMOX at 4 o'clock this afternoon will be based on the recent session of the State Legislature. State Senator William M. Bates will discuss what the Legislature has accomplished. Dean Isidor Loeb of the School of Business and Public Administration at Washington University, will tell what the Legislature has left undone. There will be a brief sermon by Father Russell Wilbur and Robert Kelson will conduct his usual question and answer bureau. Helen Traubel, soprano, will sing with the Pilgrim mixed quartet.

KMOX is broadcasting a daily farm program from its studios. Dick Buchanan and Uncle Feezel Bricker, bonafide Blue Ridge mountaineers, sing their own songs. Dick and Uncle Feezel have been broadcasting for seven years and have been heard over stations in Chicago, Detroit, Virginia and West Virginia. Their program includes square dance tunes.

Arthur Chandler Jr. will be piano soloist in an orchestral concert of music by Saint-Saens at 9:30 tonight over WLW.

What's New in Radio Industry

Brunswick Sets to Be Distributed by Factory Branch —Bosch Adds Two Novel Small Receivers — R C A-Victor Set in Five Finishes.

Brunswick Makes Change.

Distribution of Brunswick radio sets, combinations, talking machines and records has been taken over in the St. Louis district by the Brunswick Radio Distributing Corporation, Inc., a division of Warner Brothers.

The change is in line with the policy of Warner Brothers, which is replacing its distributers with factory branches all over the country.

Territory of the St. Louis district will include the Memphis, Little Rock and New Orleans area. Headquarters of the Brunswick Radio Distributing Corporation are at 915 North Sixth street.

J. H. Bennett is branch manager here. O. M. Fisk, Jack Capps and Joseph Turner are the city and territory representatives.

Two New Bosch Sets.

Two new Bosch small receivers are announced by the James C. Gordon Co., Inc., distributer. Both have a new chassis which is said to compare favorably with those in large consol receivers. The sets are in production and will be shown at the radio trade show in Chicago next month. Both use the Pentode power tube.

One receiver is housed in an oblong chest measuring only 14¾ inches long, 8¾ inches high and 6¾ deep. The cabinet is of solid mahogany, with decorative border inlay. The speaker is a dynamic. Other features are tone control and illuminated tuning dial. The set weighs only 18 pounds.

The other set is 32½ inches high, 17 inches wide and 10¼ inches deep. It can be used as an end table, smoking stand or occasional table.

Harvey Firestone Addresses Dealers At St. Louis Meeting

Harvey Firestone Sr., who was a visitor in St. Louis last week, with his son, Harvey Firestone Jr., addressed 100 Firestone dealers at the Corando Hotel Friday noon at a luncheon.

The meeting was presided over by S. A. Sabine, local manager for Firestone, who introduced C. E. Traweek, Southwest regional manager, and J. Newton, secretary of Firestone, as speakers.

Firestone spoke optimistically as to the outlook for the tire dealer and especially so far as the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. is concerned. Business, he said, is increasing steadily to a degree that should be regarded as satisfactory under the general circumstances.

Willys-Overland Officers Re-Elected

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Willys-Overland Co., the following directors were elected: John N. Willys, chairman; C. O. Miniger, George M. Jones, Marshall Field, Charles F. Glore, Rathbun Fuller, Gordon M. Mather, Thomas H. Tracy, L. A. Miller, J. H. Gerkens and T. A. Russell.

Officers were re-elected as follows: L. A. Miller, president; George M. Graham, vice president; J. H. Gerkens, vice president and treasurer; A. B. Qualy, secretary; W. E. Miner, comptroller; E. L. Clapp, assistant treasurer; H. C. Kruse, cashier; E. F. Wiggins, assistant cashier.

Spark Plugs Should Be Checked, and Also Wiring on All Cars

"While many motorists check the conditions of the spark plugs, they overlook the necessity of having the wiring of their cars checked from time to time," says F. C. Brockmeier of Brockmeier Corporation, 3408-10 Lindell boulevard, Exide dealer.

"Failure to start may be due entirely to a poor connection between the battery and the starting motor or even the ignition circuit. A poor connection may not necessarily mean a loose connection. It has been found by test that as much as 25 per cent of the starting power of the battery can be lost because of dirt or corrosion between the battery post and the terminal of the cable, which connects it to the starting motor."

Sixteenth Edition Of Dyke's Automobile, 'Gas' Encyclopedia

The sixteenth edition of Dyke's Automobile and Gasoline Encyclopedia, revised and enlarged, is just off the press. It is published by the Goodheart-Willcox Co., Inc., 2009 South Michigan avenue, Chicago.

The author, A. L. Dyke of St. Louis, a pioneer in the automobile field, is known wherever automobiles are known. He was the first in this country to publish a practical book on automobiles; he originated the first automobile supply business in America in 1899; built automobiles for sale as early as 1899-1900; and was first, as far as can be ascertained to place an American made constant level (float-feed) carburetor on the market, the original of which is now in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C.

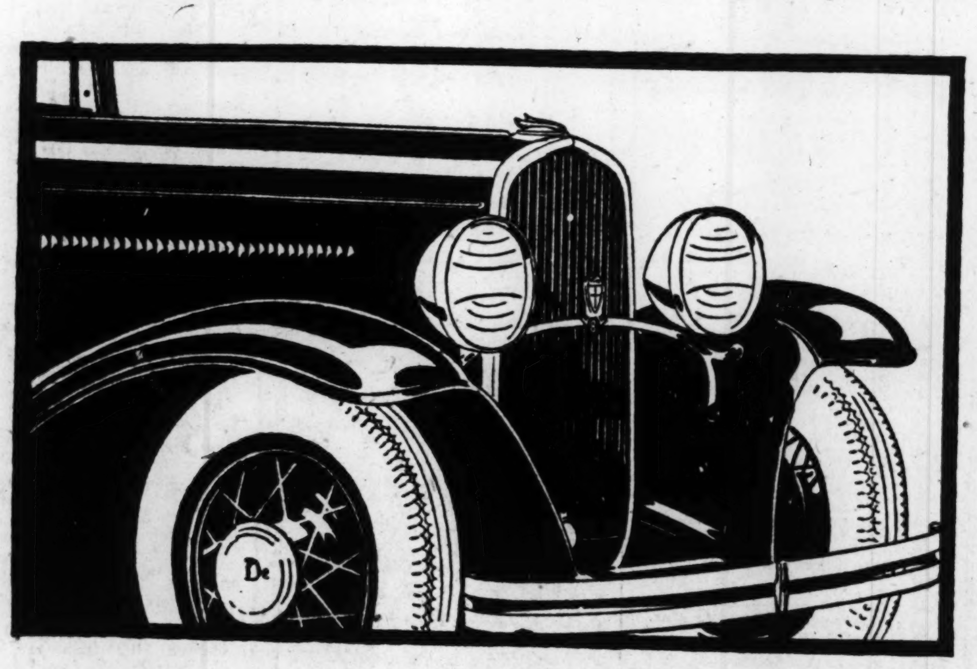
CHRYSLER MOTORS PRODUCT
De Soto Eight
Only one Eight under $1000 can give you these features.
$965 and up, f. o. b. factory
Only one eight—De Soto—can give you a power plant designed by Chrysler Motors engineers, and manufactured under the high standards of precision that prevail in every Chrysler Motors unit.
Only one eight—De Soto—can give you an all-steel body; steel welded to steel in one solid, enduring structure. It has no seams or joints to squeak and rattle—no wood to warp. For strength, silence and safety, no other type of construction can match it.
Only one eight—De Soto—can give you the proven security of Chrysler-designed, internal hydraulic brakes. They are always precisely equalized. They are positive, yet "soft" in action. They require no complicated and noisy linkage of rods, levers and brackets.
Only one eight—De Soto—can give you engine mountings of live, resilient rubber to absorb power impulses that otherwise must dissipate themselves in the car frame and body. Even before such impulses fade at these yielding barriers of rubber, they are weakened and broken up by a torsional impulse neutralizer.
Only one eight—De Soto—can offer you these four features so vital to the performance, comfort and safety you have a right to expect in your car—even though the price you pay be less than $1000.
You can prove the truth of these statements any time you choose by spending one hour at the wheel of a De Soto Eight. Just ask us for a car. You will incur no obligation.



When you see a slender-profile radiator, think of De Soto

DEAL ON HOLDINGS NEAR TERMINAL REPORTED BEGUN

peculative Interest in Downtown Property Revived by Sale of 815-17 Washington Avenue.

PTION RENEWED ON BANK BUILDING

2,500,000 Structure Proposed for Site — Market for Homes Better—Apartments Coming Back.

By Berry Moore.

Reports were abroad yesterday f negotiations for large holdings n the vicinity of the Illinois Terinal Railway Station (McKinley ines), notably on Washington avnue and on Lucas avenue. No nkling of the plans in this conection, or intimation as to the dentity of the prospective purhasers, was given. Renewed inerest is displayed in this center, ccording to real estate men.

Speculative enthusiasm in downwn property manifestly was rewakened following the sale of the even-story buildings at 815-17 Vashington avenue to Leo J. Erler f Tampa, Fla., a client of the Franciscus Realty Co., and of the Oriel building at the southeast orner of Sixth and Locust streets o the Missouri Life Insurance Co., hrough the Laclede Bond & Mortge Co. Both purchases were ade as permanent forms of inestment, which is regarded as of oteworthy significance. The lease y which Thomas W. Garland, Inc., omen's ready-to-wear apparel hop, practically doubled its available floor space in the building at 10 North Sixth street, also was mentioned.

Option on Buildings Renewed.

It was learned yesterday that the ption recently acquired on the ormer Bank of Commerce and Federal Trust Co. buildings, and ormer Post-Dispatch building, omprising the half-block on the ast side of Broadway, between Olive and Pine streets, on behalf f Eastern interests, had been reewed for 30 days. Plans conemplate the erection of a 42-tory tower to replace the old Post-Dispatch building in the cenr of the block, in connection with e present Bank of Commerce and Federal Trust Buildings, which in ffect it would surmount. Estimatd cost is $2,500,000. A large Eastrn life insurance company is menioned as available as a tenant for he proposed tower.

The entire half-block is owned by he Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. The option involves the urchase of the property at $2,-0,000, which is regarded as relavely low. John G. Lonsdale, presdent of Mercantile-Commerce, aid the deal had not reached a efinite stage.

Negotiations for the sale of he former Bank of Commerce nd Federal Trust buildings to the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. have been on several times during he last year. It is understood the Postal Telegraph Cable Co. had the buildings under consideration folowing the merger of the Mercanile Trust and the National Bank of Commerce.

Prices Holding Back Sales.

Offers were reported in the week howing a broadly diversified demand for real estate purposes, but wide divergence of opinions as o values is indicated from negoiations now hanging fire. A readustment of prices, it is pointed out, would be reflected in a greaty increased volume of transacions.

Many offers have been made by business interests, which, however, contemplate purchases only at price concessions. It is stated that negotiations in these instances s a rule are predicated on plans for expansion as soon as normal business conditions have been restored, which is regarded as one of the most reassuring features of he situation.

Negotiations are now on an imssive scale involving speculative purchases, inspired obviously by the comparatively low prices for which property of this character is now quoted on a cash basis. The amount of capital available for speculative investment, as disclosed by negotiations, is gratifying.

Trades, however, continue to predominate with clear property given for equities. This refers especially to apartments, which in many instances have been over-financed. Through this means of liquidation, buildings of this type are gradually passing into stronger hands. While announcements are withheld, deals involving apartments were features of the week. It is pointed out that one with the capital at his command can go into the market under the guidance of a realtor conversant with price ncessions under present condi-

Speculative enthusiasm in downtown property manifestly was reawakened following the sale of the seven-story buildings at 815-17 Washington avenue to Leo J. Offers were reported in the week showing a broadly diversified demand for real estate purposes, but a wide divergence of opinions as to values is indicated from negotiations now hanging fire. A readjustment of prices, it is pointed out, would be reflected in a greatly increased volume of transactions.

Many offers have been made by business interests, which, however, contemplate purchases only at price concessions. Negotiations are now on an impressive scale involving speculative purchases, inspired obviously by the comparatively low prices for which property of this character is now quoted on a cash basis. The amount of capital available for speculative investment, as disclosed by negotiations, is gratifying.

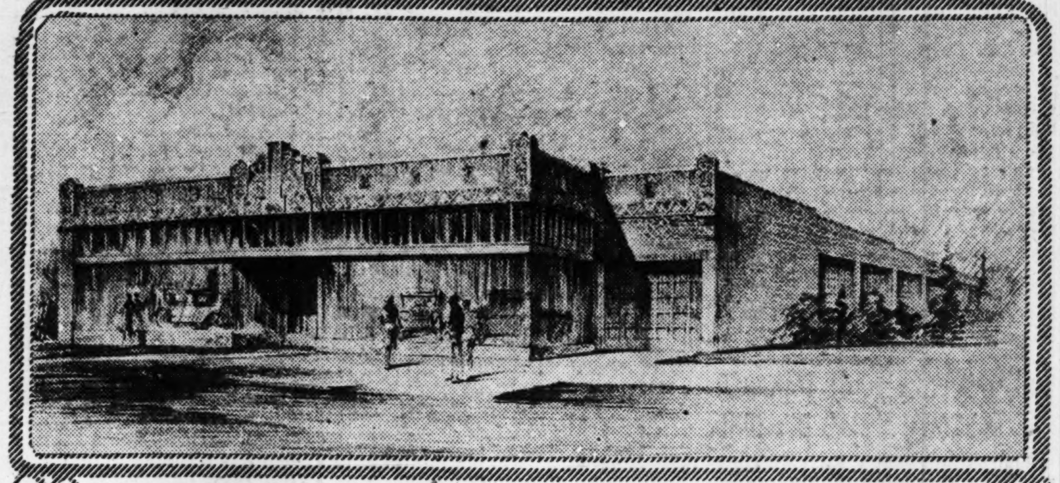
Trades, however, continue to predominate with clear property given for equities. This refers especially to apartments, which in many instances have been over-financed. Through this means of liquidation, buildings of this type are gradually passing into stronger hands. While announcements are withheld, deals involving apartments were features of the week. It is pointed out that one with the capital at his command can go into the market under the guidance of a realtor conversant with price concessions under present conditions and make many advantageous investments in apartments.

Little Capital Available.

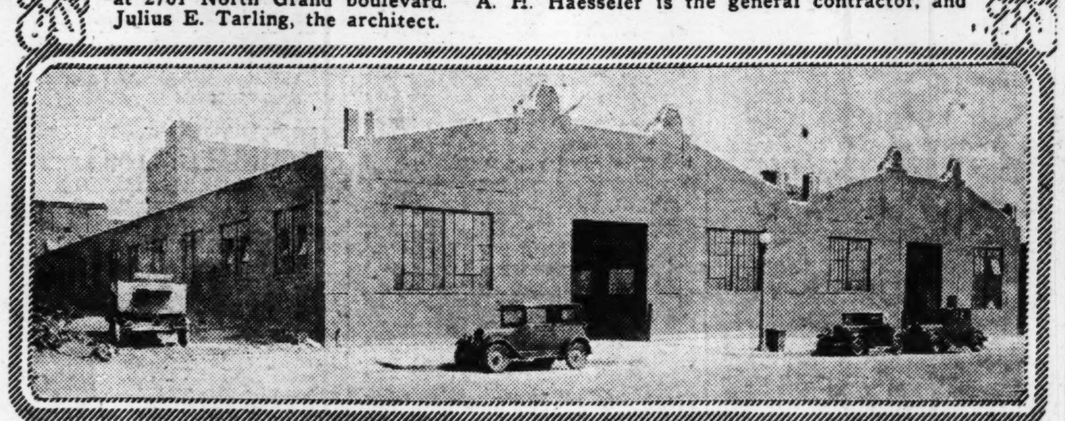
There has been comparatively little capital available for new apartment projects for a long time. A beneficial effect is reflected in an improved rental situation. Real estate operators are prone to ascribe the delayed revival in real estate to the bank and trust companies, which they declare have displayed an ultra-conservative attitude towards real estate. This has had the effect of retarding real estate operations.

A decided improvement is observed in the demand for homes, especially those for resale, which, in many instancs, may be acquired at below reproduction cost as a result of the business depression. This, however, is regarded as only a temporary condition.

Buildings Nearing Completion; House on Display



The new Ford Agency for the Weber-Deible Motor Company is nearing completion at 2701 North Grand boulevard. A. H. Haesseler is the general contractor, and Julius E. Tarling, the architect.



Garage for Railway Express Agency, Inc., nearing completion at Sixteenth and Spruce streets. Kopman Construction Co., builder. The site was assembled by Henry R. Weisels, Inc.

Building exhibit on display in a modern English residence in La Hacienda, Price and Ladue roads.—T. L. Johnson, architect.

BUILDINGS FOR RETAIL SHOPS ON DENNY ROAD

Erection of New Structure and Remodeling of Old Are Planned.

Plans have been completed for remodeling the building at the southeast corner of Denny road and Manchester roads, and for a building to be erected on the triangular lot on the east side of Denny road, approximately 60 feet south of Manchester. Maritz & Young are the architects. Plans for the former include four retail shops. Edward L. Bakewell has been appointed exclusive agent for both buildings.

With the heavy traffic on Denny and on Manchester roads, this intersection forms one of the most important pivotal points in St. Louis County, having strategic advantages for retail purposes.

The new building enterprises are in response to the demand for quarters at this point available for vegetable and fruit stores, groceries, ice cream stand, sandwich shops, florists and cleaning and dyeing establishments, etc.

There is a field for retailers there because of its location near Kirkwood and rapidly develping Huntleigh Village section.

E. O. MILLER PRODUCE CO. LEASES 822 N. FOURTH ST.

The E. O. Miller Produce Co., for the past 10 years located at 824 North Fourth street, has leased the three-story building at 822 North Fourth street. The building will be modernized and entirely devoted to the fruit and vegetable business. Rudy Kohn Realty Co. represented E. O. Miller Produce Co., the owner being represented by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

ST. LOUIS APRIL BUILDING CONTRACTS TOTAL $3,113,600

Although total contracts awarded for construction in St. Louis during April fell below the previous month, there was a notable gain in public works and utilities building, while St. Louis County, outside the city, advanced its April awards over those of March, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation.

The St. Louis city total for April was $3,113,600, divided as follows: Residential, $1,092,800; non-residential, $910,000; public works and utilities, $1,110,800. March awards totaled $4,039,300, comprising: Residential, $1,784,000; non-residential, $1,921,500; public works and utilities, $333,800. In April, 1930, St. Louis building amounted to $4,432,900, of which $1,550,500 was residential, $2,487,500 non-residential and $394,900 public works and utilities.

St. Louis County gained in all classifications. The April total was $2,147,400, of which $1,146,500 was residential, $262,100 non-residential and $738,000 public works and utilities. The March figures were: Residential, $1,013,000; non-residential, $226,000; public works and utilities, $36,900, totaling $1,275,900. In April a year ago the total for St. Louis County was $2,497,000, of which $1,559,500 was residential building.

PERMITS GREATEST HERE SINCE 1925

Permits for building and alteration of manufacturing structures and warehouses in St. Louis totaled $4,843,585, for the first four months of the year, E. S. Tompkins, acting director of the Industrial Bureau of the Industrial Club of St. Louis, announced yesterday. This was more than 50 per cent of the value of all permits issued, $9,423,101.

In no year since 1925 has the total value of building permits for the entire year equaled the figure for the first four months of 1931, Tompkins said. In 1925 the total for the year was $4,884,461, while the figure for the first four months of that year was $2,484,910.

Building permit totals for each of the last seven years are as follows: 1924, $3,241,481; 1925, $4,884,461; 1926, $3,511,060; 1927, $2,727,462; 1928, $4,739,044; 1929, $2,857,384; 1930, $4,359,621. Figures for first four-month periods of those years are: 1924, $1,168,345; 1925, $2,489,910; 1926, $1,696,354; 1927, $537,908; 1928, $652,670; 1929, $707,780; 1930, $290,884.

REALTY MEN TOLD OF MUNICIPAL COSTS

Hear Address by C. W. Atkins as Campaign Opens for Members of Property Owners' Divison.

At a meeting of the active members of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, Bernard F. Dickmann, president, opened the campaign for members of the Property Owners' division of the exchange.

C. W. Atkins, director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, addressed the gathering on the increasing cost in municipal government, presenting charts portraying the percentage increase of expenditures by departments and divisions of the city since the present charter was adopted in 1914-15. Some of the increases in the various departments are as follows: Mayor's office, 170 per cent; City Plan Commission, 365 per cent; Comptroller, 35 per cent; Assessor, 170 per cent; Supply Commissioner, 110 per cent; election and registration, 115 per cent; Circuit Court, 100 per cent; Jury Commissioners, 390 per cent; Department of Public Utilities, 125 per cent; Department of Streets and Sewers, 30 per cent; Department of Public Safety, 135 per cent; Department of Public Welfare, 165 per cent; charities, including Bellefontaine Farm and Firemen's Pension Fund, 180 per cent.

Current expenditures for the city government during the fiscal year just ended exceeded those for the preceding years by $2,000,000, while the appropriations for the present year 1931-1932 show a further increase of more than $1,500,000.

The total tax rate for city, school and State was $1.90 on the $100 assessed valuation in 1902, and since that time has steadily increased to $2.72. The city rate for current appropriations is limited by the Constitution to $1.35, to which must be added a rate sufficient to pay the interest and fun requirements on the bonded indebtedness. The maximum rate permitted under the Consitution of $1.35 has been levied ever since 1925 and the rate for debt purposes amounted to 37 cents in 1930.

A rate of 85c for school purposes has been authorized by the voters of the city since 1921.

The assessed valuation of property for taxation has increased from $230,000,000 in 1890 to $1,287,000,000 in 1930. The total receipts over general property taxes have increased from $5,000,000 in 1890 to $35,000,000 in 1930. Property taxes have almost doubled in the last 10 years. The total tax rates for local government purposes have increased 495 per cent in the last 40 years. Expenditures for city government have increased from $6,000,000 in 1890 to $32,000,000 in 1930. In 1920 these expenditures amounted to less than $20,000,000. Expenditures for schools increased from slightly more and $1,000,000 in 1890 to more than $13,000,000 in 1930 and represents an increase of more then 100 per cent over the expenditures of $6,000,000,000 in 1920.

In 1890 per capita expenditures for city government amounted to a little more than $14; in 1920, $25 and in 1930 to more than $38. School expenditures in 1890 amounted to $2.50 per capita and have been rapidly increased to more than $16 per capita in 1930.

The population in the city in 1890 was 451,700; in 1920 774,200 and in 1930, 821,900.

During the 40-year period from 1890 to 1930 the city expenditures have increased 400 per cent and school expenditures have increased more than 1000 per cent, whereas the city population has increased only 80 per cent and the average daily attendance of schools only 125 per cent.

Dickmann in addressing the members of the exchange on the Property Owners' Division announced that it was not the intent and purpose of the division to become antagonistic to the city government, but to ask the various departments to co-operate with the division by curtailing the expenditures and reducing operating costs so that much needed relief from taxes would be afforded real estate which is one-half the wealth of the tax burden.

WEBER-DEIBLE MOTOR CO. BUILDING NEARING COMPLETION

The new service Ford agency for the Weber-Deible Motor Co. is nearing completion at 2701 North Grand boulevard. The building is 70 feet wide and 175 feet long. On Grand boulevard the building is faced with Algomet, a metal covered cast stone, and the interior walsl with white enameled brick.

Fronting Grand boulevard is a large showroom with parts department, general offices and private offices. The building is designed so that no part or room is kept from, glass partitions or inclosures being used throughout. All service to the building will be handled through the front on Grand boulevard and the rear on Fall avenue.

A. H. Haesseler is the general contractor and Julius E. Tarling the architect.

RESOLUTION OPPOSES CITY RENTING OF PROPERTY

At a recent regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Real Estate Exchange, a resolution was adopted calling on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to abandon at once its practice of renting or leasing properties already or hereafter acquired by the city for public improvements for the reason that this practice is placing the city in direct competition, on an unfair basis, with taxpaying property owners.

DELEGATION TO LEAVE MAY 25 FOR BALTIMORE CONVENTION

The delegation from the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange to the twenty-fourth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, of which the St. Louis Exchange is a charter member, will leave Union Station on the B. & O. National Limited on Monday, May 25, at 12:40 p. m., stopping en route at Washington, D. C., for a brief sight-seeing trip on Tuesday, and will arrive in Baltimore that evening at 6:00 o'clock, where the delegates will be housed at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, the convention headquarters.

Charles J. Daly, a past president of the exchange and a member of the Board of Directors of the National Association, and Delbert S. Wenzlick, vice president and treasurer of the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co., who will address the property management division of the National Association on Thursday, May 28, will be included in the St. Louis delegation, which now numbers 51 people headed by Bernard F. Dickmann, president.

CHICAGOAN TO SPEAK AT REALTY BROKERS' DINNER

The monthly dinner and meeting of the brokers' division of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange will be held Tuesday evening at the Melbourne Hotel when Newton C. Farr, a recent past president of the Chicago Real Estate Board, will be the speaker.

Farr will talk on "Operating a Successful One-Man Office." He will be followed by a round table discussion. Henry R. Weisels will show several reels of moving pictures taken by him on the recent trip of the members of the exchange to the Bagnell Dam project of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. H. A. O'Rourke, chairman of the brokers' division, will preside.

BALTIMORE MEETING SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED

They Include Col. William A. Starrett and M. Morgenthau Jr.

At the Baltimore convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards May 27 to 30, practically all of the speakers are engaged in commerce or trade, and their job is to bring conservative forecasts, new ideas, and workable suggestions.

If anyone breaks into oratory it will be on such pracitcal subjects as financing, construction, and selling, but there will be no spellbinders to tell the realtors how good they are, says the association.

The speakers include Col. William A. Starrett, president of the Starrett Corporation of New York City, engineer, architect, and builder, who in 1919 introduced in Japan several buildings specially designed to resist earthquakes.

Gordon Beck, vice-president of the Warren E. Richards Co., Cincinatti, will speak before the Home Builders and Subdividers' Division on "Preventable Wastes in the Home Building Industry." He is president of the Ohio State Planning Conference.

Forris W. Norris of Boston, Mass., who will speak before the same division, began 25 years ago as an office boy. Specialist in industrial, apartment house, and subdivision development, Norris has had varied business experience.

M. Morgenthau Jr., president of the National Realty Service Corporation, New York City, will speak before the Mortgage and Finance Division.

Exhibits of new and tested forms, systems, methods, circulars, advertising, letters, etc., will be arranged at the Lord Baltimore Hotel as a feature of the convention.

The association itself will present the now-completed advertising service for local offices, which includes some 95 unusual pieces worked out after a year of analysing the advertising needs of the various branches of the realty field.

BABYLON'S REAL ESTATE MEN WROTE CONTRACTS ON CLAY

That shrewd real estate brokers flourished in ancient Babylon who were wizards in the expert drawing of mortgage contracts, figuring complicated interest rates, and who insisted in identifying buyer and seller by reciting their genealogies, and relied on the imprecations of pagan idols to protect their rights, is disclosed by an historical bulletin of the Home Title Insurance Co.

Among the many thousand clay tablets stored in the palaces of the Babylonian kings recently uncovered by archaeologists, it is pointed out those recording commercial transactions preponderate. For instance, one tablet is inscribed: Iddinmarduk has loaned to Nabubanaha three mana through the agency of Belrimanni upon certain land owned by the second party . . . It is to bear interest monthly . . . Belrimanni gives Iddinmarduk a receipt for the money he has received and in turn he receives one from Nabubanaha for the money paid him.

All this, plus considerable other detail, is upon a clay tablet 2x4 inches. Another tablet records that Ittimardukbalatu is to receive from Nadin and Nubta, his wife, such an amount of shekels every month for the 36 shekels which Ittimardukbalatu has lent to Nadin and his wife upon their house, with complicated interest specifications attached to the contract.

SUBURBAN PROP. FOR SALE

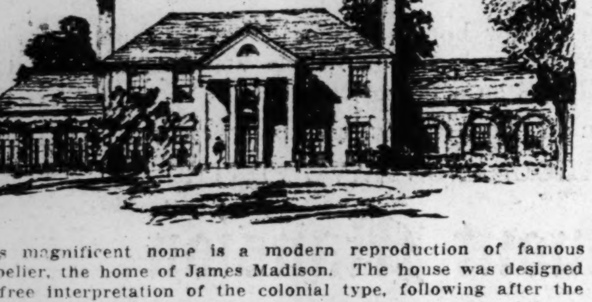
"Montpelier" in Colonial Hills



This magnificent home is a modern reproduction of famous Montpelier, the home of James Madison. The house was designed as a free interpretation of the colonial type, following after the manner of the middle colonies of the 18th century, and while no attempt has been made to follow the precedent literally, the architect aimed to gain the general character of Montpelier without obsolete details that would be quite meaningless. A broad, central hall, prefaced by a small vestibule, is typical of this class of architecture. At one side of the hall are dining room and kitchen, beyond which are the servants' quarters and garage. At the other side of the hall is a living room opening in turn to a beautiful sun porch.

Located in the most desirable of suburban communities, the choice of the discriminating who desire beautiful scenery, access to the city that is quick and easy, homes that express taste, that will give social prestige and that offer outdoor sports and recreation for all members of the family, this residence of unusual charm with its wide expanse of land, beautiful landscaping and lovely outlook would be difficult to excel.

Montpelier, distinguished in line, mass and setting and faultless in taste, emanates a gracious hospitality. A most inviting ensemble of living room, sunroom, dining room, 4 master bedrooms, 5 baths, servants' rooms, recreation room in basement, 2-car garage and 5 acres of land. Near Mary Institute, Villa Duchesne and Chaminade College. On Spoede Road in Colonial Hills, half mile north of Ladue Road.

214 N. GORE AVENUE
A wonderful old Colonial home, with large center hall, from which a broad, easy stair winds gracefully to the second floor; spacious arched openings between all rooms; coal-burning fireplaces, with artistic white marble mantels in every room and many other features, all tend to emphasize the charm and comfort of this fine old house. The living room is 15x32, with a quaint window bay and two fine white marble mantels. Back of the living room is the "back parlor," now used as a billiard room. There is also a library with built-in bookcases, sunroom, dining room, kitchen and laundry. On the second floor are five bedrooms, sewing room, bath, and in the rear are two rooms for servants. Steam heat, oil burner; hot-water storage tank; stately trees of all varieties surround the house, which is situated on a plot of ground fronting over 500 feet on Gore av. and extending through to College av. The Kirkham av. frontage is 377 feet and has been zoned to permit business usage. The owner of this property has filed a subdivision plat and contemplates wrecking the house and selling the property in small parcels. However, before this property is broken into, it is the owner's desire to make an attempt to locate someone who will love and appreciate the possibilities of this homestead, make the necessary repairs and preserve the estate intact, looking to the future growth of this community to show a substantial profit through the development of the residential and business possibilities of this property. Drive out today and if you are interest, at the price of $35,000, arrange for inspection.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The financial markets faced the mid-year season of business quiet this week.

A trickle of discouraged investment selling gave the advantage to the bears in the equity share market, and although the drastic reduction of short term money rates diverted funds into highest grade bonds, further declines in the rail lines and the foreign issues gave the bond market a spotty appearance.

The reducing of the Federal Reserve rediscount rate to 1½ per cent and the cutting of the reserve's acceptance buying rate to 1 per cent for short-term bills, appeared to be slowly diverting idle funds from this money market, which is believed to be an objective of the reserve officials. While the cheapening of credit rates has failed thus far to bring a reduction of the rate of 1 per cent paid on domestic deposits by New York banks, the banks did cut the interest they pay on foreign deposits from 2 to 1½ per cent.

Call loans renewed at 1 per cent on Monday for the first time in 23 years, but at that level, nonbank and out-of-town lenders were receiving only ½ of one per cent after payment of charges for having their funds placed, so found it more profitable to leave their funds on deposit with New York banks at 1 per cent. Money rose to 1½ per cent on Tuesday and renewals continued daily at that level.

The weekly brokerage loan statement showed that out-of-town banks and non-bank lenders withdrew a total of $95,000,000, which was partially replaced by an increase of $67,000,000 in the brokers loans of New York banks. Foreign exchange rates did not indicate any important withdrawal of foreign funds after the reduction in the rates on foreign deposits, but a firming of sterling may have reflected some withdrawals to London.

Shrinkage in Values.

The shrinkage of share values went forward steadily through the week. With the thorough deflation of brokers loans, and the small speculative public interest in the market, large-scale or hasty liquidation was not to be expected, but under pressure of a steady trickle of discouraged selling, some of which was believed to be for foreign account, and bear drives against selected issues, the market lost all of its recent rally, and as measured by the price index of 90 representative stocks, broke to a new low since the spring of 1927, slightly below the previous bottom of the bear market, recorded on April 29. Rails remained a soft spot, price indices for these issues indicating a new low since 1924. There appeared to be a bear maneuver to break United States Steel and American Can below the 100 mark, and in the latter, came within a fraction of doing it.

In the bond market, the United States Governments, and high grade investment issues, particularly among the utilities, worked higher, but grade of issues not so high, notably among the rails, were under almost steady pressure.

90-Issue Average Down.

Stocks eased gently today. Weakness was concentrated in a few shares, but the 90-issue standard Statistics-Associated Press composite dipped just under its old bear market low, closing at 113.8 against the former minimum of 114.1. The industrial average missed its old low by a very small fraction, but the rails recorded a new bottom for the fifth successive day.

There was enough week-end covering to absorb most of the selling. U. S. Steel and American Can again softened, the latter dropping more than 2 points to a new low of 100⅛, while Steel duplicated yesterday's low of 101⅜ and was off 1⅝ net. Food shares, notably National Biscuit and Loose

LOCAL STOCK TRADE VOLUME LITTLE LARGER

Losses Shown in List but Greater Number of Securities Either Unchanged or Higher.

Business continued quiet on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week though showing a slight pick up in volume over the preceding period. While several stocks showed losses for the week, these were far outnumbered by securities that were either unchanged in price or higher at the close. Fractional gains were the rule.

In the higher group were International Shoe, Securities Investment, Stix, Baer & Fuller, Corno Mills, McQuay Norris, St. Louis Public Service common and Landis Machine.

Missouri Portland was lower all week, ranging down a point and a half and closing 1 lower. Mercantile-Commerce and Consolidated Lead also were lower. National Candy lost ½ point.

Dr. Pepper, Brown Shoe and Southwestern Bell preferred failed to hold gains and closed unchanged. Wagner Electric recovered a small decline. Johnson, Stephens, Shinkle was unchanged.

Wiles Biscuit, were sold, and so were New York Central and Canadian Pacific. Changes in other pivotal stocks were largely fractional. Ralph Linder Pope, president of Northwestern Leather Co. of Boston, and Willis R. Fisher, president of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. of Peabody, Mass., have been elected to membership in the New York Hide Exchange.

American Brass Co. has reduced prices of brass and copper materials a quarter of a cent a pound.

Fifty-one chain store companies, including three mail-order concerns, showed April sales of $334,098,443, a decrease of 3.20 per cent from $345,153,335 for the corresponding month last year, a compilation by Merrill, Lynch & Co. shows. Excluding the mail-order houses, 48 store chains showed sales of $281,517,966, a decrease of 1.87 per cent.

Fairly steady buying of chemicals in the spot market, and the tendency of many consumers to take on stocks only as needed rather than to commit themselves to long-term purchases, furnished developments of the past month in heavy chemical markets, Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering reports. Conversely, contract placements have failed to attain the tonnage reported in previous years.

Stock Exchange Topics.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Renewed liquidation was reported in progress in parts of the list through the morning short session. The identity of the firms reported on the selling side of stocks in question suggested that offerings coming from such sources took the form of bona fide liquidation rather than selling for short account. Considerable of the day's offerings in steel and American Can came reputedly from an important house on lower Broadway. Canadian Pacific, Union Carbide, National Biscuit and Loose Wiles, likewise felt the force of offerings from sources which could not reasonably have been accepted as reflecting activities of the bears.

Stocks of holding corporations, while having shared in this readjustment, continue to rule at much higher ratio than the stocks of the operating companies. United Corporation, for example, at its 1931 high, was selling at 30.1 times indicated return for the issue. Electric Bond & Share, though a holding company, is currently moving on a basis of 18.8 times earnings or about in line with the average of operating corporation stocks, the present ratio contrasting with the equivalent of 51.6 times indicated earnings in order at last year's high. Southern California Edison, Standard Gas & Electric, National Power & Light, Louisville Gas & Electric, American Power & Light and Pacific Lighting are among prominent issues selling at levels ranging from 11.9 to 14.8 times indicated earnings.

New York Bank Statement.

By the Associated Press.

Temperature 99 in Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 16.—A low pressure area, centering in the Kansas City area, sent thermometers above 90 in many Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma cities today. All-time May 16 records were broken in Kansas City, where an official reading of 94.2 was recorded. Oklahoma City reported a record high of 90.7 and Topeka a maximum of 95. Manhattan, Kan., reported 98 degrees; Pittsburg, Kan., 99.

MOST BONDS STEADY IN WEEK-END MARKET

Some Best Grades Firm to Higher — Trade Is of Moderate Volume.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Trading in the bond market today was of the usual moderate week-end proportions, but the tone of most issues was steady and gilt-edge obligations continued firm to higher.

The Fourth Liberty 4¼s reached a new all-time high record at 104 21-32 and U. S. Treasury 4s of 1944-54 hit a new 1931 peak at 109 4-32. Other bonds of the Federal Government were generally higher, although the turnover in several of them was small and no sales of any kind were recorded in others. Strength appeared also among high-grade corporate obligations. Albany & Susquehanna 3½s, American Sugar Refining 6s, Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, New York Central 4½s of 2013, Norfolk & Western 4s of 1944, Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s, and Union Pacific first 4s of 1968 were representative of the high-grade issues to close higher. Some of this group reached new high levels for this year.

Price movements throughout the list were generally narrow. Phillips Petroleum 5¼s were an exception and lost much of their recent advance, closing 4¼ points lower at 60. General Theaters Equipment 6s and International Match convertible 5s made some sharp gains. Lorillard debenture 5½s equaled their old high in steady trading.

Fluctuations in foreign bonds were not so wide as frequently in the recent past. Net changes were divided about evenly between gains and declines.

FAIRLY STEADY TONE TO THE CURB MARKET

Trading Is Dullest of Year With Sales of Only 130,000 Shares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The Curb Market showed a fairly steady tone today in the dullest Saturday trading of the year. Sales for the two hours were only 130,000 shares.

Prices tried to rally in the first half hour, but interest was so stagnant that the attempt was abandoned. Selling pressure was largely absent, however, and quotations moved narrowly, sagging slightly toward the close which was irregular.

One of the active issues was General Theaters Equipment preferred which rallied more than a point following issuance of the 1930 earnings report. The maximum advance was not fully maintained and the issue finished higher. There was a 3 point rise in Parker Rust-Proof, but otherwise the specialties did little. Mead Johnson lost a point. Insurance Company of North America declined 2¼ to a new low and Stutz Motor declined 1½. Consolidated Dairy yielded about a point. Aluminum of America was dull but firm.

Several of the utility leaders, including Electric Bond, American Superpower, St. Regis Paper and Associated Gas "A" sagged by small fractions. United Light "A" was steady.

Changes in the oils were narrow. Standard of Ohio lost a point and Standard of Indiana ¾. Vacuum and Cities Service closed unchanged, although the latter duplicated its 1931 low.

Graymur Corporation and Selected Industries preferred dropped in light trading, while United Founders went to the new low of 6 before making full recovery.

General Gas and Electric Corp. today reported 1930 net income of $7,575,939, compared with $6,086,652 for 1929, an increase of 24 per cent. Because of market conditions, the book value of the company's investments on Dec. 10, 1930, had decreased about $30,000,000, which shrinkage was met by a reduction in the stated value of the capital stock. Current assets on Dec. 31 last were $3,586,921, against current and accrued liabilities of $2,504,342.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Raw sugar was firmer today with prices advancing 1-32 of a cent to 3.23 for spots duty paid. At this level 58,500 bags of Philippines afloat were sold to refiners.

Futures were quiet but the undertone was steady with offerings light, reflecting the continued steadiness of the spot market. The demand, however, was also light consisting mostly of covering for over the week-end and some buying by trade interests against recent sales in the spot market and after opening unchanged to 1 point higher, there was little variation throughout the remainder of the session with closing quotations net unchanged to 1 point higher. Sales were only 4900 tons. May closed 1.16, July 1.21, Sept. 1.29, Dec. 1.37, Jan. 1.39, March 1.45, May 1.50.

There was only a light inquiry in refined and that was principally of a hand-to-mouth character, with prices unchanged at 4.40 for fine granulated.

CONDITION OF PROPERTY

"Institutions endure." And institutional buildings, such as churches, colleges and hospitals, are built to endure. Substantial original construction simplifies the question of their upkeep. For thirty years we have been selecting improved property on which to make first mortgage loans, and this long experience has taught us that for keeping property in continuously good condition, the institutional borrower as a class is not surpassed. This is another reason why we recommend for your investment the first mortgage notes which are $500 and $1,000 portions of institutional loans.

At this time we are offering 5% First Mortgage Notes of Our Lady of Presentation (Catholic Church), St. Louis County, Missouri. A descriptive circular will be forwarded if you will sign and mail the lower portion of this advertisement.

DOWNTURN TO WHEAT PRICES AT WEEK-END

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 16.—A weak stock market, report of rain in Canada, private estimate of bumper winter wheat crop in U. S., with figures on Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, report of sign of liberal increase in wheat on passage and report of slack export demand were among the influences in the week-end wheat market and prices closed down more than a cent. A private estimate that the Canadian wheat acreage would show a 12 per cent decrease was an early bullish factor. News also favored corn bears.

Winnipeg closed 1½@1⅝c lower.

Liverpool closed ⅛d to ¼d higher.

July wheat opened at 58½c, September wheat 58½c, July corn 58⅜c, September corn 57¼c.

Local wheat receipts which were 113,400 bu compared with 115,400 a week ago and 51,800 a year ago included 40 cars local and 35 through. Corn receipts which were 74,200 bu compared with 79,800 a week ago and 95,200 a year ago included 42 cars local and 11 through. Oats receipts which were 66,000 bu. Compared with 103,400 a week ago and 61,600 a year ago included 25 cars local and 5 through. Hay receipts were 1 car local and 1 through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. Offerings were light and there was limited demand for select grain at current levels. The straight grades went to shippers and the heavy garlicky and low grades to local elevators. The available supply cleared well, except for a car of flinty No. 1. Hard wheat was steady. A light local elevator and milling demand cleared the small offerings; there was no straight No. 1 on sale and it was nominally 81@81½c, but there were sales of smutty No. 1 at 80c and No. 1 mixed at 81½c. Corn was steady to 1½c lower. The yellow variety was taken in fair volume by industries, but the demand otherwise was light. Oats were ½@1c lower. The demand was only fair.

RANGE OF PRICES.

CORN—No. 2 yellow, 56½c to 57c; No. 3 yellow, 55½c to 56c; No. 6 yellow, 54c; No. 2 white, 56½c to 57½c; No. 3 white, 56½c.

OATS—No. 1 white 30c; No. 2 white 29½c; No. 3 white 29c; No. 1 mixed 28c.

St. Louis Bran Market.

Cash wheat feed prices were easier. Trading was light. Bran was offered to arrive for immediate and prompt shipment at $16@16.50; gray shorts, $17.50@18.00; standard middlings, $17; oatmay feed was quoted at $7.75 and white hominy feed at $19. Sales reported were as follows: 1 car standard bran, immediate, $16.50; 1 car gray shorts (next week), $17.75; 1 split car bran, $16.50, and gray shorts, $18.75.

WHEAT DROPS TO LOWEST PRICE LEVEL OF MONTH

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Swamped by general selling, wheat today tumbled to the lowest price this month. Corn [illegible] the season's bottom level. Stock market weakness, drouth relief in Canada and prospects of a bumper wheat crop in the United States were main incentives for sellers.

Wheat closed irregular, 1¾c lower to ⅛c advance; corn ¾@1⅛c down; oats ⅛@¼c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15 cents.

For a brief while at the start, wheat had an upward trend, responsive to estimates that Canadian wheat acreage this season would show 12 per cent decrease. Soon, however, sentiment veered, and reports indicating that domestic winter wheat prospects were almost perfect led to a rapid increase of selling pressure, whereas buyers became more and more difficult to find. Prices toppled especially after a comprehensive trade summary was issued saying winter wheat conditions throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska were the most promising in years.

New unofficial estimate put 1931 winter wheat production for Texas and Oklahoma at 55,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels each, with Kansas 200,000,000 and Nebraska 65,000,000 to 70,000,000. Fears were expressed that a volume of hedging sales would quickly appear in connection with the marketing of this expected big yield. As a result, July delivery of wheat fell to a discount under September contracts, and it was said that should there be abundance of storage room as Farm Board allies assert, the pressure on July would widen the discount further.

Late messages from Edmonton, Canada, told of rain at various points in the spring wheat belt, and offset earlier reports indicating continuance of drouth. There were also signs of another liberal increase of the amount of wheat on ocean passage, whereas North American export demand was slack, and re-sellers abroad were reported offering wheat cheaper than prices asked this side of the Atlantic.

A halt in shipping demand for corn had effect on the corn market. Holders also were handicapped by reports of fast progress of planting.

Oats weakened with corn and wheat. Provisions worked downward, affected by weakness of hog values and of grains.

Canadian Crop Outlook.

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, May 16.—The area sown to wheat and barley in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta is nearly 1,000,000 acres less than last year, the Manitoba Free Press reported today.

So far this year about 21,000,000 acres have been seeded against 28,800,000 in 1930, according to the report. Some sections are suffering from lack of moisture, however, and it is expected that additional sowings will be made when there is sufficient moisture, the Free Press said.

Recent rains have helped in Manitoba, but in the other two provinces planting has been held up by dry winds and drifting. The reduction in barley acreage is 20 to 30 per cent in Manitoba, 25 per cent in Saskatchewan, with a slight increase in Alberta.

Russia Speeding Up Wheat Planting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 16. — Russia is speeding up its spring planting of wheat. By May 5, the agriculture department said today, 25,700,000 acres had been planted as compared with 30,400,000 a year ago.

On May 1 the wheat sowing were estimated at 16,100,000 acres against 29,500,000 on that date in 1930.

Sowings of spring crops on individual peasant holdings, which account for one-half or more of the total Russian acreage, were said by the department, however, to be especially backward, less than 10,000,000 acres having been seeded up to May 5, as contrasted with more than 44,000,000 acres on collective farms.

The Russian spring wheat planting is considerably behind the goal set in its current plan—68,188,000 acres—but whether this will affect her 1931 exports department officials declined to say. Russia has been regarded as a formidable factor in world markets over-burdened with surpluses.

Official sources have placed Russia's 1930 production at 1,097,000,000 bushels, 246,000,000 more than produced in the United States.

HOGS UNEVENLY LOWER FOR WEEK

Generally Declining Market, With Temporary Upturns, Feature Period.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, May 16.—(U. S. Dept. of Agriculture). Cattle receipts this week approximated 11,700, while the total for the preceding week was 14,568. One year ago this week 11,031 comprised the offerings. With weak to lower prices recorded on dressed steer beef nearly every day this week in the wholesale centers of the East, live steer prices have now reached what some operators claim to be the lowest point for the month of May in 20 years. With falling beef prices in mind, the packer buyer made every effort to lower the level for the raw material, while the seller likewise struggled to maintain steady prices and thus save further losses for the steer producer. For the foregoing reasons trading in the steer division this week was unusually slow, a matinee session being required nearly every day to dispose of the offerings. Compared with the close of the preceding week, steers sold steady to 25c lower, while other slaughter cattle, together with all stocker and feeder descriptions, remained unchanged. Tops for the week: 493-lb. heifers, $8.25; 950-lb. yearling steers, $8.75; 576-lb. mixed yearlings, $8.25; 1417-lb. matured steers, $7.85; cows, $6; medium bulls, $4.50; vealers, $8.50; stocker steers, $7.60. Heavy steers, or those averaging 1395 to 1451 lbs., brought $7.75 and $7.85 while mediumweights scaling 1118 to 1269 lbs. went in the narrow range of $6.50 to $7.40. Lightweight steers ranged from $6 to $8.75, bulk $6.40@7.75, inside bulk, $6.60@7.60, while bulk of all weights brought, $6.25@7.75. Several loads of South Texas stocker steers registered $6.75 out of first hands, while grass steers from the same State went on local packer account at $5.60@6.30, those at the higher figure averaging 1183 lbs., the latter, incidentally, being very fat for that kind. Most fat mixed yearlings and heifers cashed at $7@8; medium fleshed descriptions, $6.50@7; cows, $4.50@5.25; low cutters, $3@3.50.

Bulk and top prices the corresponding week last year were as follows. Steers, $8.50@11; top, $12.25; fat mixed yearlings and heifers, $10@11, top $12; medium fleshed kinds, $9@9.75; cows, $6.75@7.75; top, $8.75; low cutters, $4@5; top medium bulls, $7.75; top vealers, $11.50; bulk stocker and feeder steers, $7.85@9.50; top, $9.90.

Hogs Unevenly Lower.

Arrivals at the hog house for the past week totaled approximately 64,100 head as compared with an actual count of 73,666 for the preceding week and a run of 74,096 for the corresponding period a year ago. A generally declining market which featured but a few temporary upward reactions ruled during the entire week with prices unevenly lower in final deals. Sluggish in the demand for live animals was only consistent with very draggy and lower markets at Eastern centers for the dressed product. Values compared with the previous week's close were around 15 to 25c lower on hogs with pigs showing a corresponding decline and packing sows from steady to 10c lower. Scattered sales registered as high as $7.40 during the week on pig stuff with hogs stopping at $7.30 and closing top $7, (practical). A few lots of selected lightweights on final rounds sold as high as $7.05 and $7.10. Most weights from 230-lbs. down sold on the close around $6.80@7 with some weightier hogs of 250 to 260-lbs. going at $6.75. Packing sows were cleared from $5.50@5.75, largely $5.65 downward. Top hogs a year ago today average at $10.15 and $10.20; 250 to 300-lb. weights $9.75@10.10; 100 to 130-lb. weights $9.25@9.75; 130 to 150-lbs. $9.75@10.10; packing sows largely $9@9.10.

Lamb Market Lower.

Receipts of sheep and lambs the past week totaled approximately 16,600 head as compared with actual receipts of 13,860 the preceding week and 8020 the corresponding week last year. Generally lower markets for dressed products at Eastern centers was accompanied by corresponding bearishness in the live animals and prices ruled unevenly lower for the week here, values around $1 under the previous week's close, possible exceptions being some of the best clipped varieties, choice kinds of which were scarce. Spring lambs showed the full decline, modest receipts on the close finding somewhat more active inquiry from packer interests with an accompanying firmness which reflected little or no price change, however. Top spring lambs for the week reached $11.50 to butchers, packers getting under way at figures from $10.50 downward and purchasing most of their supplies at $10 or less. Up to $10.25 was paid by big killers on the close. Clipped offerings were comprised principally of Texas lambs, prices on which ranged largely from $7.50 down with a few $7.75 and $8. Medium descriptions sold downward to $6 and $6.25. Two consignments of aged clipped wethers from local feedlots cashed at $3.25 and $3.35 with clipped western ewes at $3 and $3.25. Most fat native ewes sold from $3 downward.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, May 16.—The offering of horses and mules the past week, totaling not much over 100 head on commission, was barely sufficient to test demand of the trade. The meager supply cleared at auction the first two days of the week and steady values prevailed in most classes.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Foreign demand for copper improved following a reduction of ¼c in the export price, but domestic buying continues on a small scale. Larger producers reduced their quotation for electrolytic from 9½c to 9¼c, delivered in the Connecticut Valley, but custom smelters continue to quote metal on the basis of 9 cents. The April statistics revealed a sharp increase in refined stocks, owing to smaller shipments, and with large supplies available, domestic fabricators are not disposed to anticipate requirements.

Tin has been quiet and slightly steadier owing to decreased selling pressure. Buyers have limited purchases, however, pending outcome of the international tin conference now in session at The Hague.

Recent reductions in lead prices attracted improved demand early in the week, although buying tapered off later. Sellers held steady, however, the earlier business having improved their position.

Zinc was steadier on moderately improved buying, following recent declines. Smelters are said to be less inclined to sell owing to a steadier ore market.

20,000-Ton Cut in Tin Urged.

By the Associated Press.

THE HAGUE, May 16.—A further annual reduction of at least 20,000 tons in tin output to start as soon as possible was recommended today by the International Tin Committee, made up of representatives from British Malaya, Nigeria, Dutch East Indies and Bolivia.

The members notified their Governments the reduction was necessary "to secure a fair and reasonable equilibrium between consumption and production."

The decrease is 15.9 per cent of the present quota.

FURTHER DECLINE IN COTTON AT WEEK-END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Better weather in the South, relatively easy Liverpool cables and the unsettled ruling of the stock market were reflected by further declines in cotton today.

Moderate rallies on some trade buying and week-end covering during the middle of the morning were not maintained and the general market closed barely steady at net declines of 9 to 13 points. Spot quiet, middlings 9.40.

The opening was steady, 2 to 9 points lower, under some overnight selling orders attracted by the developments of yesterday. These appeared to be supplemented by some local and foreign selling on the reports of good weather in the belt and the relatively easy showing of Liverpool. The early offerings were quite readily absorbed by week-end covering, while there was also considerable trade buying presumably to fix prices on call cotton. This stiffened the market up during the middle of the morning with active months selling back to about yesterday's closing quotations, but prices weakened again in the later trading. May sold off to 9.25 and Dec. to 10.01, making net losses of 11 to 14 points, and the close was within a point of the lowest for the day and season.

Selling was supposed to be partly in anticipation of improved crop reports as a result of the better weather, while there also appeared to be some Wall street selling which may have been influenced by the action of the stock market.

Liverpool cable said that continental and Bombay liquidation in that market had been absorbed by trade calling and covering at the decline. Spot sales of 16,000 bales were reported in the Liverpool market, but they included 10,750 bales of Russian and only 3000 bales of American cotton.

IN MEMORIAM

ACKER—In memory of my dear husband and father, Charles F. Acker, who departed this life, May 16, 1930.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND SON.

ANDERSON—In remembrance of our dear daughter and sister, Bernice M. Anderson, who passed away May 14, 1930:
Time speeds on, one year has passed,
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will;
Bernice's place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.
Sadly missed by mother, father and brother and all who loved her.

BRODBECK, CATHERINE—Departed this life May 13, 1922.
There is a sad but sweet remembrance,
There is a memory fond and true;
There is a token of affection, mother,
And a heartache still for you.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

BUSCH—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Margaret Elizabeth Busch, who departed this life three years ago, May 20, 1928.
The month of May again is here,
To us the saddest of the year.
A loved one from us is gone
A voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHLDREN.
Requiem high mass Wednesday, May 20, at 7:45 at the Assumption Church.

DELASHMIT—My dear husband, Harry Delashmit who died May 17, 1930.

Years may go by but memories stay.
You are gone, but not forgotten,
For we shall meet again some day.
WIFE.

DIEBLING—In loving memory of Mary Diebling, died May 18, 1930.

HOGENKAMP—In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Mrs. Katherine Hogenkamp, who departed this life one year ago, May 16, 1930:
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear mother, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
She would be called so far away.
FRED AND ELMER.

MOESER—In memory of our dear daughter, Ruth, who died May 17, 1930:
We saw you suffer and heard you sigh,
Could do nothing but sit and cry;
We saw you sinking hour by hour,
Yet we did all within our power;
But now you are resting, no more pain;
We'll bear our sorrow till we meet again.
Sadly missed by Mother, Stepfather, Brothers and Grandmothers.

HOUSER—In memory of William Houser, who departed this life one year ago, May 15, 1930.
A wonderful husband, man and aid,
One who was better God never made,
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million, that, father, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right;
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew.
Our wonderful father and husband was you.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHLDREN.

KETTERER—In loving memory of our dear mother, Caroline Ketterer (nee Hartmann), died May 14, 1930.
We are thinking of you today, dear mother,
Thinking of the past;
Picturing you in memory just as we saw you last;
You left behind some broken hearts that loved you sincerely,
That never did or never will forget you, mother dear.
Sadly missed by

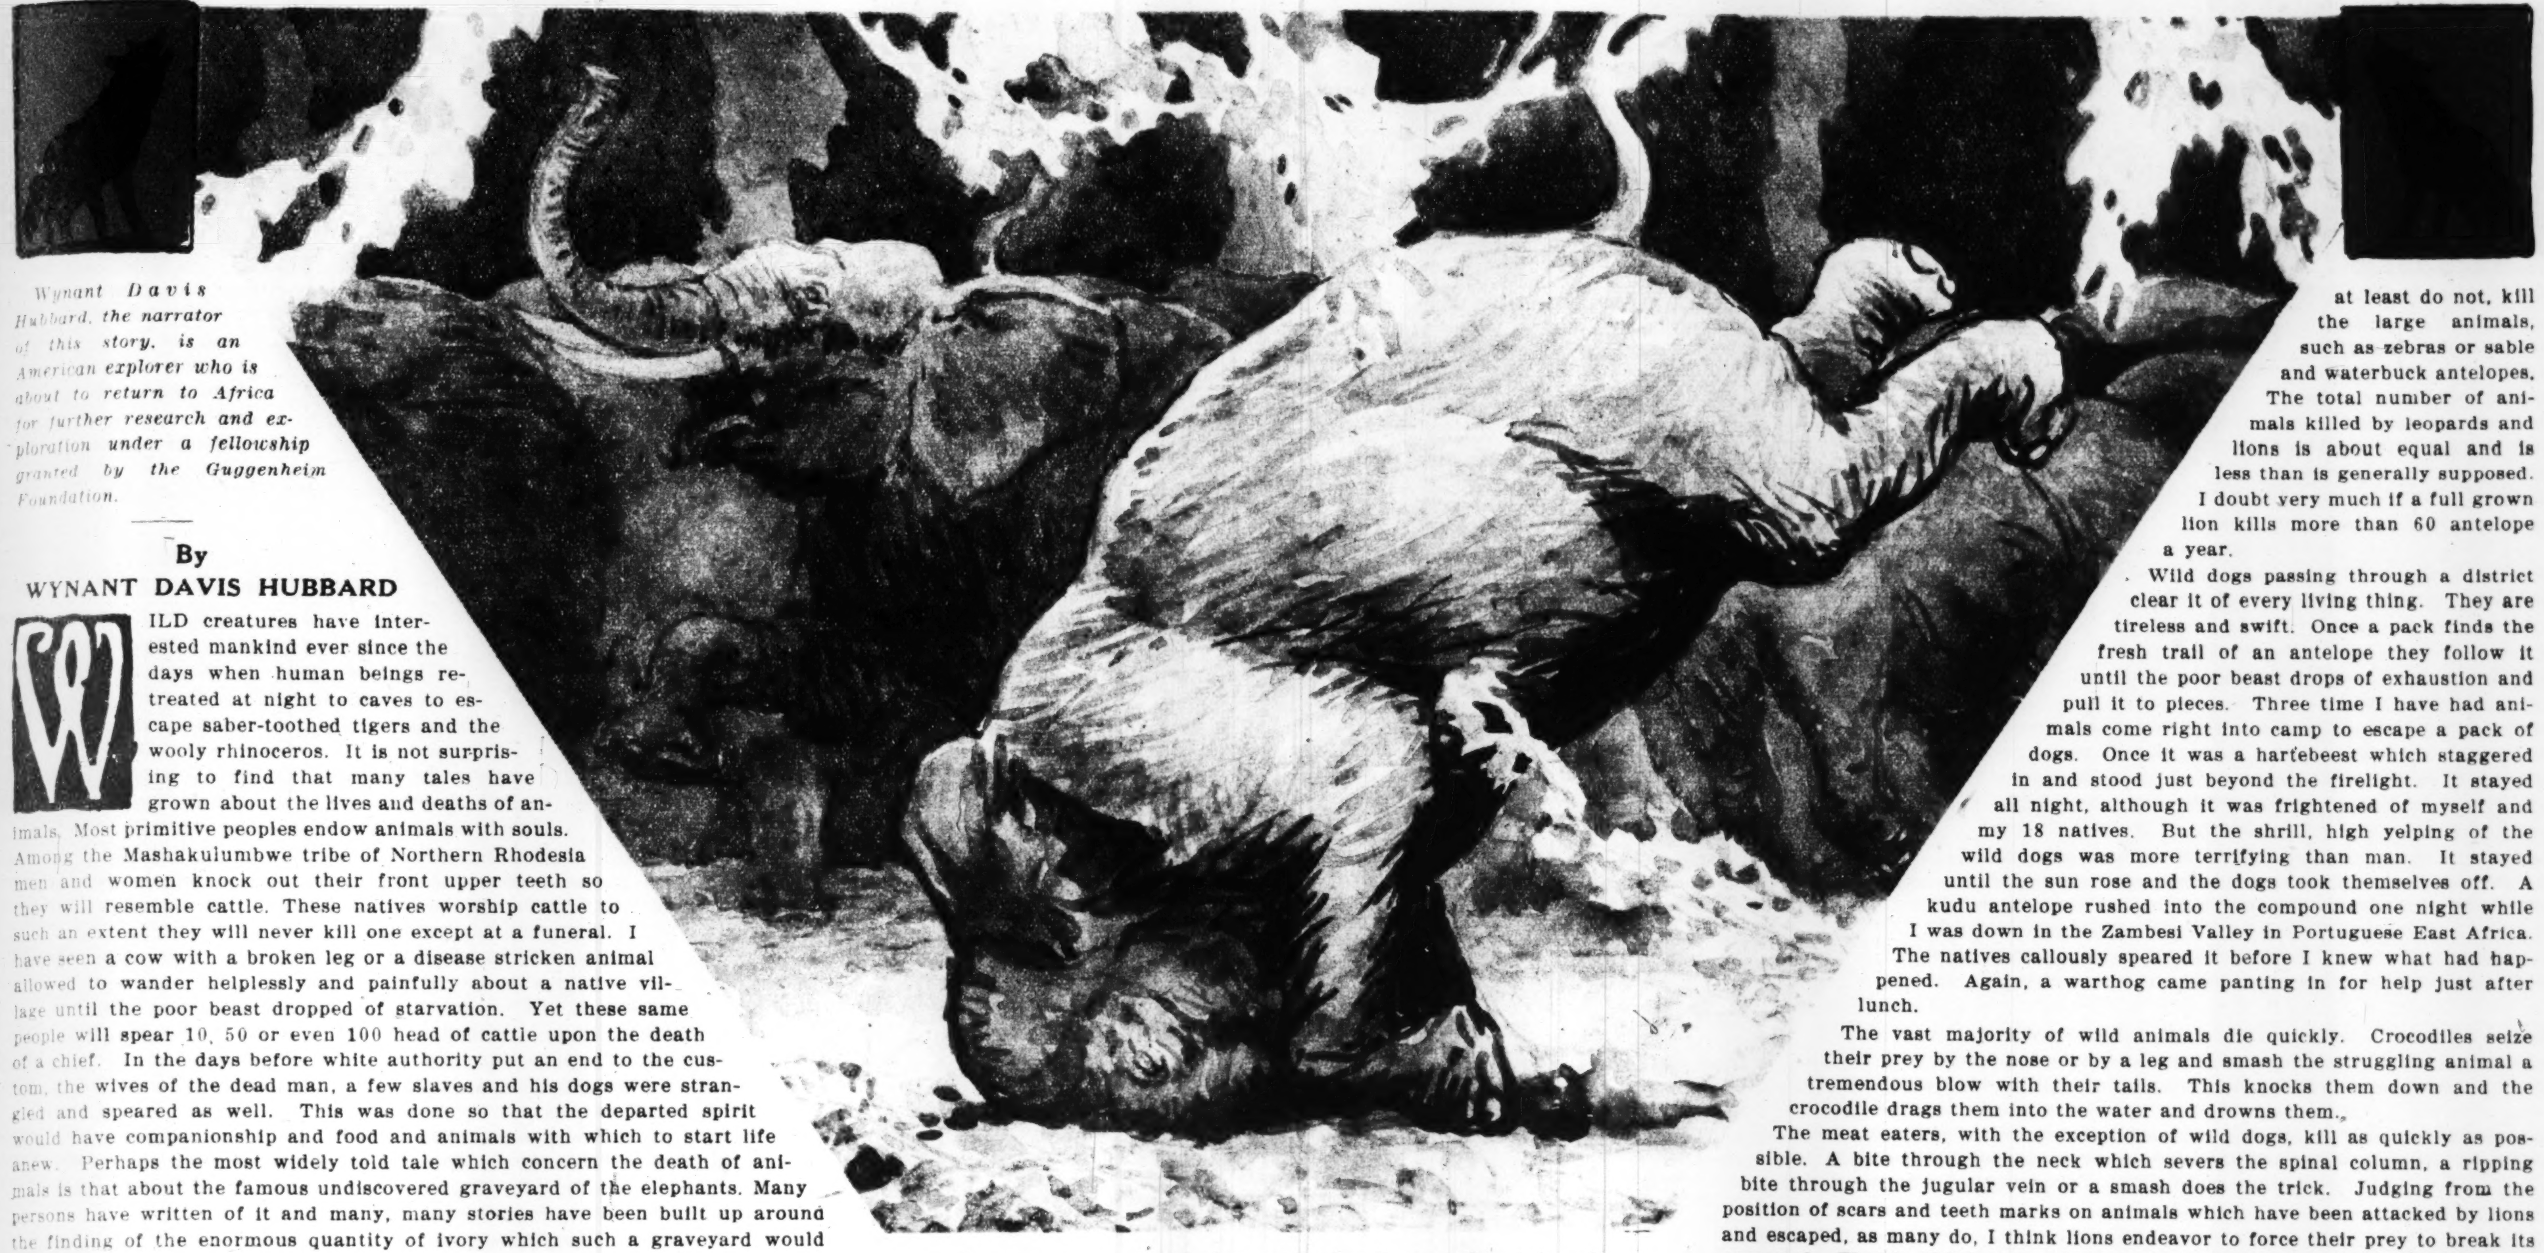
"Man and the Crocodile Are the Biggest Jungle Killers"



"I once saw a running elephant put its foot in an ant-bear hole and go flying down on its face."

Wynant Davis Hubbard, the narrator of this story, is an American explorer who is about to return to Africa for further research and exploration under a fellowship granted by the Guggenheim Foundation.

Wynant Davis Hubbard Tells From First-Hand Experience the Dramatic Accidents of Veld and Forest and How Wild Animals Die.

By WYNANT DAVIS HUBBARD

WILD creatures have interested mankind ever since the days when human beings retreated at night to caves to escape saber-toothed tigers and the wooly rhinoceros. It is not surprising to find that many tales have grown about the lives and deaths of animals. Most primitive peoples endow animals with souls. Among the Mashakulumbwe tribe of Northern Rhodesia men and women knock out their front upper teeth so they will resemble cattle. These natives worship cattle to such an extent they will never kill one except at a funeral. I have seen a cow with a broken leg or a disease stricken animal allowed to wander helplessly and painfully about a native village until the poor beast dropped of starvation. Yet these same people will spear 10, 50 or even 100 head of cattle upon the death of a chief. In the days before white authority put an end to the custom, the wives of the dead man, a few slaves and his dogs were strangled and speared as well. This was done so that the departed spirit would have companionship and food and animals with which to start life anew. Perhaps the most widely told tale which concern the death of animals is that about the famous undiscovered graveyard of the elephants. Many persons have written of it and many, many stories have been built up around the finding of the enormous quantity of ivory which such a graveyard would contain.

The tale is told of India and Siam as well as Africa. Elephants, when they reach old age and feel themselves growing weak and unable to forage successfully, go away. Alone they travel over miles of veld, through the jungles and between the hills, until at last they find the spot to which all elephants go to die. It is a spot unknown to any man, although every elephant eventually heads for it unerringly.

At times I have listened to people who insisted that the existence of such a graveyard is possible. Many of us would like to believe the story. Life would be much nicer if only a few such tales were true. But it is impossible. Elephants, like every other wild creature, die where they fall, whether death comes from old age, accident, disease or a hunter's rifle bullet. Where this story of the elephants' graveyard originated I do not know. It is very old. Probably it is founded on the evening tale of a father to his inquisitive son. For it is quite true that the discovery of a dead elephant is seldom talked about, especially if it is a native who found the carcass. The reason given is that the veld maintains the most perfect scavenging system known.

An elephant crashes over dead. Probably in some rather inaccessible spot, where it has withdrawn because of its helplessness or because of some hurt. From sunrise to sunset vultures, eagles and hawks sail the sky. At times they are so high the human eye can scarcely distinguish them. These great birds keep watch over the veld beneath. The fall of the elephant would not escape their keen vision. Down they sail. One following another. Those which have not seen the elephant see the quick drop and gathering of those birds which have, and so they follow.

NEITHER a vulture's hooked beak nor its talons are powerful enough to cut into an elephant's hide. So the great birds stand on the huge beast and flop and quarrel about it until darkness settles, when they go to roost in nearby trees.

During the night ants, jackals, hyenas, possibly a lion or a leopard, and most certainly decomposition, get in their work. When the sun floods up and the birds return, openings have been made in the skin. All day they squabble and fight. Others come. At night many animals attack the carcass, and it is not long before only the largest bones are left and these may be dragged and scattered over quite an area.

I doubt very much if one such dead animal in a hundred escapes the attentions of the natives. They keep a keen watch on the vultures. So soon as they see them wheeling over and settling upon a certain spot they hasten there and, driving off the scavengers, either appropriate the find for themselves or take what is of value. In the case of a dead elephant this, of course, would be the ivory.

In many countries the Government claims a portion of all found ivory. So dead elephants are seldom reported and no native will admit to having found one. Which has helped lend credence to the story of the graveyard of the elephants.

The enormous difference between the veld at night and in the daytime must be experienced to be appreciated. Driving across the country with a motor car will show some of the life. The ideal way is to take a large electric searchlight and walk out on the veld between 10 and midnight.

Spring hares, which jump like kangaroos, will show up everywhere, in places which in daylight were bare and empty. Eyes, glowing, fading, eyes in pair, will appear and disappear in every direction. There will be jackals and servals, genets, mongooses, antelope, bush cats, perhaps a leopard, lion or cheetah, wild dogs and hyenas, where in daylight it would be difficult to find any life at all save possibly a warthog or a flock of guinea fowl.

With such a wealth of life about at night it is only natural that most of the hunting by predatory animals should take place at this time. Wild dogs, which run in large packs like wolves, are the only carnivorous animals which do not seem to care whether it is the moon or the sun which shines. Lions sometimes hunt in daylight. In localities where man only penetrates occasionally there is more daytime hunting than close to populated areas. But it is not so much fear of man which determines the time of the hunt as the animals themselves. Dew falls early in the evening. The grass is sweeter and fresher. The sun has gone and the darkness is cool and refreshing. So the grass eaters graze mainly at night. Lions follow and hunt them because it is far easier to catch and kill a moving feeding animal than one lying down and on the alert.

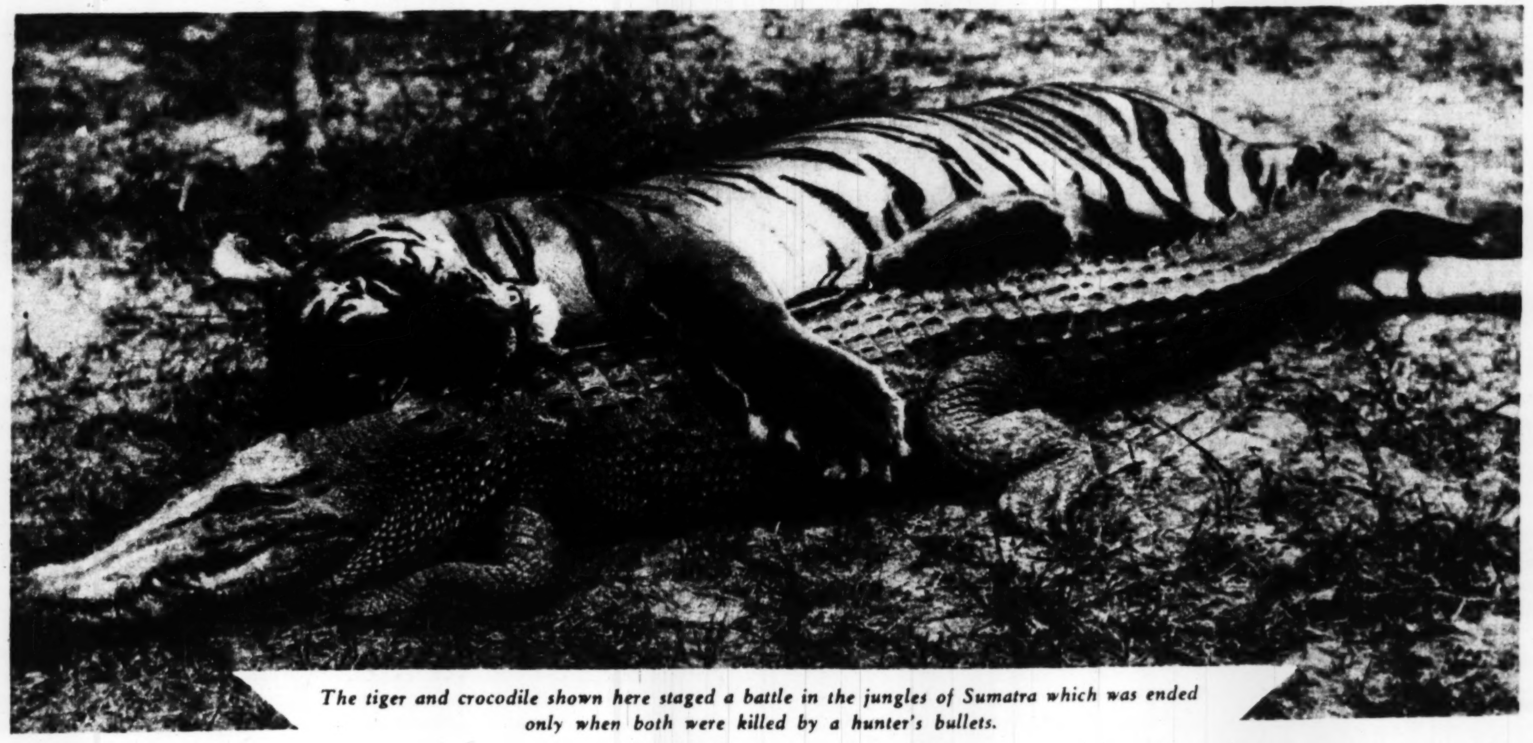
Men probably kill the most wild animals. I say probably, because the crocodiles run men a very close second. Just how to rate the killers of the veld is something of a problem. Leopards often display utter savagery and kill for the lust of killing. I have never heard of a lion which killed for any reason except food or defense. Lions are three or four times as large as leopards and consequently require more food. On the other hand leopards cannot, or at least do not, kill the large animals, such as zebras or sable and waterbuck antelopes. The total number of animals killed by leopards and lions is about equal and is less than is generally supposed. I doubt very much if a full grown lion kills more than 60 antelope a year.

Wild dogs passing through a district clear it of every living thing. They are tireless and swift. Once a pack finds the fresh trail of an antelope they follow it until the poor beast drops of exhaustion and pull it to pieces. Three time I have had animals come right into camp to escape a pack of dogs. Once it was a hartebeest which staggered in and stood just beyond the firelight. It stayed all night, although it was frightened of myself and my 18 natives. But the shrill, high yelping of the wild dogs was more terrifying than man. It stayed until the sun rose and the dogs took themselves off. A kudu antelope rushed into the compound one night while I was down in the Zambesi Valley in Portuguese East Africa. The natives callously speared it before I knew what had happened. Again, a warthog came panting in for help just after lunch.

The vast majority of wild animals die quickly. Crocodiles seize their prey by the nose or by a leg and smash the struggling animal a tremendous blow with their tails. This knocks them down and the crocodile drags them into the water and drowns them.

The meat eaters, with the exception of wild dogs, kill as quickly as possible. A bite through the neck which severs the spinal column, a ripping bite through the jugular vein or a smash does the trick. Judging from the position of scars and teeth marks on animals which have been attacked by lions and escaped, as many do, I think lions endeavor to force their prey to break its own neck. That is, if it is a very large animal, such as an eland antelope, which will weigh up to 2000 pounds. A lion leaps upon the shoulders of an eland and bites into the neck. One paw goes over and graps the nose. The lion's hindquarters drag or skip along the ground. Bearing down with all its weight the lion drives its claws into the nose of the antelope and pulls its head sidewise, hoping that with its neck twisted and the great weight it will trip and fall, breaking its neck. An eland's neck is so thick and strong that it can resist the lion's pulling. To rid itself of its attacker it must smash backwards with its horns and literally beat the lion off. Nearly every large eland I have shot has carried the marks of a lion's attack.

Accidents and disease do not take a heavy toll excepting at great intervals. Around 1890 a disease called rinderpest swept through Central Africa and decimated the herds of game, especially the buffalo. Old hairless bulls and cows which are still found once in a while are known as rinderpest buffalo, the supposition being that they are examples of the few which survived that plague.



The tiger and crocodile shown here staged a battle in the jungles of Sumatra which was ended only when both were killed by a hunter's bullets.

I ONCE saw a running elephant put its foot in an ant-bear hole and go flying down on its face with a tremendous crash. It extricated itself at once and disappeared with the rest of the herd, but I bet it had a sore shoulder for days afterward. Such an accident might well result in a broken leg, but animals are so careful and so agile that they escape many injuries.

One night in Northern Rhodesia two hunters who had captured a calf elephant during the day were attacked during the night by the returning herd. The men managed to reach a steep ant hill, but all night long the infuriated herd tore up the camp, smashed shelters and trees in their search for the missing youngster and the hated hunters.

Sometime during that fearful racket a piercing scream burst forth, followed by a rending crash. The men, crouched tense and silent, thought two elephants had collided. In the morning when they surveyed the wreckage they found a tusk lying at the base of a tree. It was bloody but unbroken and had evidently been drawn entire from the elephant's head. Looking up at the tree they saw a long split. Evidently the elephant, dashing about in the blackness, had smashed against the tree and driven its tusk into it so deeply that when it backed away the tusk had been pulled from its head. No wonder it had screamed.

An accident such as this, however, could not happen often and, painful though it undoubtedly was, it would not result in death unless the wound became badly infected.

The most tragic creatures of the veld are not the grass eaters, the little animals nor the birds, but the killers who have grown too old to hunt. Old lions, old leopards, old cheetahs must find dying a long and unhappy process. As their teeth decay and fall, as their strength wanes, these old meat eaters go down the scale until they are too weak to pounce on and kill anything bigger than mice and other small rodents. If they could kill porcupines without getting stuck full of quills they might find some food for a time. But the supply of porcupines is limited, and

When a Rembrandt Is Not a Rembrandt and Why

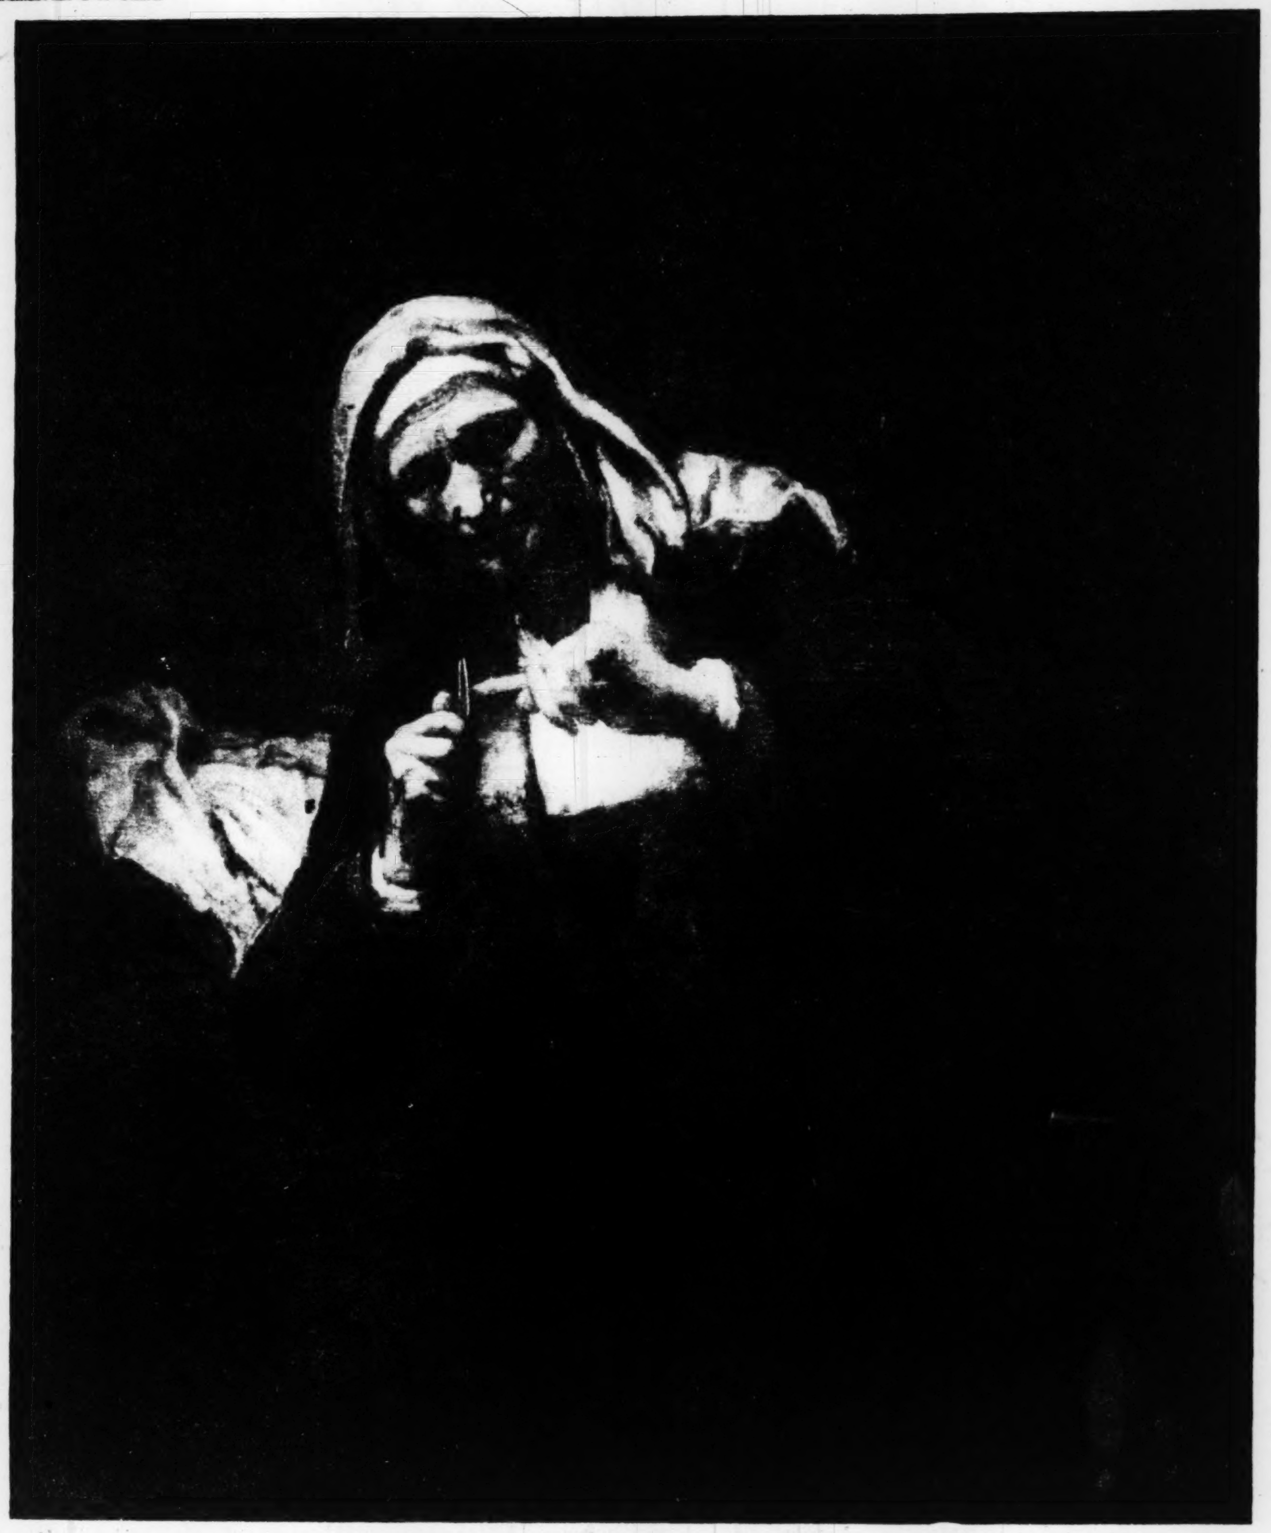
Microphotograph of section of Rembrandt's "A Woman Bathing."



"Old Woman Cutting Her Nails," the supposed Rembrandt painting in the Metropolitan Museum, which Dr. Toch attributes to Nicolaes Maes.

Dr. Maximilian Toch, Expert Microscopist, Gives Reasons for His Belief That Only One Out of Thirty Paintings Credited to the Dutch Master in the Metropolitan Museum Could Possibly Be Genuine.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

QUESTION: When is a Rembrandt not a Rembrandt?

Answer: When it is examined under the microscope.

At least that is the conclusion that must be drawn from Dr. Maximilian Toch's recent speech before the New York Microscopical Society, in which he stated that only one of the 30 paintings in the Metropolitan Museum attributed to Rembrandt is really the work of the great Dutch master. And he isn't even sure about that one.

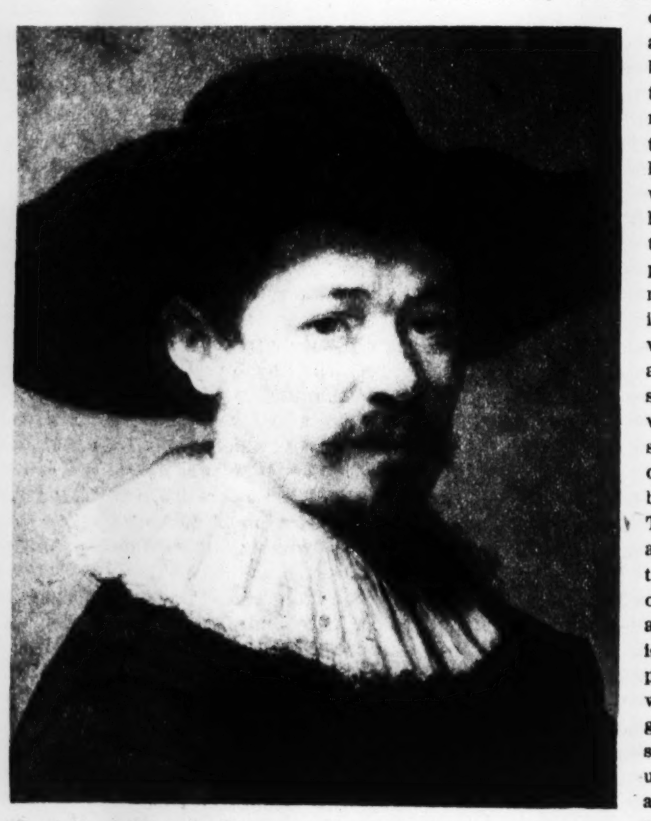
Dr. Toch is Professor of Chemistry of Artistic Paintings at the National Academy of Design. He's a vice president of Toch Brothers, large-scale paint and varnish manufacturers. He holds several university degrees in chemistry and has written three books on the chemistry of paint, the most recent of which, "Paints, Painting and Restoration," is now on the press. He is an amateur painter, a skilled scientific photographer and an expert microscopist. These interests combine to make him a competent scientific authority on painting, and he is probably the foremost American exponent of the newly developed technique of microphotography of paintings, which is the science of studying paintings by means of photographs made through a microscopic lens. His speech before the Microscopical Society wasn't primarily directed against the authenticity of the Metropolitan's Rembrandts, but was used rather as an illustration of the value of microscopic photography in determining authenticity.

THE statement Dr. Toch actually made was that in his opinion, if microphotographic examination was made of the Metropolitan's Rembrandts, the only one that would probably be revealed to be genuine is "Portrait of Herman Doormer—The Gilder," in the recently acquired Havemeyer collection. Since Dr. Toch has never been, permitted, and probably never will be, to make such tests, his statement about the paintings at the Metropolitan might at first be regarded as unwarranted. There are, however, many facts which tend to indicate that Dr. Toch's statement probably contains more soundness than sound. For one thing, he has examined the Rembrandts at the museum very carefully and has found practically no evidence there of the brush stroke characteristic of genuine Rembrandts. In the second place, the charge he makes is virtually the same made eight years ago by John Van Dyke, then Professor of Art and Archeology at Rutgers University, who aroused a storm in art circles by saying that not one of the 15 Rembrandts then in the museum was genuine, but that they were for the most part the work of Rembrandt pupils and followers. And in the third place, Dr. Toch is willing to give the Metropolitan officials an opportunity to disprove his statement by taking microphotographs of their paintings and comparing them with similar photographs of Rembrandts of established authenticity.

"In saying that all but one of the paintings owned by the Metropolitan Museum attributed to Rembrandt were not his work, I did not intend to detract from their esthetic qualities," says Dr. Toch. "I don't condemn them as pictures. All but a few of them I think are beautiful. They are fine works of art and worthy of a place in any gallery. But I am convinced that they are not by Rembrandt."

The best way to determine the genuineness of a Rembrandt, says he, is by the brush stroke.

"A certain number of his paintings are definitely known to be by him. We have unquestionable historical records of his having painted them. Among such paintings are 'The Night Watch,' both versions of 'The Anatomy Lesson' and the 'Portrait of Jan Six.' These paintings reveal the genuine and peculiar Rembrandt brush stroke, a diagonal and up-and-down sort of criss-cross stroke. Several of his pupils, notably Nicolaes Maes, were occasionally able to approximate it but it remains the unique hallmark of the master. That peculiar brush stroke was partly due to his handling of the brush and partly to his own method of mixing his paints, which gave them a certain consistency, both of which have resulted in the peculiar Rembrandt 'impasto.' Thus, if there is any doubt about the authenticity of a Rembrandt, all we have to do is compare the photograph of it with a photograph of a small section of a genuine painting, and the likeness of the brush strokes tells the story. An ordinary enlarged photograph will not do, because that simply spreads thinner what is on the photographic plate. We must make a microphotograph, which magnifies the surface before it is registered on the plate. That also excludes considerations of color and allows concentration on the stroke. With a man whose brush stroke is as individual and emphatic as Rembrandt's that is an infallible method. I have not been permitted to make such photographs of the Rembrandts in the Metropolitan Museum, but I have studied their brush strokes by means of a magnifying glass. The only one of the group that seems to have the genuine strokes is 'The Gilder,' and the only part of that one that has the characteristic brush stroke is the collar. That inclines me to the belief that the picture was probably painted by one of his pupils in Rembrandt's workshop, and that the master probably touched up or repainted the collar before letting it go out of his shop."



"Portrait of Herman Doormer—the Gilder," which, Dr. Toch says, is a genuine Rembrandt, in part, at any rate. The collar is certainly by Rembrandt, he contends.

Dr. Maximilian Toch.

Dr. Toch readily admits that his researches have tended merely to confirm those of Professor Van Dyke, the first to cast doubt on the genuineness not only of the Metropolitan Rembrandts, but on most of the paintings attributed to him. Of the 700 to 1000 paintings ascribed to Rembrandt, Van Dyke claimed that probably 40 were actually his work, while Dr. Toch is inclined to number the genuine paintings by the master at about 31 or 32.

Not one of the 15 Rembrandts in the Metropolitan, said Van Dyke in 1923, is by him. Several of them might be called "workshop" pictures, or "near Rembrandts," but the rest of them are by pupils of his school. Not only do Dr. Toch and Professor Van Dyke agree in that opinion, but they agree in their reassignment of many of the supposed Rembrandts to specific pupils. For instance, they say, "The Old Woman Cutting Her Nails," one of the museum's most admired Rembrandts, is the work of Nicolaes, Maes; "Pilate Washing His Hands" and "Oriental" are by Solomon Koninck; "Young Dutch Woman" is by Jacob Backer, and "Hendreckje Stoffels" is by Barnaert Fabritius, and so on down the line.

"To be sure," says Dr. Toch, "museum directors have their own sufficient reasons for retaining the present attributions. The pictures were given to the museum by persons who believed they were buying Rembrandts. To lessen the value of these gifts by writing them down as the work of Rembrandt pupils might mean losing future donations. And the paintings are excellent, even though Rembrandt didn't paint them. But, as Professor Van Dyke had the courage to say, the art public should not be misled by considerations that close the mouths of gallery directors. It's not fair to Rembrandt to hold him responsible for the products, good, bad or indifferent, of his pupils, and it's not fair to the pupils, many of them excellent painters, that their best work should be taken from them and given to Rembrandt."

As Toch and Van Dyke both point out, there are many good reasons for crediting Rembrandt with the work of his pupils. Rembrandt conducted a workshop where many artists came to study painting in much the same fashion as a man in those days apprenticed himself to a master craftsman to learn a trade. One of the artist's friends has left a record to the effect that each pupil paid the master 100 florins annually, "exclusive of his profits from their pictures and engravings." In other words, Rembrandt had the right to sell the work they did under him, just as a master cobbler might sell a pair of shoes made by his apprentice. And in many such instances Rembrandt signed his name to the work, not to get credit for having painted it, but as a sort of trade mark, a certification that the work actually came from his shop and was a sound piece of painting. That was the custom. Thus many of the paintings may have a genuine Rembrandt signature and still not be his work. When Rembrandt's work began to fetch high prices unscrupulous dealers having in their possession works known to be done by Rembrandt's pupils, and in many instances bearing a similarity to the master's paintings, would scratch out the name of the real artist and sign Rembrandt's name to the canvas. These false signatures, however, can be proved by microscopic examination, and Dr. Toch advises that this method should always be used.

This is not the first time in art history that much of the work of great masters has been finally shown to be that of their pupils. It is only within the past 60 years, due to the researches of Cavalcaselle, Morelli, Berenson and Venturi, that the work of Leonardo, Giorgione, Bellini and Titan has been distinguished from that of the pupils who had previously been denied their artistic identity. Of the hundred canvasses or more once attributed to Giorgione, today only a dozen are known to be his work and the others the work of his pupils—Cariani, Romanino and Torbido.

RUBENS in 1638 sent to the King of Spain at Madrid a large consignment of pictures constituting what is known as the "Metamorphosis Series." Today they are all catalogued as the work of Rubens. Nevertheless, in his memorandum accompanying the pictures, Rubens himself occasionally noted that the pictures were "done by the best of my pupils," or, in another instance, that a canvas or two was "touched by my own hand." There was no pretence that he did more than make sketches from which his pupils worked up the pictures.

With such examples before him Van Dyke began to make a thorough study of the Rembrandt paintings. He observed that there were 70 or more pupils and followers of Rembrandt who worked under him, and at different times produced pictures in his general style or manner. By diligent compilation from catalogues, lexicons and biographies Van Dyke could only find a record of less than 1000 paintings extant by these 70 pupils. On the other hand, Rembrandt has been credited with about the same number of extant paintings. In other words, there were more pictures listed by Rembrandt alone than by his 70 followers put together. This led Van Dyke to the rather obvious conclusion that the work of the pupils had in many instances been credited to the master.

Now, some of Rembrandt's pupils developed into men of reputation, with marked individual style. When a painter develops a marked personal style it becomes comparatively difficult to attribute his work to another. On the other hand many of Rembrandt's pupils hardly progressed beyond a superficial sort of imitation of their teacher. Sure enough, by listing the known works of Rembrandt's pupils official who kept his campaign promises. Presnell came into office a little more than a year ago in a special election, succeeding Sheriff William London, who was shot and killed by an insane farmer in the fall of 1929. Until he took office he was wholly inexperienced in the business of picking up and following criminal trails. He was in no sense a detective or man hunter. For eight years his occupation had been that of a baker in Desloge. And for 16 years before that he had been a lead miner. But once in office, Sheriff Presnell left off being a baker and lead miner and became a man hunter. How successful he was in this transition is indicated by the results in the Doss case.

St. Francois County has always had rather more than one rural county's share of lawlessness and spectacular crime. That has been due largely to the fact that the county embraces Missouri's famous lead belt, the State's most active mining district. Because of the concentration of population and the tendency of a mining population to be a drifting one, mining communities usually are somewhat less law abiding than other industrial districts, and this is true of the lead belt, just as it is of Williamson County, Illinois, or the West Virginia coal fields. Indeed, they used to call St. Francois County "Little Chicago," because of the free-handed manner in which bootleggers, whisky runners and hi-jackers operated. But mining communities usually have had their hard men on the side of the law, too. Deadwood, South Dakota, had Wild Bill Hickok. Tombstone had Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday. The Missouri lead belt had Sam Doss.

Those who knew Sam Doss say he was the hardest man, honest or crooked, who ever came to St. Francois County. He was 62 when he was killed and for the last 20 years of his life he had been a peace officer and a terror to bad men throughout the district. Six feet tall, with broad shoulders, hard features and with a .45-caliber revolver strapped to his belt, he looked the part of a formidable customer and lived up to his appearance.

Doss was a reformed convict to begin with. Back in 1894, when he was a young man, he got mixed up in a fake footrace swindle at a county fair at Murphysboro, Illinois. In this swindle, widely used in those days, the promoters organized a footrace, whooped up the betting and then disappeared with the stakes. Doss fled with the stakes on one of these occasions and wasn't caught until he had reached Missouri. He was arrested, tried and given a five-year sentence.

Pardoned after serving three years of it, Doss moved to Caldwell, Missouri, in the lead belt, near Desloge. There he ran a saloon and gambling hall. Then, in middle age, he married a girl of good family, joined the Methodist Church, gave over saloon keeping fetch high prices unscrupulous dealers having in their possession works known to be done by Rembrandt's pupils, and in many instances bearing a similarity to the master's paintings, would scratch out the name of the real artist and sign Rembrandt's name to the canvas. These false signatures, however, can be proved by microscopic examination, and Dr. Toch advises that this method should always be used.

This is not the first time in art history that much of the work of great masters has been finally shown to be that of their pupils. It is only within the past 60 years, due to the researches of Cavalcaselle, Morelli, Berenson and Venturi, that the work of Leonardo, Giorgione, Bellini and Titan has been distinguished from that of the pupils who had previously been denied their artistic identity. Of the hundred canvasses or more once attributed to Giorgione, today only a dozen are known to be his work and the others the work of his pupils—Cariani, Romanino and Torbido.

RUBENS in 1638 sent to the King of Spain at Madrid a large consignment of pictures constituting what is known as the "Metamorphosis Series." Today they are all catalogued as the work of Rubens. Nevertheless, in his memorandum accompanying the pictures, Rubens himself occasionally noted that the pictures were "done by the best of my pupils," or, in another instance, that a canvas or two was "touched by my own hand." There was no pretence that he did more than make sketches from which his pupils worked up the pictures.

With such examples before him Van Dyke began to make a thorough study of the Rembrandt paintings. He observed that there were 70 or more pupils and followers of Rembrandt who worked under him, and at different times produced pictures in his general style or manner. By diligent compilation from catalogues, lexicons and biographies Van Dyke could only find a record of less than 1000 paintings extant by these 70 pupils. On the other hand, Rembrandt has been credited with about the same number of extant paintings. In other words, there were more pictures listed by Rembrandt alone than by his 70 followers put together. This led Van Dyke to the rather obvious conclusion that the work of the pupils had in many instances been credited to the master.

Now, some of Rembrandt's pupils developed into men of reputation, with marked individual style. When a painter develops a marked personal style it becomes comparatively difficult to attribute his work to another. On the other hand many of Rembrandt's pupils hardly progressed beyond a superficial sort of imitation of their teacher. Sure enough, by listing the known works of Rembrandt's pupils

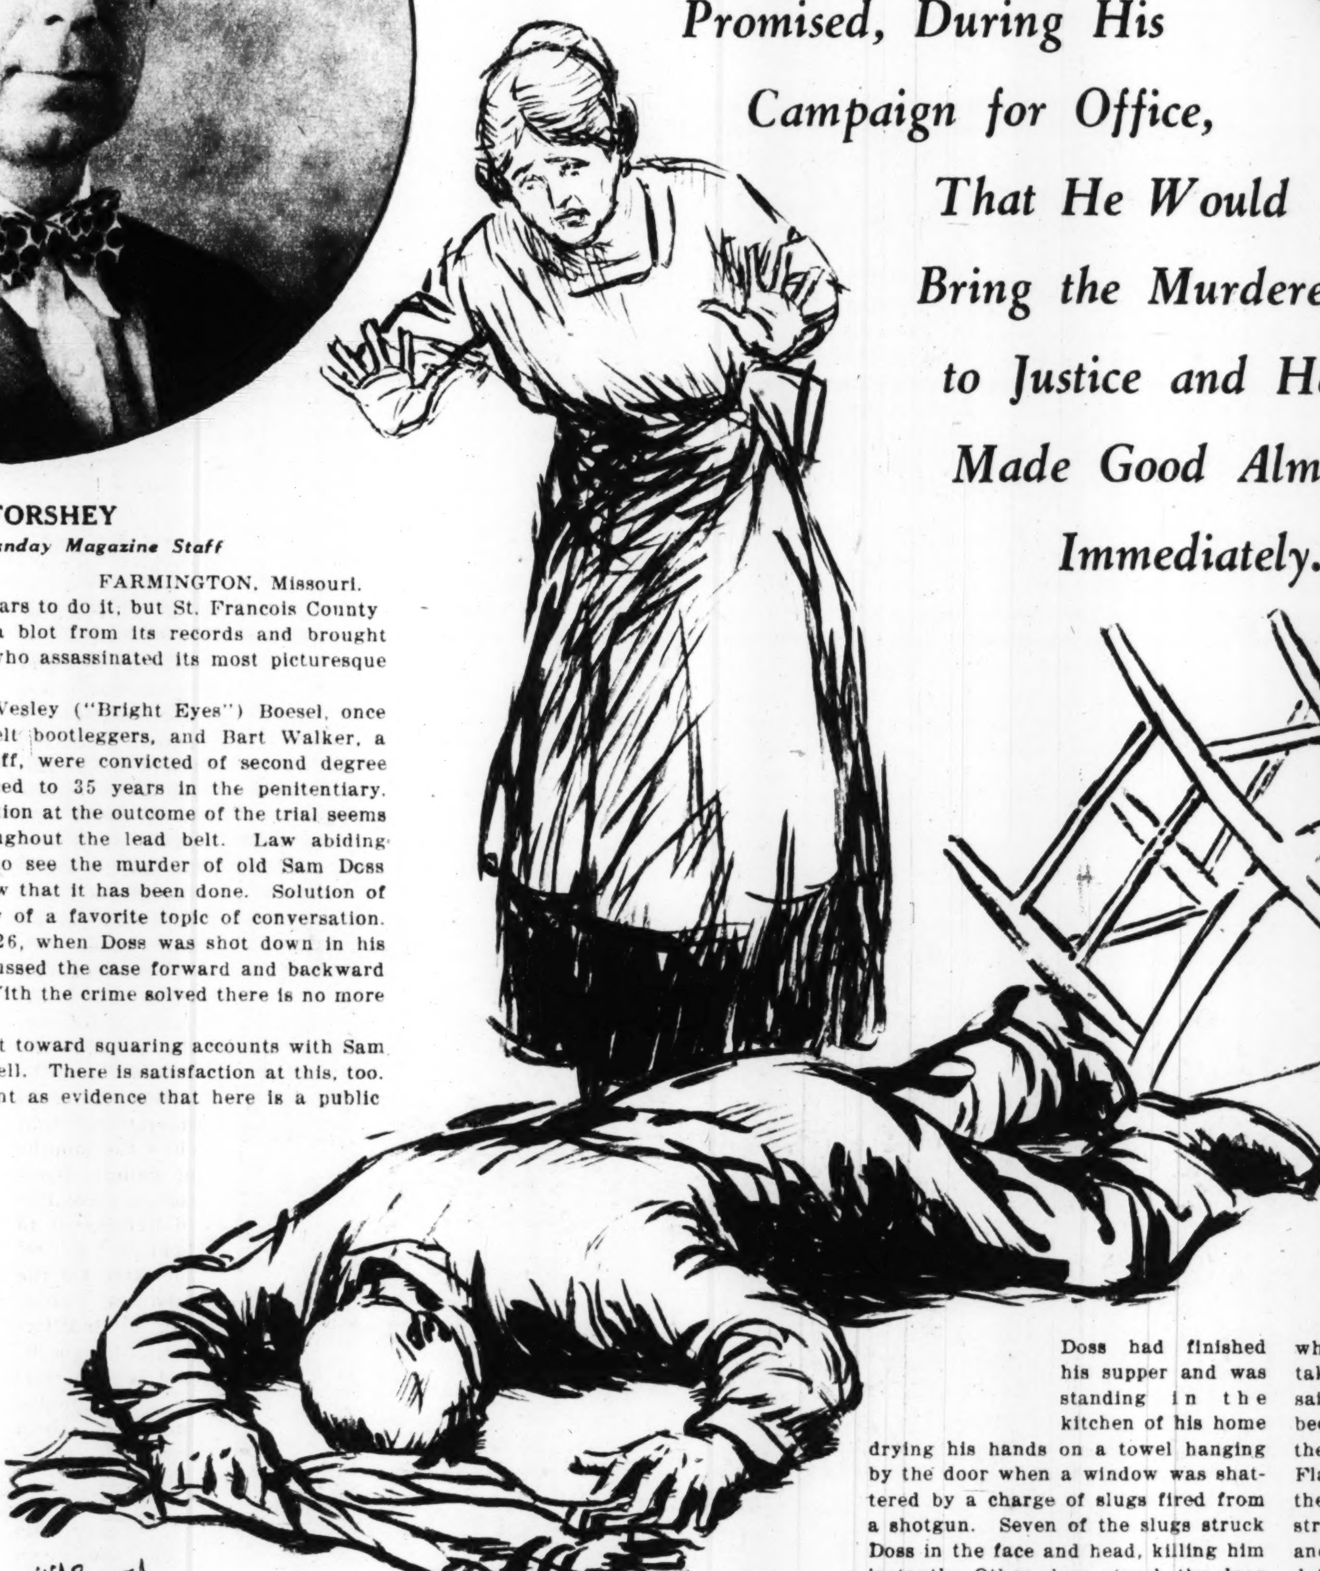
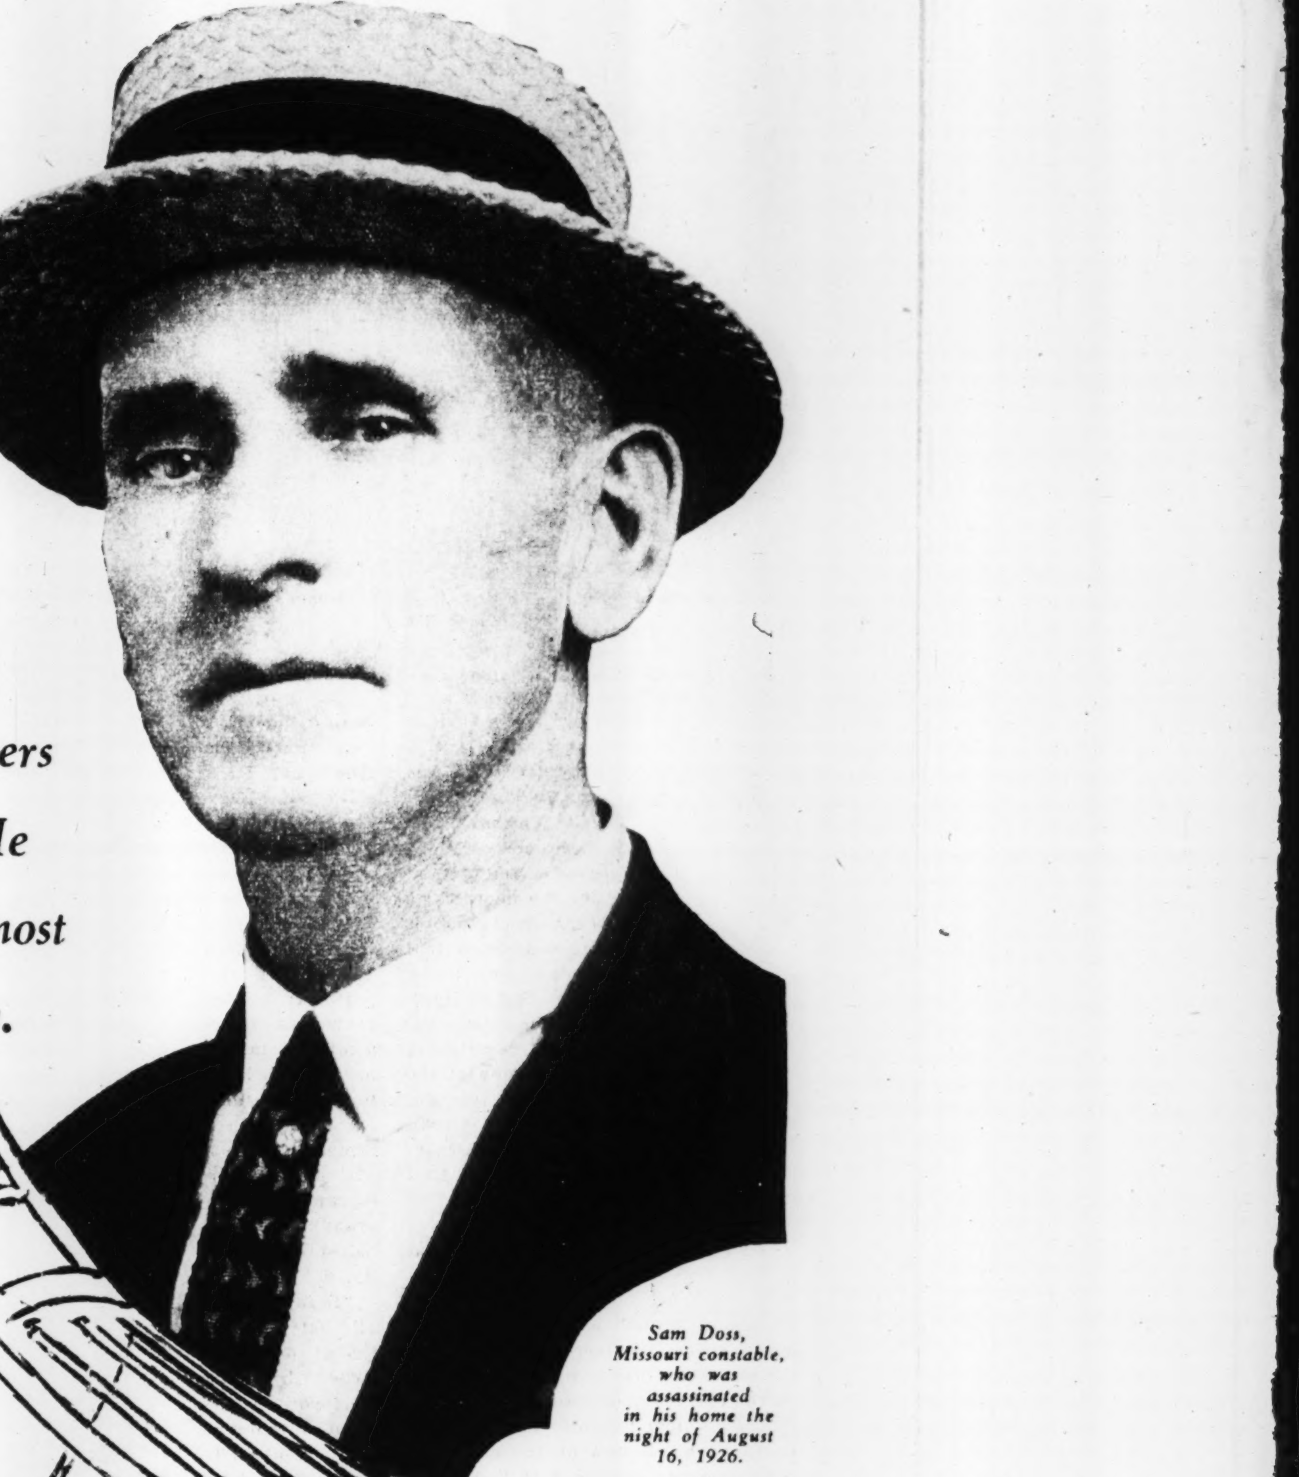
Sam Doss, St. Francois County's Most Picturesque Citizen, Avenged at Last

Sheriff Roy E. Presnell Promised, During His Campaign for Office, That He Would Bring the Murderers to Justice and He Made Good Almost Immediately.

Sheriff Roy E. Presnell.





Sam Doss, Missouri constable, who was assassinated in his home the night of August 16, 1926.

By GUY FORSHEY

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

FARMINGTON, Missouri.

IT HAS taken five years to do it, but St. Francois County has at last erased a blot from its records and brought to justice the men who assassinated its most picturesque citizen.

A few days ago Wesley ("Bright Eyes") Boesel, once king of the lead belt bootleggers, and Bart Walker, a former deputy sheriff, were convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to 35 years in the penitentiary. A feeling of satisfaction at the outcome of the trial seems to be general throughout the lead belt. Law abiding people have wanted for a long time to see the murder of old Sam Doss avenged. There is just one trouble now that it has been done. Solution of the mystery has robbed the community of a favorite topic of conversation. Ever since the night of August 16, 1926, when Doss was shot down in his home in Desloge, the lead belt has discussed the case forward and backward and speculated as to who killed him. With the crime solved there is no more speculating to do.

The man credited with doing the most toward squaring accounts with Sam Doss' murderers is Sheriff Roy E. Presnell. There is satisfaction at this, too. Citizens hereabouts view his achievement as evidence that here is a public official who kept his campaign promises. Presnell came into office a little more than a year ago in a special election, succeeding Sheriff William London, who was shot and killed by an insane farmer in the fall of 1929. Until he took office he was wholly inexperienced in the business of picking up and following criminal trails. He was in no sense a detective or man hunter. For eight years his occupation had been that of a baker in Desloge. And for 16 years before that he had been a lead miner. But once in office, Sheriff Presnell left off being a baker and lead miner and became a man hunter. How successful he was in this transition is indicated by the results in the Doss case.

St. Francois County has always had rather more than one rural county's share of lawlessness and spectacular crime. That has been due largely to the fact that the county embraces Missouri's famous lead belt, the State's most active mining district. Because of the concentration of population and the tendency of a mining population to be a drifting one, mining communities usually are somewhat less law abiding than other industrial districts, and this is true of the lead belt, just as it is of Williamson County, Illinois, or the West Virginia coal fields. Indeed, they used to call St. Francois County "Little Chicago," because of the free-handed manner in which bootleggers, whisky runners and hi-jackers operated. But mining communities usually have had their hard men on the side of the law, too. Deadwood, South Dakota, had Wild Bill Hickok. Tombstone had Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday. The Missouri lead belt had Sam Doss.

Those who knew Sam Doss say he was the hardest man, honest or crooked, who ever came to St. Francois County. He was 62 when he was killed and for the last 20 years of his life he had been a peace officer and a terror to bad men throughout the district. Six feet tall, with broad shoulders, hard features and with a .45-caliber revolver strapped to his belt, he looked the part of a formidable customer and lived up to his appearance.

Doss was a reformed convict to begin with. Back in 1894, when he was a young man, he got mixed up in a fake footrace swindle at a county fair at Murphysboro, Illinois. In this swindle, widely used in those days, the promoters organized a footrace, whooped up the betting and then disappeared with the stakes. Doss fled with the stakes on one of these occasions and wasn't caught until he had reached Missouri. He was arrested, tried and given a five-year sentence.

Pardoned after serving three years of it, Doss moved to Caldwell, Missouri, in the lead belt, near Desloge. There he ran a saloon and gambling hall. Then, in middle age, he married a girl of good family, joined the Methodist Church, gave over saloon keeping and gambling, became an ardent prohibitionist and got a job as a deputy sheriff. For several years he served as a payroll guard for the National Lead Company.

During these years Doss built up a reputation. Stories of his fearlessness traveled far and wide. When peace officers in other parts of the country wanted to arrest a particularly dangerous criminal they often called on Doss. "Send for Sam Doss" because a popular phrase when there was a tough job to be done.

And Doss, it is said, always came. He never killed a man in attempting an arrest, but he came near killing several of them. He had a way of walking boldly up to a bad man and slapping him on the jaw with the side of his revolver. The only man he ever killed, so far as is known, was a disturber who tried to attack him with a knife at a Fourth of July picnic. He was arrested and tried for this, but was acquitted on a plea of self-defense.

IN 1922 Doss was elected constable of Randolph Township on the Democratic ticket by a large majority. In 1924 he ran for Sheriff, but was overwhelmingly defeated. It was said that the Ku Klux Klan opposed him, and Doss became a bitter foe of the Klan. He would stop on the street to denounce the organization to anybody who would listen. There was another factor contributing to his defeat, too. Photographs of him in convict garb were widely circulated throughout the county during his campaign. He swore he would get the man responsible for this, and it was rumored that he had narrowed the list of suspects to four men when he was killed.

After his defeat in the race for Sheriff he went on with his job as payroll guard and in the primary a month before his death he was nominated for constable. During and after this campaign he was more active than he had ever been before in making things disagreeable for bootleggers and moonshiners. The liquor peddling element hated him with a fierce hatred, and among the most savage of his enemies was "Bright Eyes" Boesel.

Prosecuting Attorney Harry O. Smith.

Boesel, at this time, made no secret of the fact that he was king of the lead belt bootleggers. It was generally known that he controlled the distribution and sale of virtually all the illicit liquor in the county. Rival whisky runners were robbed of their cargoes and the liquid loot was then sold to Boesel's bootleggers. It was said a bootlegger wasn't allowed to operate unless he bought his liquor from Boesel. Boesel was the whole prohibition law—until Sam Doss took a hand. When the county officers seemed indifferent, Doss brought down a squad of Federal dry agents from St. Louis and led raids on a scale never before heard of in the district. From the bootlegging raids came mutterings and vague threats that something was going to happen to old Sam Doss if he didn't quit meddling. Then, suddenly, Sam Doss was murdered.

On the night of August 16, 1926, Doss had finished his supper and was standing in the kitchen of his home drying his hands on a towel hanging by the door when a window was shattered by a charge of slugs fired from a shotgun. Seven of the slugs struck Doss in the face and head, killing him instantly. Other slugs struck the door facing, leaving marks that may still be seen. Mrs. Doss points them out to the visitor and shows him just where Sam was standing. She says she was so close at the time that her husband literally fell dead at her feet. She ran out and saw a cloud of white smoke just outside the window, but the assassin had fled into the darkness. She heard his footsteps as he ran away.

Investigation of Doss' murder was hampered for a time by the circumstance that there was such an abundance of suspects. Sheriff Watts said there were at least 50 men in the district who hated Doss savagely enough to kill him. His raiding activities had won him many enemies. From such a field it seemed difficult to pick out the most probable culprit. But suspicion soon began to center heavily upon Deputy Sheriff Walker and "Bright Eyes" Boesel. One man said he had heard the two talking about the liquor raids and had heard one of them—he didn't remember which—say that "somebody ought to take a gun and kill Doss." Mrs. Doss said that she and her husband had been away from home on the day of the murder and, returning through Flat River, had seen Walker eyeing them closely as they passed along the street. Others told of hearing threats and insinuations, too. Nothing very definite, but enough to strengthen suspicion already held.

Bart Walker.

The result of it all was that Walker and Boesel were under arrest within a week after the murder, and Walker was discharged from his job as a deputy. A preliminary hearing was held before a Justice of the Peace and considerable evidence was produced, but it was deemed insufficient to hold them for trial. The theory held by the prosecuting authorities at the time was that Boesel or Walker had actually done the shooting, and this theory fell down in the face of their ironclad alibis. Both had been seen on the streets of Flat River, two miles from Desloge, during the evening, and one citizen recalled that he had been in conversation with them at 10 o'clock, the time the shooting took place. So despite a widespread conviction that Boesel and Walker were responsible for Sam Doss' death, the men were released. Protests and indignation meetings held by the residents of Desloge and Flat River availed nothing. Boesel and Walker went free and nobody else was even arrested. Offers of assistance from the St. Louis Police Department were refused by Sheriff Watts.

THE Doss case went down in the books as an unsolved murder, and this was its status when Roy Presnell became Sheriff in 1929. Presnell, a Democrat, had made the race for Sheriff in the regular campaign of 1928, but had been defeated by London. Upon London's death a year later, however, he ran again and was elected by a substantial majority. One of his campaign promises was that he would do all in his power to clear up the Doss murder, and within a week after his election he was at work on the case.

In the long investigation that followed he worked shoulder to shoulder with this county's young Prosecuting Attorney, Harry O. Smith, and Charles M. Hay, St. Louis attorney, retained by Mrs. Doss. The alliance was so close and their efforts so unified that it is impossible to say now who did the most toward solving the crime and building up the case. Sheriff Presnell modestly asserts that the other men ought to get most of the credit, and they say he ought to have it. But in any event, the co-operation of Roy Presnell, a Democrat, and Harry Smith, a Republican, was gratifying to the voters of both parties. Everybody seemed to regard it as evidence that here were two public officials more concerned with serving the community than with party prestige.

The first move of Presnell and Smith was to bring in for questioning as many persons as possible who had known Doss and who knew Boesel and Walker and the circumstances of their feud with the Desloge payroll guard. This produced abundant evidence as to a motive for the killing. Then there came an unexpected development. Melvin Williams, a former bad man of the lead belt, died following an operation. The officers learned that before his death he had "got religion" and had summoned his brother, Alfred, to his bedside. He had told Alfred something about being involved in the Doss murder and not wanting to die with this "terrible thing" on his conscience. The officers promptly questioned Alfred and got the whole story.

MELVIN and his brother Charles had been hired to kill Sam Doss, according to Melvin's deathbed confession to Alfred. Boesel and Walker had paid them $500 to go to the Doss home and do the shooting while they (Boesel and Walker) were walking about on the streets of Flat River and establishing an alibi for use in case they should be suspected. Alfred said Melvin had urged him to get in touch with Charles and have him confess, too. Charles, it happened was in the Oklahoma Penitentiary at McAlester, serving a 25-year term for bank robbery.

With this information in hand, Presnell and Smith then took a trip to McAlester to see Charles and Charles told virtually the same story. He said he and Melvin drove to the Doss home, where Melvin got out with a shotgun and performed his grisly mission while Charles drove around the block and waited for him. Charles agreed to tell his story on the stand.

The arrest of Boesel and Walker followed soon afterward. Having heard rumors of the investigation, both had left the county, but the relentless Sheriff and Prosecutor were not to be shaken off. Boesel was found living in a backwoods cabin near Centerville and Walker was trailed, with the help of St. Louis postal authorities, to Laramie, Wyoming, where he was found working as a brakeman on a Union Pacific branch line. Both were brought back here and Charles Williams was brought from the Oklahoma Penitentiary to testify against them. The jury was out two hours and brought in its verdict calling for 35 years' imprisonment. As Boesel is 49 years old and Walker 43, this is regarded hereabouts as being "just as good as a life sentence." Anyway, old Sam Doss is avenged. People who knew him say now he will rest easier in his grave.

New Federal Penitentiary Designed to End Riots

Prisoners Will Move From Grade to Grade, Each Giving More Freedom Than the Last, in the Institution Now Being Built at Lewisburg, Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

PICTURE, if you can, a penitentiary with private rooms, unbarred windows and plain wood-paneled doors to which each convict is given his own key; a penitentiary without rows of steel cages opening on galleries, without interior cell blocks where prisoners are filed away at night; a penitentiary where overcrowding and the "herding" of numbered inmates are things of the past, and where instead each prisoner is treated as an individual, studied, "classified," given every chance to improve and shown the way to freedom, and you will have a model prison unlike any in the world today.

But such a penitentiary is now actually being built for the United States Government, near the town of Lewisburg, in Central Pennsylvania. It will be the new Federal penitentiary for the northeastern section of the country, the first penal institution to be built in accordance with a new congressional policy calling for a revolutionary plan of prison construction and operation, the first real step toward the solution of a drastic prison problem.

The Lewisburg penitentiary is being built to put a stop to prison rioting once and for all. But although turreted outer walls, medieval in design, may give it the appearance of a fortress heavily garrisoned, heavily guarded, from which escape would be an impossibility, these are not the real elements of its security.

A new factor enters into the scheme at Lewisburg, a new system which Congress believes will prove more effective than armed guards and riot squads, more certain than high walls, steel doors and machine guns.

THERE will be no rioting at Lewisburg—it is hoped—because, it is believed, there will be no cause for rioting. But of far more importance, the new penitentiary aims to give the prisoner a greater chance to win his freedom and return to society a better man than when he left, and plans to set a new standard of penology for other prisons to follow.

The plan upon which the new Federal penitentiary is being built is designed to provide for an individualized system of discipline, care and treatment, by facilitating the proper classification and segregation of Federal prisoners according to their character, the nature of the crime they have committed, their mental condition and other factors of consideration, and will put an end to the wholesale method of treatment now in common use.

"The planners have not assumed that every inmate is to be a wild beast who must be placed in a steel cage and removed entirely from any contact with his fellows, air and direct sunlight," reports the Bureau of Prisons of the Department of Justice. "They have concluded rather that there are different kinds of prisoners, just as there are varying types of individuals."

In a recent survey made at the New Jersey State Prison by the National Prison Emergency Committee in cooperation with the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor, four separate classes into which prisoners may be grouped were developed. These are listed by Colonel Joseph D. Sears, who had charge of the survey, as follows:

"First, the 'difficult class,' composed of prisoners who are recidivists, who have anti-social tendencies or who are diagnosed as psychopathics and constitutional defectives. Second, the 'better class,' made up of normal prisoners who are mentally and physically able to be adjusted to society. For the purpose of custody and training this class has been divided into three groups: prisoners who because of the type of crime committed or the length of sentence require close custody, but are suitable for shop work and will probably form the backbone of the prison shop organization; those who are believed to be stable and trustworthy and may be employed at prison farms, road camps, and so forth, where only limited security and supervision are necessary, and young prisoners who are stable and trustworthy, who have average intelligence or better and are capable of accepting trade training in various vocations at farms and shops, where only minimum security is necessary.

"Borderline feeble-minded and simple feeble-minded, which include high and low grade morons and high-grade imbeciles, made up the third general class, while the fourth class developed by the study is composed of aged or senile, chronically ill and the seriously crippled."

It is this type of grouping which will be carried out by the new system at Lewisburg, based on the similar experience of the Bureau of Federal Prisons to that of New Jersey.

The Lewisburg penitentiary will not be a big house with row on row and tier upon tier of steel cages, into which men may be locked away and forgotten, while prison officers and the rest of the world rock along, according to the Prison Bureau report. "It will have nothing in common with the early Pennsylvania type of prison, which consisted of a series of cells with an adjoining courtyard, in which the prisoner was isolated for years without seeing or communicating with his fellows, his friends or his family."

Punishment will not be the principal aim of the new system at Lewisburg. Oppression will not be tolerated. Severe measures will only be used where all else fails. It will be sought to disprove the old theory of "once a criminal always a criminal." Correction will be the ideal. And this will be accomplished through training, schooling and proper discipline while the prisoner will be given every incentive to improve.

NOT only will the prisoner at Lewisburg be given a chance to shorten his sentence by good behavior, but he will be given an opportunity to lessen the restrictions placed upon him and to move into better and less confining quarters with each step in his progress. He will be graduated through various kinds of environment until he is at last sent out again into the community.

"The prison is unable to discharge its full duty in protecting the public from those who temporarily come under its influence unless it can turn the men out of prison better than when received," states Sanford Bates, Director of the United States Bureau of Prisons, under whose supervision the new Federal penitentiary will be maintained. "The main object of all our work is to secure if possible some improvement in the character of our inmates. It has been deemed necessary to adopt immediately some program for individualized treatment. We cannot reform men in the mass. Something must be known about their individual problems and some intelligence must be brought to bear upon their solution before the real work of the prison can be accomplished."

Study and analysis of the individual prisoner at Lewisburg will be conducted by a staff of trained workers, whose function will be, first of all, to obtain the necessary information about each prisoner on which individualized treatment can be based. This will include information on his previous criminal record, his family history, his environmental background, his educational and occupational record, his plans for the future, and so forth. A complete case history of the individual will be secured by reference to the records of court and probation officers, the criminal records supplied by other governmental officers and collected by the record clerk, mail inquiries directed to the community from which the prisoner came, to former employers and others who are familiar with his past, and careful interviews with the prisoner himself.

When the prisoner is brought to Lewisburg he will be housed in a receiving building. This building will contain quarantine cells, in which the newcomer will be placed for a period of two weeks or more, or until such time as his observation and examinations will have been completed.

It is in this building that the most important and far-reaching work under the new system will be conducted. The Federal authorities believe that the least they can do toward seeing that the prisoner is discharged in a better condition than when he was received is to remove his physical handicaps and upbuild his physique so that he can earn an honest living if he wishes. They also want to have facilities which will enable them to answer conclusively statements frequently made that all criminals are mental defectives.

In the receiving building the most modern facilities for the diagnosis of mental and physical ailments will be provided, and the prisoner will be studied, analyzed and classified according to his record, his criminal tendencies, the character of his mind and his physical condition.

Here he will receive a complete medical examination and if he is found to have some defect which can be corrected by medical or surgical attention he will be moved to the hospital.

THIS hospital of 90 beds, also a part of the receiving building, will be one of the outstanding features of the new penitentiary. Maintained and operated by the United States Public Health Service, recently placed in charge of Federal Penal Medical Service, it will be a complete unit in itself, comprising every facility of a modern city hospital and including operating rooms for major and minor operations, clinical laboratories, a complete X-ray department, a dental department and the latest equipment for hydro- and electro-therapy.

"Realizing that if the prison is to perform its full duty toward its inmates, adequate medical service must be provided to remove the physical and mental handicaps which so often induce crime," states Prison Director Bates, "the department approached the United States Public Health Service with a view to securing its co-operation. After the necessary legislation had been obtained an arrangement was made with the Public Health Service for the entire supervision and conduct of the medical and psychiatric work in the prisons by that splendidly organized and equipped service. It is confidently expected that the Federal institutions under this arrangement will be able to make a demonstration of the important and constructive role which the medical service must play in the rehabilitation of the criminal."

Illinois State Penitentiary at Stateville.

If the prisoner at Lewisburg is found to be a "chronic defective" he will be removed to the new Federal hospital for defective delinquents now under construction at Springfield, Missouri, as part of the new prison program.

The prisoner who is pronounced mentally and physically normal will be removed from the quarantine cells and placed in one of the stronger types of housing until he demonstrates that he can be trusted in the barracks or dormitories.

IF HE is found to be of the "bad man," or "tough," type, a hardened or habitual offender, likely to cause trouble for himself and his fellow inmates, and in need of disciplining, he will be placed in the diciplinary building, a three-story structure containing the only inside cellrooms in the institution. These rooms, 66 in number and housing only one inmate to the room, will have barred windows and steel doors, but will open into corridors instead of galleries. There will be no "dog holes," or "dungeons," at Lewisburg, as the small, narrow, dark, solitary confinement cells used at other institutions for severest punishment are termed in the prison vernacular.

There will be three buildings containing outside rooms and housing 270 men to the unit, in which prisoners whose deportment and record indicate they will not spend every hour planning how to escape will be placed upon leaving quarantine. The windows in this building will be barred, but will give out upon open areas rather than into inclosed or walled-in courts. And instead of steel gates, each room will have a door. These doors will be of peculiar construction. They will look like ordinary wooden doors, but will consist of oak panels laid over sheet steel, to furnish security and yet conform to the plan of making these rooms appear as unlike prison cells as possible. On every floor of these buildings there will be a recreation room, which will be opened to the men at certain hours of each day.

The next step the prisoner will take if his record shows good behavior and indicates that he can live at peace with his fellows will be to the open dormitory, or barracks, type of building. This group comprises four buildings of three stories each, housing 50 men to the floor. It is evident that before the men are housed in such large groups they will have been expected to show considerable progress, and the benefits and effectiveness of the new system will have begun to be revealed.

DURING their stay in prison the men will be given opportunity to attend school and vocational training classes and work in the prison industries or on the farm and their ambition, their willingness to work and their progress in these endeavors will play an important part in the lessening of their restrictions and in their assignment to more desirable quarters.

Lewisburg will be the first Federal penitentiary to erect a model school building where classes will be held regularly, and where every facility for a simple academic education will be provided. There will also be a large library in connection with the institution and a spacious auditorium for instructive lectures and entertainment purposes.

It will not be such a long jump from the open dormitories to the "honor dormitories" for those prisoners who show the greatest improvement of character. These will consist of small

A FAMOUS DEAN of MEN RETIRES

Thomas Arkle Clark Has Seen Undergraduates Come and Go for Thirty Years at the University of Illinois.

By M. W. CHILDS

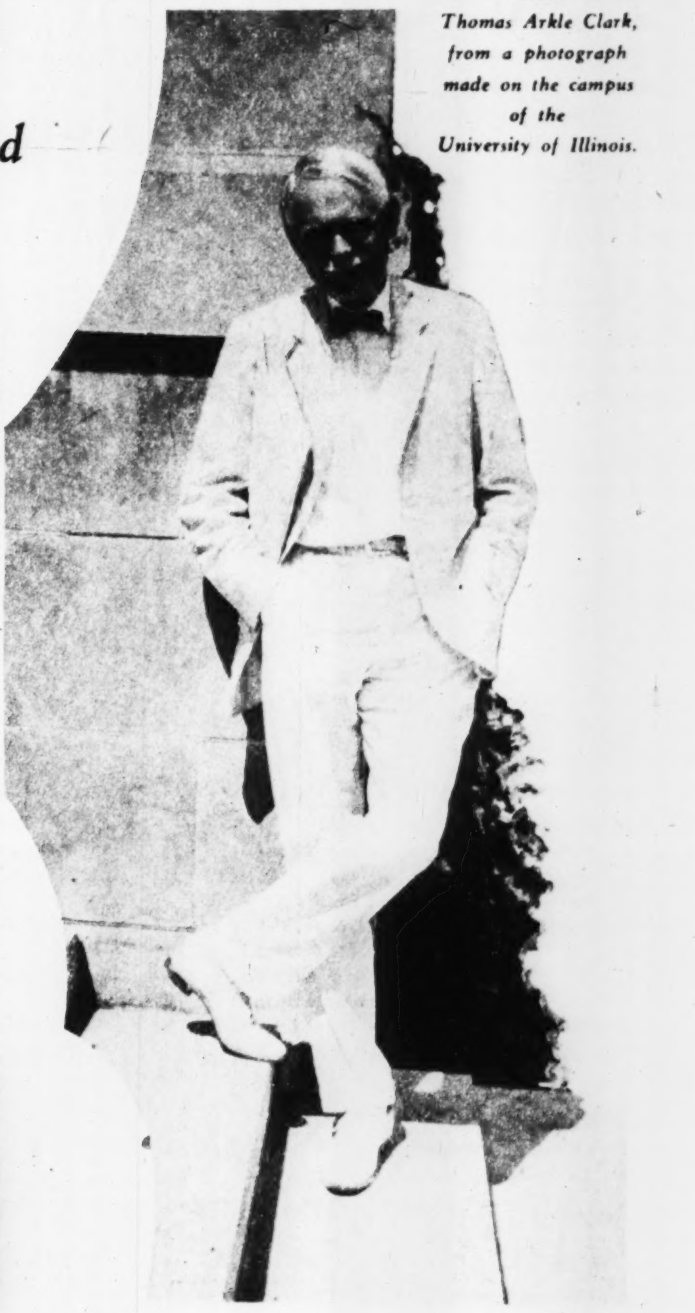
URBANA, Illinois.

A SLIGHTLY cynical freshman at the University of Illinois here once said after a visit to the office of Dean Thomas Arkle Clark that he didn't believe he'd feel comfortable any closer to God than that. And the office down the corridor on the first floor of the Administration Building has for 30 years been a little bit like St. Peter's office to thousands of young men.

They have approached the door with the sign "Dean of Men and Assistants" above it in a state befitting the condition of their conscience at the moment. They have sat opposite this bright steel button of a man and his sharp blue eyes have looked right through them. When they left he usually knew what the trouble was, whether they had told him or not—which is probably why his recent announcement that he would retire next fall was not received on the campus with uniform lamentation. In strict accuracy there was a certain degree of rejoicing among the element that has resented the Dean's position, a position which has come to be something between that of a very efficient hen with an enormous brood to mother and the judge and arbiter of the morals and conduct of some 8000 young and healthy males.

It is a position which he created himself. When President Draper appointed him as Dean of Undergraduate Students in 1900 there was no precedent to follow. Up to that time—it was a small university then—President Draper himself had worried over the students who were failing in their work and those who were breaking rules and those whose parents felt they weren't getting all they should out of their university course. There came a time when the president refused to carry this burden any longer. With a vast sigh of relief he turned it all over to Clark.

So this Scotchman with the silver-gray hair and the quick, precise smile, who is known wherever an Illinois graduate happens to be, is responsible for the fact that Deans of Men and Deans of Women, too, now exist in nearly every university of any size in the country. And he is quite willing to accept the responsibility. The impression is that he has enjoyed the job, that he has enjoyed even the battles, and this Presbyterian elder has been involved in a good many. He feels that the work he has done has been on the side of the angels, a good work of which he is not ashamed.



Dean Thomas Arkle Clark, from a photograph made on the campus of the University of Illinois.

"I have tried," he says, "to minister to the physical comfort and welfare of young men. My wife felt from the first it would take all my time, and it has. I was reluctant to accept the position and my wife opposed the idea. But I can say that I have never been in a large city in the world that I have not found friends, friends whom I made here."

A day or two before I talked to Dean Clark an outbreak had occurred that still stirred the campus. The occasion was the freshman cap-burning ceremony. Nearly a thousand "frosh" had gathered on the flooded athletic field to discard the traditional symbol of their first year as undergraduates. The customary mud battle followed, in the course of which, the freshmen, as usual, tore one another's clothes off. But this time, instead of streaking home as rapidly as possible, they started on a rampage.

Three or four hundred naked—for the tradition is that every stitch of clothing must be torn off—mud-bespattered young men went on a tear. They ran through several sorority houses shrieking wildly. They ran through the streets of the town, throwing bricks at street lamps and windows. They ran into movie houses and restaurants, leaving shock and stunned surprise in their wake. It didn't last very long but while it lasted, it was quite uncontrolled. They did $400 worth of damage, according to the Dean's estimate.

"Isn't that rather an astonishing phenomenon?" he was asked.

"Nothing that the undergraduate does is surprising." His answer is given with the bright, alert smile.

FOR many years one of the most persistent rumors on the campus has concerned the Dean's spy system, his uncanny faculty for ferreting out the most secret things. The Dean explained about his spy system. There isn't any. And his knowledge of what goes on all comes, he says, from the fact that the undergraduate is so woefully, so pathetically transparent. Whether they are supposedly sophisticated youngsters from Chicago's Gold Coast or farm boys from the central Illinois prairie, they have been giving themselves away to the Dean with unfailing, almost embarrassing certainty for 30 years.

Take the case of the cap-night riot. On the next day the freshmen began to come in to see Dean Clark. Not about the riot of the night before, oh, no, not about that. They found some excuse or other to talk to him, he says, and in the course of their talk they invariably brought up the little matter of the rioting. What did he think about it? And was there likely to be any action taken? And didn't the Dean think that after all it would be difficult to find out how it started?

Dean Clark is confident that within a week, simply by interview and observation, he would have been able to name almost all the participants. He isn't going to bother, since he feels that it was one of those mass occurrences that have no rhyme or reason, leader or direction. And it would be a little difficult to fire a hundred or more freshmen.

It was by means of his "spy system" that the Dean suppressed the secret fraternity, Theta Nu Epsilon, at Illinois. The Dean, it should be said, is not opposed to fraternities that are open and above board. He was for eight years national president of his own Alpha Tau Omega. But he has always been dead against what he calls "bastard fraternities," such as T N E. He had known of the existence of this organization on the university campus for many years. He had opposed it in a quiet way for a long time because he believed that it was undemocratic in its attempt to control by secret influence the various activities on the campus and he believed, too, that its ceremonies of initiation were somewhat vulgar and brutal.

In 1920 he was named by the chairman of the Inter-Fraternity Conference to investigate the status of Theta Nu Epsilon. After a long correspondence with officers of other universities, he resolved to start housecleaning at home. Dean Clark began by a process of deduction that would have done credit to a Sherlock Holmes on the trail of the missing emeralds. He ruled out first of all those fraternities that he knew had no members in T N E. Virtually all national Greek letter societies forbid their members to join T N E, but the ban in the past had been rather generally ignored. Then he drew up lists of committees in charge of the various student activities, noted the recurrence of certain names, drew a few conclusions from information that he had long had and started his active campaign.

The Dean as a tennis player.

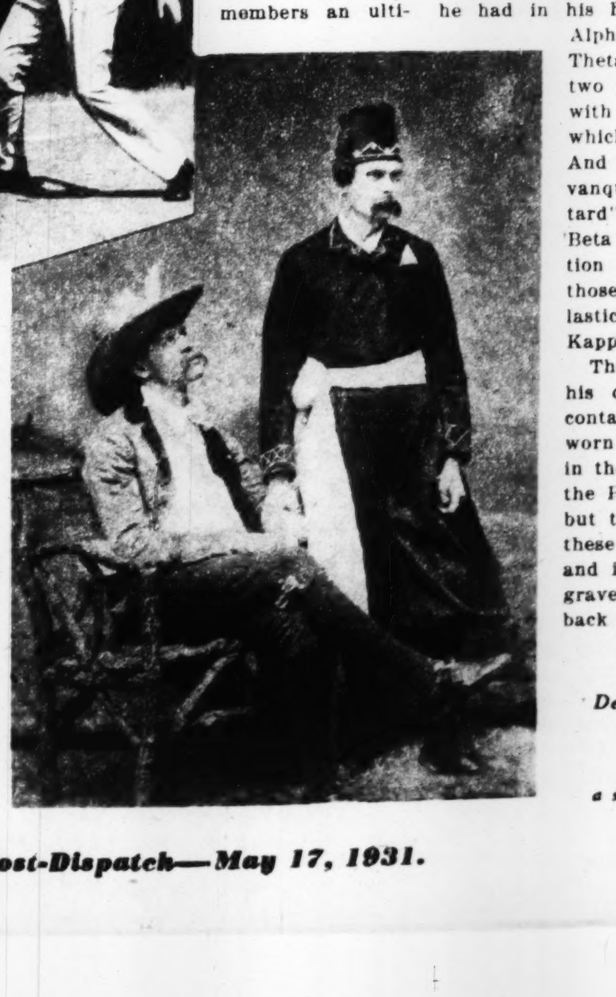
At least once or twice a week for some time, through the co-operation of the editor of the Daily Illini, the student paper, he gave out an interview on T N E concerning its harmful influence, his determination to get rid of it, its workings on the campus. Soon there were results.

"I saw the men whom I knew to be members and those whom I suspected of membership in earnest conversation," he says. "They gathered in little groups in the libraries, and on the street corners. They talked a good deal and what they said came to my ears, as what I said went to theirs. I was strengthened in my knowledge and confirmed in my suspicions. They were expecting all the time to be called to the office. They were nervous as to my next move, and this nervousness they revealed at every turn. I could see them hanging around in the hallway. They would drop into the office to talk about the weather or the prospect of extending their vacations, or anything else excepting the real things that were in their minds. They gave themselves away without intending to do so."

When he had his case quite well in hand, he called the president of Theta Nu Epsilon before him and told him he knew he was a member of the secret order and asked him to convey to his fellow members an ultimatum from the Council of Administration, as per Dean Clark, executor. If they didn't all voluntarily give up membership in T N E, then the university was prepared to take drastic steps to abolish the society — that was the ultimatum. It was Saturday and he gave them until Wednesday to surrender. Late that afternoon and on Sunday several came to him and capitulated. These men told him that there were a few members who would hold out to the end.

"I came to the conclusion, as I knew human nature, that the men who would capitulate last would be law students, who would want to know the evidence, who would hold out for a legal conviction, and who would want to argue the case. Going over the list of probable members registered in law, I picked out three men. Perhaps one reason why I picked out these three was because they were rather close friends and because last year two of them had done a good deal of talking about my methods. They even cherished the hope of putting me out of business. I have always admired a man who has an object in life," he adds drily.

The Dean's conclusion as to the three stubborn members proved to be correct. Finally they gave in. Just two weeks after he had started his campaign, the Dean is proud to say, he had in his hand the charter of Alpha Chi chapter of Theta Nu Epsilon. Again two years ago he battled with the same society, which had been revived. And more recently he vanquished another "bastard" fraternity, Kappa Beta Phi—an organization with aims not those of the serious scholastic fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa.



Dean Clark, standing, as he looked 30 years ago at a student masquerade.

The Dean pulls from his desk drawer a box containing emblems to be worn on the watch chain, in the form of keys, like the Phi Beta Kappa key, but the Greek letters on these badges are reversed and in one corner is engraved a stein and on the back a motto which, freely translated, is "Eat, Drink and Be Merry." There are perhaps 20 of these keys, badly tarnished, in the little box.

But all his time—and the Dean would make a strong point of this—has not been taken up with disciplinary matters. He has watched, he says, probably more operations than anyone he knows of, instances when parents could not be present in an emergency. Night after night he has been called out by the illness of one of his boys. On the day that I saw him he had come from making a round of the student hospital, pausing a moment in each room, with a word or two and the bright, gnomish smile.

Dean Clark's life follows a spotless pattern. Left with a widowed mother and an invalid brother to support, young Clark, born in 1862, nevertheless managed to work his way through the university in which he later taught rhetoric. He was for a time acting dean of the College of Literature and Arts. Then in 1901 he began his work as Dean of Undergraduates, the title later being changed to Dean of Men, because of other deans who had their feelings hurt. He has been at his desk every morning at 8 o'clock, almost without fail, for three decades.

ALL his life Dean Clark has been a "joiner" and a worker: in the Presbyterian Church, in the student military, in Alpha Tau Omega. He is just now the president of the local Rotary Club. It is not, he explains, because he has an intrinsic faith in the virtue of organization. All organizations are frail, because of the frailty of human nature. But they are the tools at hand and one must work with them. That is his attitude.

Dean Clark believes that the young in universities are no worse today than they were 40 years ago, perhaps even a little better. "Petting is certainly no new phenomenon," he says. "Nor is drinking. I suppose the difference is that, then, the drinking was concealed. But there was the same percentage of loafers who spent Friday night and Saturday night in the saloon. But when they had had too much to drink they went home stealthily, by the alleys. Now they go shouting it to the housetops. 'See what a grand drunk I have on.'"

The Dean has really lived through an epoch in the American university. He created an institution; almost literally he became an institution.

Certainly Dean Clark has been a dominant personality at the university. He has left his imprint upon innumerable young men who have sat for a few minues, or a few hours—depending upon the gravity of their problem—opposite him at his broad desk. And it is possible that they have left their imprint on him, too. He has a collegiate look, the loose tweeds, the lemon-yellow tie with its slight red pattern, the Navajo arm band of silver, the silver wrist watch with silver link chain, the silver ring with a turquoise matrix set, the quick, precise movements, the bright face so little touched by time. He is not troubled by thought of his retirement next fall. There will be so many things to do, so much work awaiting him, he says.

How One Man Kept a Boom Town From Going Wild

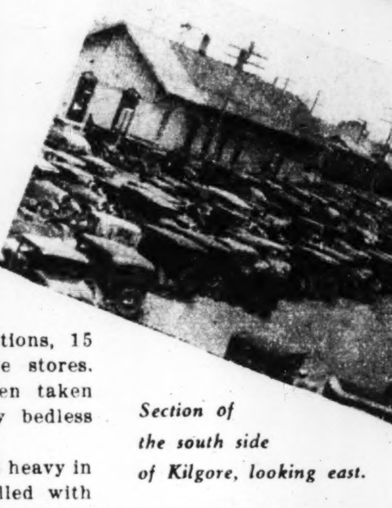
Manuel Gonzales of the Rangers Brought Law and Order to Kilgore, Texas, Before the Gamblers, Dope Peddlers and Professional Thugs Had a Chance to Dig in.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

KILGORE, Texas.

ABOUT the first of the year Kilgore found an oil field at its front door and immediately began growing into one of those wicked Texas oil towns one reads about. It made rapid progress, both in growing and in growing bad.

Strangers streamed in by thousands—the typical motley horde that is attracted by such a strike: gamblers, confidence men, bootleggers, dope sellers, robbers, panders and prostitutes, as well as the oil field workers and others who expected to get their hands on some of the quick money by legitimate means. In eight weeks the dusty, sleepy little village of 900 population had become a raw, sprawling, brawling city of 25,000. It was disfigured with flimsy, hastily constructed buildings. There were 14 hotels instead of one. There were 21 gasoline filling stations, 15 barber shops, nine furniture stores. The Baptist church had been taken over as a sleeping place by bedless newcomers.



Section of the south side of Kilgore, looking east.

The smell of petroleum was heavy in the air, the days were filled with noise and confusion, the nights with rowdy and reprehensible recreation. Kilgore seemed in a fair way to make a not undistinguished name for itself, even among Texas oil boom towns, for picturesque indecorum.

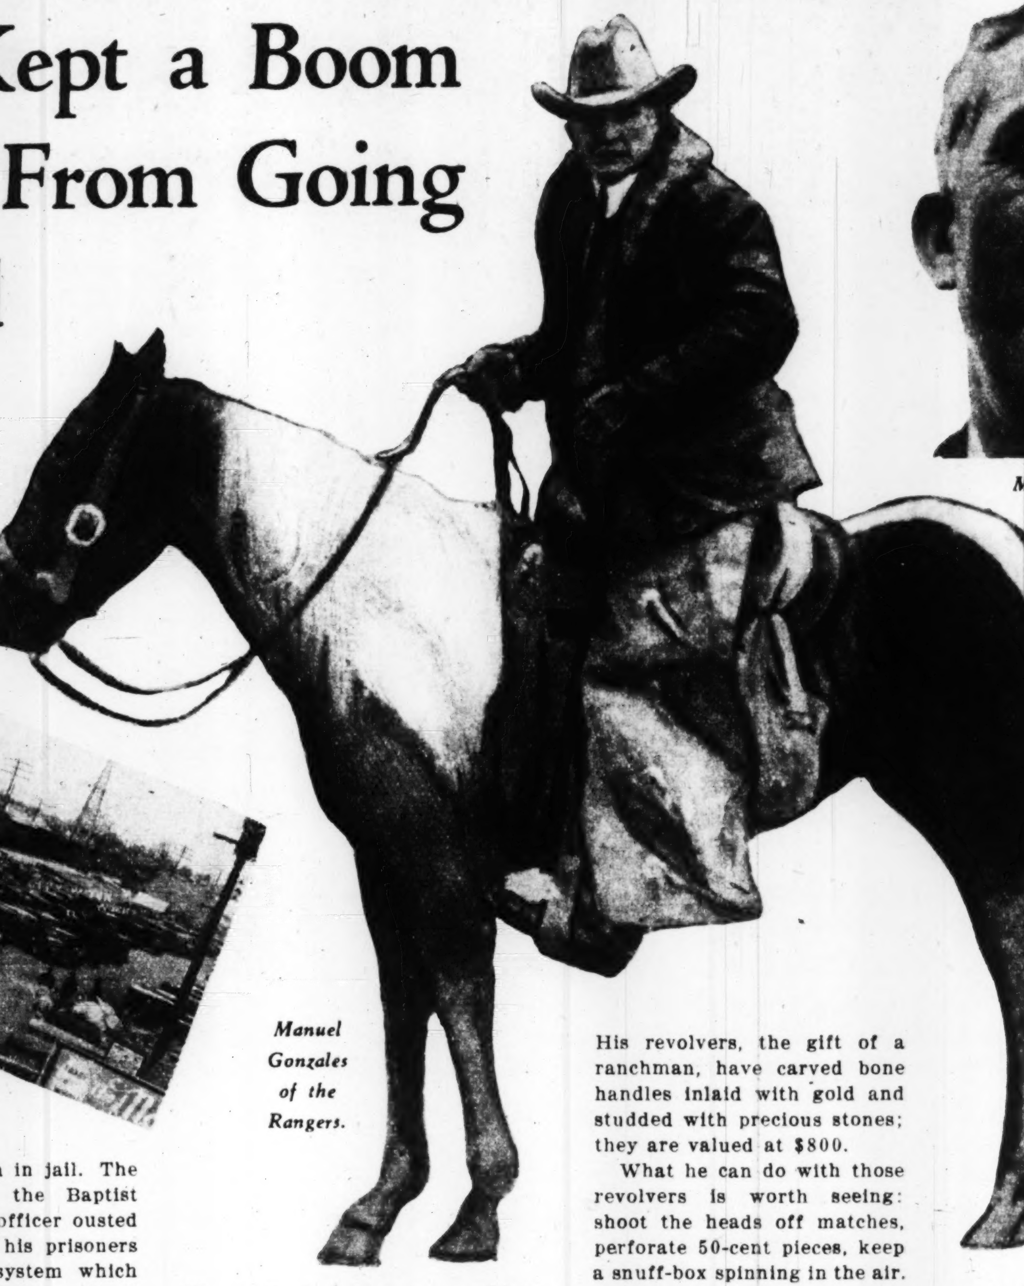
But among the thousands that crowded into the village last January was an inconspicuous young fellow who was destined to alter the course of Kilgore's civic progress. Wearing an old cap and grease-stained overalls, he appeared to be an ordinary oil field laborer, one of the "roughnecks" who follow the derricks from place to place, working hard, making good money and spending it pretty freely. As such he mingled with the crowd and learned a good deal about the shady characters among the town's new citizens.

In a few weeks he figured he had learned enough. Then, armed with his knowledge and a brace of beautiful pistols, he began a job of town taming. And the town learned that the inconspicuous oil field worker was Manuel Gonzales of the Texas Rangers.

In his first offensive Gonzales rounded up 500 persons whom he considered undesirable units of the community and clapped them in jail. The jail in this case was the Baptist church, from which the officer ousted the squatters. To keep his prisoners secure he instituted a system which has come to be known as the "trout line." He fastened a heavy chain to the floor, following the line of the walls, and to this connected many shorter and lighter chains. These he padlocked to the ankles of the prisoners—with a few exceptions. The exceptions applied to such captives as were inclined to be tough: he put the chains around their necks.

Some of this first batch of prisoners were held for trial. Others were allowed to leave town and assured they never would be missed.

Gonzales continued to make life miserable for what he calls "the element," that is, persons inimical to law and order. But the number of arrests decreased, and he abandoned the church as a jail and set up his calaboose in a deserted feed store. He continued to use the trout line system, however, employing two chains, one for men and one for women. After several weeks of vigilant policing, he still usually had as many as 20 captives per chain.



Manuel Gonzales of the Rangers.

Oil began to spout first on December 28, when Mayor Malcom E. Crim of Kilgore struck oil on his site. In February Kilgore was incorporated, and Gonzales now has a small force of assistants. But Gonzales' territory is not limited to the town. He is charged with the duty of keeping order in the entire oil field, an area of 120 square miles. He patrols his district on horseback. And works 18 hours a day.

The Ranger who has stunted the growth of wildness in this Texas community is a man of 30 or so, son of a Spaniard and a Texan. He has dark eyes and hair, an olive complexion and a drawl in his speech. He is something of a dandy; his whipcord breeches and coat are usually immaculate, his silver belt buckle is intricately carved, he wears a large diamond on his little finger and a Shriner's pin, set with diamonds, in his lapel. His revolvers, the gift of a ranchman, have carved bone handles inlaid with gold and studded with precious stones; they are valued at $800.

What he can do with those revolvers is worth seeing: shoot the heads off matches, perforate 50-cent pieces, keep a snuff-box spinning in the air. Gonzales, the Ranger, says: "Any of us can do that." And a good many people will tell you he is the fastest man on the draw in Texas. Gonzales is non-commital on that point; he merely grins and draws: 'Wa-al, I'm alive."

The Ranger is a veteran at the work of policing oil fields. He has been at it 12 years. Sort of specialized in it, he says. He has seen service in every field in the State. But the Kilgore assignment is the first one of which he has been in charge. When one considers Gonzales one is inevitably reminded of that classic anecdote which, true or not, illustrates the spirit that has made the Texas Rangers famous. According to the story, a riot broke out in a small town, and the Mayor telegraphed the Governor to send the Rangers to quell the disturbance. The Mayor, haggard with worry, met the train on which help was to arrive. As he was anxiously watching the arrivals a stranger approached him and said: "Are you the Mayor?" The Mayor scarcely glanced at him. "Leave me alone," he answered. "I'm looking for the Rangers. Somebody's got to stop this riot." The stranger then announced that he was a Ranger. "But is there only one of you?" the Mayor cried. And the Ranger answered: "There's only one riot, ain't there?"

Malcom E. Crim, Mayor of Kilgore.

For nearly a century the Texas Rangers have been riding hard on lawlessness in Texas. Organized before Texan independence, their early efforts were directed chiefly to fighting Indians and marauding Mexicans who harassed settlers north of the Rio Grande. Later they were much occupied with guarding the border against cattle raiders and curbing the desperadoes of various kinds who infested the State for many years. The law under which they now operate as peace officers with state-wide jurisdiction, was passed in 1901 and amended in 1919. Six years resentment against the Rangers' activities in prohibition enforcement caused a suit which resulted in the law's being declared unconstitutional; the force became inactive until the law was upheld on appeal. Almost always the Rangers have combatted heavy odds, but so great is the prestige of the organization that one Ranger has often been able to dominate a crowd. The Rangers were the first of the State police forces.

Mayor Crim tells a story about Gonzales that indicates the tension under which such men as he live. Not long ago, Gonzales paid a business call on the Mayor in his office. The Mayor's secretary, an agreeable young man, and his stenographer, a very pretty girl, were waiting in the reception room. The door to the Mayor's office was slightly ajar. The secretary, meaning to shut it—out of politeness—slammed the door by mistake, open. Gonzales, faster than light, spun round, his two guns trained on the secretary and the stenographer. The man shouted that his intentions were amicable; the girl, silent with terror, hid behind a chair. Gonzales warned them not to make noises like that behind him; he said he suspected whatever went on behind his back. "It makes me kinda nervouslike," he said gently, pocketing his guns.

THE Mayor, when questioned about the police force, said: "We don't need to bother about things like that. Gonzales is here."

Meanwhile, 150,000 barrels of oil are shipped from Kilgore every day. And $850,000 worth of freight was handled at the railroad office last month. There are fortunes to be made and plenty of people who don't much care what means are used. Nevertheless, at night there's nothing better to do in Kilgore than go to a naive, badly acted, prudently costumed play; or to a dance which bears marked resemblance to an old-fashioned "strawberry social"; or to one of the eight drug stores for a soda water orgy. Men walk up and down the red clay roads, talking and smoking quietly. At 11:30 the town sleeps. No residential suburb could be a more docile community. This is the first oil boom of its kind on record. And though this model behavior may not last, though the lid may blow off magnificently, it is doubtful. For Gonzales, assured, laconic, graceful, is on hand, saying in that soft voice of his, "Nothing's going wrong here."

"Man and the Crocodile Are Biggest Jungle Killers"

what few there are, are amply protected. A lion with its paws and face full of quills is indeed in trouble. Sores develop. Festers grow and poison the blood. The pain is great. Hunting becomes impossible and finally the great killer lies down and is in his turn killed by the cowardly hyenas, the jackals and other lesser beasts of prey.

Crocodiles are found everywhere in Africa. Each river, each pan, lake or lagoon is full of these scaly, ever hungry monsters. At night they will leave the water and travel overland from one bit of water to another. I am inclined to think that they also leave the water to hunt, although how they succeed in capturing a land animal is difficult to understand. On land a croc is a clumsy creature. It can move in lightning leaps for a short distance, but its ordinary mode of travel is a swaying waddle, with its heavy tail dragging on the ground. I have had traps set back a half-mile from the river robbed by crocodiles. These very evidently left the water and followed up the scent of tainted meat until they discovered the bait. Once or twice I have shot crocodiles which had the twisted bark ropes of native snares in their stomachs. These snares are only set on land, so these particular beasts must have left their usual element to catch their meal.

Many people have asked me what happens when a lion and a leopard or a rhinoceros and an elephant meet. The answer seems to be that they seldom if ever do meet. The senses of smell and hearing are wonderfully keen in all wild animals. Neither one of these four animals could approach one of the others without them being notified, unless they approached against the wind. In such an event the oncoming animals would probably veer away. Rhinos give ground to elephants and leopards back away from lions. There is no occasion for the big animals to meet and fight.

There seems to be one exception to this general rule. Lions and crocodiles fight every once in a while, according to the tales of natives. I once found the body of a crocodile a quarter of a mile from water which was terribly torn and mangled. A lion or lions might have done such damage as I saw. But only such a comparatively slow witted and persistent a creature as a crocodile would land in this kind of a predicament. It is easy to imagine the circumstances. The night breeze blows from the veld, bringing the smell of meat. A crocodile crawls onto the bank and waddles overland. The reek of lion which is mixed with the smell of meat bothers it not at all. On it goes, a sinister, frightful monster, swaying and creeping over the grass and leaves. The lions undoubtedly hear it coming. They prepare to defend their kills. Growls sound from the spot where they are feeding. But the crocodile waddles on.

A battle between lions and a crocodile must be one of the most ferocious sights which could be seen upon the veld, for crocs move fast. Their tails are capable of dealing a blow that would break any lion's back. And their jaws are armed with from 80 to 100 teeth, an inch to two inches long.

A SINGLE lion would have no chance against a crocodile. Three or four lions, however, would probably kill even a large crocodile. But they would not escape unmarked, if indeed one or more of them were not crippled mortally.

It is quite a common experience to read of or listen to talk of the horrible savage life of wild animals and of their constant terror. To humans the killing of one animal by another in mortal face to face combat is brutal and grewsome. Yet I do not think wild animals live in constant terror. They are always keenly alert, but not necessarily afraid. They are not always imagining what deaths await them. When death comes it is usually swift. The moment of terror is brief.

It is a sad but true fact that the greatest suffering wild animals are subjected to is inflicted upon them by men. Of all the killers, we are the most cruel and most rapacious. There is no limit to the things men will do. We shoot and cripple animals and leave them to wander off and suffer from terrible wounds. We pitfall them and allow them to struggle for hours, or trap them by the leg or neck. Men chase with dogs, they use fire to drive game, put up nets, dropping spears, guns which fire when a bait is pulled. Chunks of meat tossed on the veld may contain fearful poisons which send the poor beasts who eat the meat into writhing paroxysms of pain. If wild animals live in terror it is terror of man, for indeed there is no creature on the veld so dangerous, so deadly, as a human being.

Man kills at every opportunity and by every means within his power. Men and crocodiles are responsible for more deaths among African animals than any other of the killing animals.

Rembrandt Under the Microscope

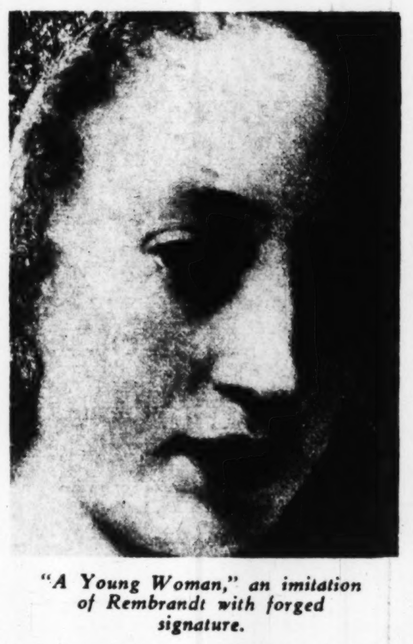
Van Dyke learned that the individual talented pupils are the ones who today have the greatest number of paintings in their own names.

He began to study and compare the paintings credited to Rembrandt and soon discovered that they fell into groups. By studying the brush work of the few definitely authenticated Rembrandts he was able to determine that probably less than 40 of the thousand were actually done by him. By studying the brush stroke and characteristics of the paintings known to be done by such successful pupils as Maes, Backer, Koninck and others he was able to learn which of the Rembrandt attributions were actually done by them.



"A Young Woman," an imitation of Rembrandt with forged signature.

Lievens, Dou, Backer, Bol, De Wet and S. Koninck are known to have been in the Rembrandt workshop when the master was young and working in his gray manner, with rather precise drawing and painting. They learned the early manner, produced the gray pictures and, sure enough, their paintings are to be found today among the early-dated Rembrandts. On the contrary, Maes, Drost and De Gelder came to the shop late, learned the looser, freer handling, the warmer coloring and the darker shadow of the aging master, and today their pictures are to be found among the late Rembrandts.

"The problem," says Dr. Toch, "is not to discover comparatively recently painted Rembrandts. That is easy. By studying the age of the canvas and by making a microchemical analysis of the paint we determine the approximate date of the painting. In Rembrandt's case the problem is to distinguish between his work and that of contemporary artists. That is where a microphotograph of the brush work tells the story. The Metropolitan Museum is, of course, not the only great gallery with Rembrandts he didn't paint. The galleries of Europe are full of them. The Ryks Museum in Amsterdam has many, although in its catalogue it admits that some of its paintings bearing the genuine Rembrandt signature are 'wrongly signed.' In other words, the signature is genuine, but the picture was painted by one of his pupils."

dormitories, subdivided into small wards housing four men to the ward, where for the first time the prisoner might look through unbarred windows and feel that he is definitely nearing the end of his term. Here he will face his first real test. His reactions to a very material lessening of restrictions will be carefully observed and duly noted. He will have become an "honor man." He will have won trust.

Finally, the prisoner at Lewisburg will be assigned to a building consisting of rooms approximating the living quarters of free persons. In this "senior hall" of the institution it will be difficult for him to realize that he is in prison. He will not have to look out through barred windows, no steel door will give him the sense of being caked in. In this building he will have a private room 11 feet long by 6 feet 6 inches wide, with comforts and conveniences that he did not enjoy in any other part of the institution. He will have his own key to come and go as he pleases, within the bounds of the ordinary prison routine.

When his term ends the prisoner at Lewisburg will not be turned out from a drab, confining cell to sudden freedom, with a grim recollection of long incarceration and an embittered attitude toward society. Instead, he will be given a try at freedom before he leaves, to engender self-reliance and self-respect.

But while the new system at Lewisburg may seem less rigid, the importance of maintaining discipline has not been lost sight of, according to Director Bates. "With all these new plans under way," he states, "insistence has been had upon the strict performance by guards and other employes of the difficult tasks laid upon them, and wardens are repeatedly advised that our institutions are places for the rigorous discipline of the inmates."

The new Federal penitentiary will be the American Government's answer to what has been regarded as an inadequate and intolerable prison system—a system that has made possible such disastrous rebellions as the mutiny and fire in the Ohio State Penitentiary (where 4300 prisoners were housed in accommodations designed for 1500) which resulted in the burning to death of 318 men; the Colorado State Prison mutiny, in which seven guards and five prisoners were killed and dozens of others wounded; the riot at Dannemora Prison, in New York (where only the most desperate criminals are housed) in which three were killed; the outbreak at the New York State Prison, where two were killed, 11 wounded and four escaped; the uprising at the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, where one was killed and three injured, and other serious riots which have occurred in the past two years.

There will be no crowding at Lewisburg. With the exception of the dormitories all prison rooms will be constructed to house a single occupant, and these will be larger than the cells built to hold two and made to hold four, and even eight under crowded conditions in existing penitentiaries. The four-man wards in the honor dormitories will measure 17 feet 4 inches by 13 feet 6 inches, as compared with rooms of the same size now housing eight men at the Leavenworth and Atlanta penitentiaries. The space alloted per man at Lewisburg will be 60 square feet, which closely approximates the 67 square feet standard space requirements of the army and navy.

AND there will be no large grouping together of men at the new Federal penitentiary at any time. A mess hall has been designed in four sections to avoid the mixing together of prisoners of different class groups under the new system.

Alfred Hopkins, architect for the Lewisburg penitentiary, inspected prisons here and in Europe to obtain ideas for the new prison, and it is believed that from a standpoint of construction it will set a new world standard.

Despite the many new angles that had to be taken into consideration, the economy effected in planning the new prison is considered remarkable. It is estimated that the prison proper, designed to accommodate normally about 1200 prisoners, will cost only $3,000,000 to build. This means a cost of $2500 per man for the new penitentiary, as compared with a cost of $5000 to $6000 per man at the Ohio State Penitentiary, and from $5000 to $6000 per man at the penitentiary at Auburn, New York—an economy made possible through combining buildings, such as the housing of the kitchen and power plant together, and other feasible combinations, together with the advantages of the classification system in reducing the cost of prison housing

Dear Mr. Simmons: I am certainly astonished that you are unable to find my slippers. I have been staying at your hotel off and on for 10 years, and I have sent you a considerable number of guests. It would seem to me, Mr. Simmons, that a thorough search, such as you mention in your letter of April 18, would have brought my slippers to light.

The slippers, while four years old, were practically as good as new, but I would think no more of the matter if there was not a sentimental value attached to them. They were given to me by my wife on our fifteenth anniversary and she is very annoyed at their loss. I suggest that you question all employes who work on the fourth and seventh floors. Very truly yours,

P. S.—In the heel of the right slipper you will find my name and address on a laundry tag which Mrs. Bernard sewed in.

THE Mayor, when questioned about the police force, said: "We don't need to bother about things like that. Gonzales is here."

One of the railroad men remarked that when Gonzales came to town half of the people left, and the other half knew what was best for them.

Meanwhile, 150,000 barrels of oil are shipped from Kilgore every day. And $850,000 worth of freight was handled at the railroad office last month. There are fortunes to be made and plenty of people who don't much care what means are used. Nevertheless, at night there's nothing better to do in Kilgore than go to a naive, badly acted, prudently costumed play; or to a dance which bears marked resemblance to an old-fashioned "strawberry social"; or to one of the eight drug stores for a soda water orgy. Men walk up and down the red clay roads, talking and smoking quietly. At 11:30 the town sleeps. No residential suburb could be a more docile community. This is the first oil boom of its kind on record. And though this model behavior may not last, though the lid may blow off magnificently, it is doubtful. For Gonzales, assured, laconic, graceful, is on hand, saying in that soft voice of his, "Nothing's going wrong here."

hed to End Riots

were killed; the outbreak at the New York State Prison, where two were killed, 11 wounded and four escaped; the uprising at the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, where one was killed and three injured, and other serious riots which have occurred in the past two years.

There will be no crowding at Lewisburg. With the exception of the dormitories all prison rooms will be constructed to house a single occupant, and these will be larger than the cells built to hold two and made to hold four, and even eight under crowded conditions in existing penitentiaries. The four-man wards in the honor dormitories will measure 17 feet 4 inches by 13 feet 6 inches, as compared with rooms of the same size now housing eight men at the Leavenworth and Atlanta penitentiaries. The space alloted per man at Lewisburg will be 60 square feet, which closely approximates the 67 square feet standard space requirements of the army and navy.

AND there will be no large grouping together of men at the new Federal penitentiary at any time. A mess hall has been designed in four sections to avoid the mixing together of prisoners of different class groups under the new system.

Alfred Hopkins, architect for the Lewisburg penitentiary, inspected prisons here and in Europe to obtain ideas for the new prison, and it is believed that from a standpoint of construction it will set a new world standard.

Despite the many new angles that had to be taken into consideration, the economy effected in planning the new prison is considered remarkable. It is estimated that the prison proper, designed to accommodate normally about 1200 prisoners, will cost only $3,000,000 to build. This means a cost of $2500 per man for the new penitentiary, as compared with a cost of $5000 to $6000 per man at the Ohio State Penitentiary, and from $5000 to $6000 per man at the penitentiary at Auburn, New York—an economy made possible through combining buildings, such as the housing of the kitchen and power plant together, and other feasible combinations, together with the advantages of the classification system in reducing the cost of prison housing.

Manager Grand Plaza Hotel, Fifty-fifth street, New York.

Dear Sir: Will you please send my blue leather slippers to my residence at the above address. I left them behind in my hurry to make a train. I occupied either room 437 or 743. I checked out of your hotel on April 12, at about 4:30 p. m. I am sorry to bother you about the slippers, but they are the first thing I've lost in more than 10 years. Very truly yours,

Bernard P. Bernard.

P. S.—The slippers are blue silk lined. They have no heels.

Dear Sir: We regret to inform you we have made a thorough search for your slippers, but have been unable to locate them. It would have pleased us to have returned them to you, and if they should be found at a later date we will forward promptly.

Mr. John K. Simmons, Manager, Grand Plaza Hotel, New York.

Dear Mr. Simmons: I am certainly astonished that you are unable to find my slippers. I have been staying at your hotel off and on for 10 years, and I have sent you a considerable number of guests. It would seem to me, Mr. Simmons, that a thorough search, such as you mention in your letter of April 18, would have brought my slippers to light.

The slippers, while four years old, were practically as good as new, but I would think no more of the matter if there was not a sentimental value attached to them. They were given to me by my wife on our fifteenth anniversary and she is very annoyed at their loss. I suggest that you question all employes who work on the fourth and seventh floors. Very truly yours,

Bernard P. Bernard.

P. S.—In the heel of the right slipper you will find my name and address on a laundry tag which Mrs. Bernard sewed in.

J. Henry Bascom, State Director of Morals, Capitol Building, Albany, New York.

Sir: I am taking the liberty of writing as I feel it my duty to inform you of the conditions rife in your State.

It has been my misfortune to have been compelled to bring suit for divorce against my husband for a disgraceful incident occurring recently at the Grand Plaza Hotel in New York, where he was a guest. I had always been led to believe the Grand Plaza was a perfectly respectable place, and I had always felt safe when I knew my husband was there. If a man can be so misled in such a supposedly reputable hotel, then where can he go while upon his business duty? It is up to you, in your high office, to correct this vile condition so other women may not suffer. I charge you to do your duty.

Theresa W. (Mrs. Bernard P.) Bernard.

P. S.—This is not the first time such a disgraceful thing has happened in your State. The husband of a dear friend of mine had a similar experience in Trenton.

Madame: Your letter of May 8 received, and allow me to inform you that I will act on the valuable information contained therein at once. A complete investigation will be made, and I will endeavor to correct the unfortunate condition you tell me exists.

Unfortunately, I can do nothing at Trenton as it is in New Jersey. Very truly yours,

Don't remember ever having met him at the place. Just got a note from his frau that she's giving him his freedom. Some guys have all the luck.

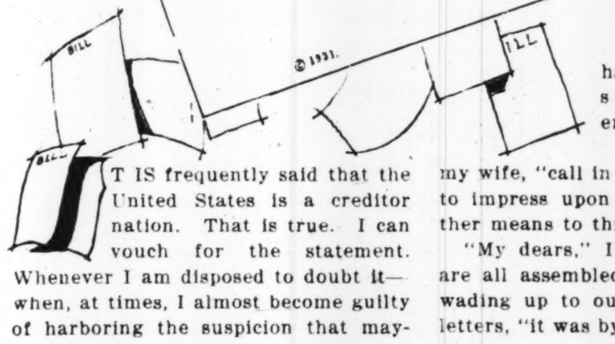
PUTTING THE CREDIT MANAGER IN HIS PLACE



IT IS frequently said that the United States is a creditor nation. That is true. I can vouch for the statement. Whenever I am disposed to doubt it—when, at times, I almost become guilty of harboring the suspicion that maybe, after all, we are not a creditor nation—then something comes along to renew my faith.

This faith of mine is most satisfactorily renewed between the first and the tenth of the month.

Around the twenty-fifth of the month I sometimes become skeptical. Often, about this date, I will edge up to the motorman on my way downtown and whisper to him that maybe it's all tosh, maybe it's just something that Mr. Hoover's man, Julius Klein, puts out to gull us into thinking all is well. Something to keep us from beseeching an extra session of Congress, or from rushing out into the streets in a body and embracing communism.

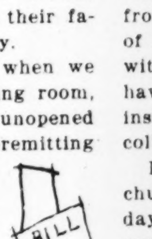
And I'm inclined to think that if it weren't for the rule against talking the motorman would agree with me.

That's the way things are on the twenty-fifth. All this, though, is changed when, a week later, the mail man comes staggering up to my door bearing sacks bulging to the top with tell-tale "window envelopes. It is then that the truth of Dr. Klein's pronouncement comes home. The United States is indeed a creditor nation and I'm what makes it so. I am its principal debtor. I'm the keystone to the country's entire financial structure.

The responsibility has a steadying, if not sobering, influence upon me.

"Abigail," I say to my wife, "call in the children. I want to impress upon them what their father means to this community.

"My dears," I tell them, when we are all assembled in the living room, wading up to our knees in unopened letters, "it was by years of unremitting work, or at any rate by years of unremitting, that I have built up this enviable flow of monthly correspondence. Beginning with a paltry half-dozen or so from the milkman, the grocer and the telephone and gas companies, I have charged ahead until today we are living in this splendid home, surrounded by every luxury known to mankind and your mother. This month we shall read a few more amusing passages from, let us say, the duns of our doctors and tailors. Afterwards, we'll start a cozy fire with the rest."



It was not always thus. I still blush when I recall my former pusillanimity. Well do I remember the days when a querulous letter from a credit manager would set me to shaking with apprehension, days when I skulked about town through alleys and side streets, and when I had what was probably the most complete assortment of false beards, wigs and paper noses in existence.

Even the mildest of letters—one of those "doubtless - you - have - overlooked - this - and - will - oblige - us - with - a-check" affair was enough to make me sit down and write a cringing note, promising to pay within a month. Ah, those lost days of my innocent youth!

The turning point in my career came one morning when I received a letter from a store beginning, "As a number of communications addressed to you with reference to the inclosed account have failed to elicit payment, we have instructed our attorney to file suit for collection."

I hastily climbed into the laundry chute and remained there for three days and nights, deaf to the tearful remonstrances of my wife and children. The third night I dropped through to the basement, a beaten man.

After that there was nothing to do but face the music. Donning my oldest clothes and mistreating the children a bit, so as to have them sobbing properly, I took the family to see the credit manager. To my surprise, he didn't recognize my name. Here was a fellow threatening to strip me of my belongings, to extract money from me and my loved ones by legal force—and he pretended not to know me.

"Look here," I told him, "I object to having my character besmirched in such an offhand way. I'm the man you're going to sue." He excused himself and left the room for a moment to look up the files on my account. My eldest son, who was rumaging through the desk drawers, came across a small book.

BILL

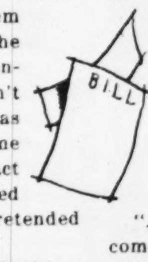
"Look, pop," the little man said.

I cuffed him absent-mindedly and the book fell from his hand. Stooping to pick it up, I noticed the title opposite the frontispiece: "Tested Retail Collection Letters—A Selection of Successful Ideas Used by Stores of All Types."

Hurriedly, I thumbed through it. On page 9, under the subhead, "Letter No. 7—As a Last Resort," I found the identical message which had brought me to his office, after three awkward days in the laundry chute.

I was ready for my man now. When he returned I waved the book at him accusingly.

"Using form letters on me, eh? Fine stuff," I snarled. "You really didn't mean a line of it, did you? No wonder you didn't recognize my name. Just unloading a series of cut-and-dried threats on me, weren't you?"



"Give him an old-fashioned kicking around, pop," suggested my eldest son.

The credit manager bowed his head.

"A nice trick to play on one of your company's biggest customers," said my wife. "I've a notion to quit trading here."

The children formed a circle around the degraded man and pointed their fingers at him.

"How many times have I told you children not to point?" I rebuked them. "Come, now, we're going downstairs to charge some new dining room furniture."

And from that day to this, dear fellow workers, my debts have never caused me a moment's worry.

MAKING NEW FRIENDS AND KEEPING THE OLD

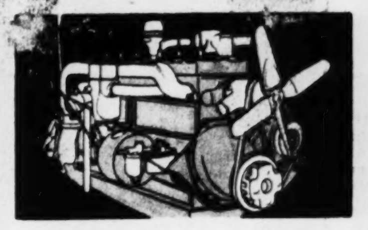
If you, like most people, prefer a car that is neither the cheapest nor the most expensive, but rather a happy medium, you will find the Pontiac the kind of car you like at the price you want to pay

★ One important step in reducing your cost of car ownership is Oakland-Pontiac's policy of equipping its cars ready for the road. The prices you note above are for cars delivered and equipped in St. Louis. The prices include front and rear bumpers, four hydraulic shock absorbers, five wire wheels, and extra tire, tube and tire lock. Wood wheels optional at no extra cost.

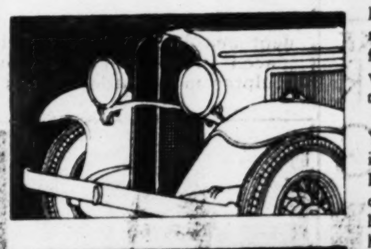
Things to note when you drive the new Pontiac

The moment you step into this car you will begin discovering pleasant things. First, how easily Pontiac handles—answering your lightest touch. The slender steel-and-rubber wheel invites a "finger grip"—and that's quite sufficient. You use little effort in braking or clutching.



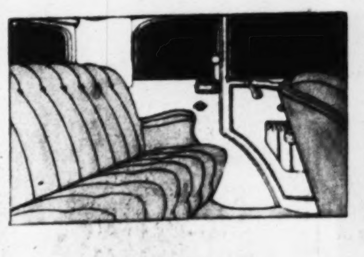
You'll remark the quick getaway . . . the rapid acceleration . . . the smoothly sustained speed. Pontiac has a 60-horsepower engine so ample in size that it need never be overworked. Hence it stays smooth.

You'll experience a new riding ease. Springs are deep; seat-cushions agreeably form-fitting, of course. But more important, Pontiac's chassis is cushioned with live rubber at more than 40 points.



You'll be proud as you drive your Pontiac — conscious that other people admire it. They'll approve its modish lines, V-radiator, chrome radiator screen, one-piece fenders with fender lamps, wide, single-bar bumpers, tailored splash apron.

You'll sense extra security in Pontiac. The famous Fisher Body wood-and-steel construction is snugly insulated against outside cold, heat, and dampness. Cowl and windshield pillars are built in one piece—a leak-proof, rattle-free construction. The first touch on the big brakes tells the story of unusual stopping power.



You'll find the Pontiac interior tastefully fitted, appointed, finished. Rich long-wearing mohair or whipcord in the closed cars—select leathers in the open models. In all, an atmosphere of fine craftsmanship pleasing to your pride.

Summing up, you'll agree that Pontiac Six is indeed a happy medium—the kind of car you want at the price you want to pay.

A Salad a Day
keeps the Wrinkles Away

...and THE KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION gives a few salad facts to help you prepare this important part of your daily diet

RECENTLY a famous scientist wrote this beauty prescription: "Eat a salad a day, at the beginning of the meal."

You know why he stressed the beginning, don't you? Because, if you eat what you should at the start of the meal, you won't over-eat what you shouldn't! Salads are rich in the very vitamins and minerals that rejuvenate tired nerves and tissues. And the skin must be fed with food—all of the creams and lotions in the world won't make a smooth, firm-textured "cover" for a body that lacks inner nourishment.

Since late spring days are ideal vegetable salad days, let's make one. You'll take cool, crisp lettuce; sunny shreds of carrots; perky, little, ruby-red radishes or beets; firm slices of red, golden-seeded tomatoes. Then marinate each vegetable separately, to improve the flavor of the whole salad. Marinating is so simply done —just let the vegetables stand for an hour or so in a mixture of olive oil, salt and lemon or vinegar (French dressing). Another thing—(keep this to yourself)— rub the salad bowl with a clove of garlic. It adds an inimitable flavor—piquant and elusive.

Make it a rule, then, to marinate your vegetable salads, also your meat and fish salads. And, except for potato, chicken or meat, hold up the top dressing—make it the last act before serving. Speaking of dressing, whether you make it yourself or buy it already prepared, you can pep it up with a snappy cheese. You can liven up a colorless salad with strips of pimiento and green pepper, and add flavor to a fruit salad with a sprinkling of nuts, ground or whole. Try using a small triangle of Roquefort cheese, next time, with pineapple. Vary the usual routine by serving fruit jam or jelly with any salad using a French dressing.

Remember, in preparing your salads, that crispness comes from thorough chilling. Wash the leafy vegetables about a half-hour before using. Then wrap them in a damp cloth and keep them cold. Dry thoroughly before serving.

The Kroger Food Foundation gives you these salad facts to help you plan and prepare and serve your salads. For a salad a day keeps the wrinkles away—in more ways than one. Suppose guests drop in unexpectedly. Don't worry about what to serve them. Go to your pantry. Get a can of beets, beans and asparagus; or a can of fruit, or shrimp or chicken. Open your "extra" bottle of prepared dressing and you'll soon have a salad on the table —delicious and tempting, ready to serve with wafers or toast, and cheese and jelly.

You learned about foods for your figures. Now, learn about salads for your complexion. And if you wish to know anything about preparing or serving salads, write to The Kroger Food Foundation, Cincinnati, Ohio.

HEAVENLY DAYS, GEORGE BUNGLE, I JUST SAW THOSE NOSY WANGLES WADDLING UP THE WALK AND I KNOW THEY'RE COMING HERE. AND THE WAY THIS HOUSE LOOKS WHILE I'M HOUSECLEANING.
WHAT! WELL WE'RE JUST NOT HOME. TURN OUT THE LIGHTS.
IMAGINE PEOPLE RINGING A DOORBELL AND HAMMERING ON A DOOR STEADILY FOR AT LEAST TEN MINUTES.
P-SS-T! THEY'RE TIRING....OR THE BATTERY IS RUNNING DOWN.
I KNOW THEY'RE HOME, GUSTAVE BECAUSE I SAW A LIGHT AS WE STROLLED UP THE WALK
I SEE SOMETHING MOVING.... MOVING. YOU KICK ON THE DOOR, HARDER, WHILE I RING AGAIN.
IMAGINE! SUCH A RACKET. AS THOUGH THEY WERE TRYING TO TEAR DOWN THE HOUSE.
WELL OUR MIND IS MADE UP THAT WE CAN STAND THIS JUST AS LONG AS THEY CAN.
AH, AT LAST THEY'VE STOPPED AND—
SH-HH! WHAT'S THAT? THEY'RE TRYING THE DOOR.
SH-HH! DID YOU LOCK THAT DOOR? I HEAR IT OPENING. OH, THEY'LL KNOW WE HEARD THEM.
LISTEN...QUICK. WE WERE SOUND ASLEEP ALL THE TIME. WE WON'T WAKE UP EVEN IF THEY HAVE THE CRUST TO WALK IN HERE
AHEM! GEORGE!
GEORGE! OH GEORGE! H-MM! ASLEEP WITH HIS MOUTH WIDE OPEN! LOOK AT HIM!
AND POOR JOSEPHINE TOO LOOKS SO ...POOR THING...WHEN A PERSON'S FACE IS RELAXED IT MAKES SUCH A DIFFERENCE IN THEIR APPEARANCE.
WELL PET, LET'S NOT DISTURB THEM. LET'S TAKE ANOTHER GOOD LOOK AT GEORGE AND BE ON OUR WAY.
POOR JOSEPHINE. WHAT A DIFFERENCE IT MAKES IN A PERSON'S AGE. WHEN THEY'RE NOT ALL FIXED UP.
BY JOVE, HERE'S THAT UMBRELLA GEORGE GOT FROM ME MONTHS AGO. WELL, THEY'RE BOTH SOUND ASLEEP AND IT MIGHT POSSIBLY RAIN WHILE WE'RE ON OUR WAY HOME.
HOW STUFFY THIS PLACE IS. OH HOW I WISH I TOO WERE THE SORT WHO COULD JUST LET EVERYTHING TAKE CARE OF ITSELF WHILE I DROPPED DOWN ANYWHERE AND FELL ASLEEP.
THERE THEY GO! OH WHAT A SITUATION. THE REMARKS SHE MADE. SHE KNEW WE WEREN'T ASLEEP.
HE KNEW I WAS AWAKE TOO. THE IDEA OF HIM TALKING ABOUT HOW MY MOUTH LOOKED. WHICH ONE OF US SUGGESTED THAT IDEA OF PLAYING POSSUM? HOW DID YOU COME TO THINK OF THAT IDEA?
HELLO MR. LANDLORD...THIS IS YOUR TENANT AGAIN...OVER THE BUNGLES...THEY'RE KEEPING EVERYBODY IN THIS HOUSE AWAKE ARGUING ABOUT WHY THEY WENT TO SLEEP!
EXPLAIN TO HIM MONMOUTH, THAT WE'RE SORT OF ACCUSTOMED TO THEIR SILLY ARGUMENTS BUT THIS ONE IS JUST THE WORST EVER.
